Carter's Cabinet Sworn In

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dozen members of Jimmy Carter's Cabinet took the oath of office Sunday in a White House ceremony witnessed by the President, who called them "a superb group."

Three other Cabinet-level nominees have yet to be approved by the Senate. And the President still must choose a CIA director. His first nominee withdrew last week in the face of strong Senate opposition.

"I want to thank members of Congress for their cooperation so far," Carter said. "So far they've been a little stronger on the advice than on the consent."

The remark brought laughter from an East Room audience of Cabinet families, friends and members of Congress.

Sworn in by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger were:

Cyrus R. Vance, secretary of state; W. Michael Blumenthal, secretary of treasury; Harold Brown, secretary of defense; Cecil D. Andrus, secretary of interior; Bob Bergland, secretary of agriculture; Juanita M. Kreps, secretary of commerce; Patricia Roberts Harris, secretary of housing and urban development; Brock Adams, secretary of transportation; Thomas B. Lance, budget director; James R. Schlesinger, chief energy adviser; Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Zbigniew Brzezinski, national security adviser.

Still to be confirmed by the Senate are Joseph Califano, nominated for secretary of health, education and welfare; F. Ray Marshall, secretary of labor; and Griffin B. Bell, attorney general.

At the Cabinet ceremony, all members took the oath of office simultaneously, hands on Bibles held by their spouses. The audience applauded.

"They are a superb group of Cabinet officers," Carter said. "I made a commitment to the American people ... to turn over the responsibilities of Cabinet departments to the Cabinet officers."

"There will never be an instance when a member of the White House staff will dominate a member of our Cabinet. When a directive is sent, it will indeed come directly from me."

"The secretaries will run their departments," Carter said. "This is a departure ... and while I recognize this great challenge I was particularly careful in my selections and I feel quite confident I can do a good job as President because of the superb qualities of those who will help me."

Califano, Marshall and Bell are expected to be approved by the Senate around mid-week. Their nominations have been held up because of opposition from some senators who want to place their positions on record but appear to be too few to block approval.

Marshall is opposed by a group of Republican conservatives who object to his position in favor of repeal of Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act, which authorizes states to enact right-to-work laws.

Califano is opposed by senators who took issue with his statement against the use of federal funds for abortions.

PRESIDENT CARTER CLASPS VICE PRESIDENT MONDALE'S HAND ON DEPARTURE
Mondale Left Late Sunday On A 10-Day Trip To European Countries, Japan

Mondale Begins 10-Day World Trip In Brussels

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale arrived Sunday in Brussels on the first diplomatic mission of the new Carter administration. He will visit America's major allies.

Mondale's plane touched down at 10:10 p.m. (1:10 p.m. PST) at Brussels' Zaventem Airport.

The vice president is on a 10-day global trip that will take him to five European capitals and Tokyo for economic discussions and introductory talks.

In a brief arrival statement, Mondale said he would tell Belgian leaders that the United States seeks "a relationship in which ideas flow both ways across the Atlantic and all are involved in leadership."

"President Carter supports the integration of Europe and a productive dialogue between the United States and the European Community (Common Market) — and with our NATO partners as well as European friends not in the community," he said.

Mondale added, "We believe that the security of each of our nations and indeed the preservation of our democratic values rest upon a strong Atlantic alliance."

The vice president's agenda in Brussels includes meetings today with Belgian Prime Minister Leo Tindemans and officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Common Market.

Talking with reporters aboard Air Force Two during the flight, Mondale said he was not bringing "all sorts of new innovative changes in direction on this trip." But he said some changes in U.S. policy would be made quite clear, including Carter's "deep concern about nuclear proliferation." The spread of nuclear weaponry will not be the central theme of his discussions, however, he said.

Before Mondale left Washington, President Carter said at a White House departure ceremony that "the early initiation of this very important diplomatic trip ... shows the importance that our nation attaches to friendly relations" with the countries Mondale will visit.

The trip, which administration officials say underlines President Carter's campaign

Congress To Start Work On Carter Economic Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's package of $23 billion to $30 billion in tax cuts and other economic stimulants, still undisclosed in detail, is scheduled to go to Congress formally this week.

The House Budget Committee opens hearings today on the economy with Congressional Budget Director Alice M. Rivlin as the first witness. The Carter proposals are to be presented Thursday by Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget in the new administration, Chairman Robert N. Giallino, D-Conn., said.

Meanwhile the Senate, which confirmed most of Carter's Cabinet nominees last week, scheduled votes on remaining nominees, including two who ran into signs of some opposition.

Carter's economic program includes a $7 billion to $11 billion one-time rebate of income taxes; a permanent individual income tax cut of about $4 billion, mostly for small and moderate incomes; $2 billion in tax relief for business and a still unspecified investment in government programs designed to produce jobs.

Specific details of the program have been scarce, but The New York Times reported on Sunday that Carter's economic advisers are considering a rebate in the area of $10 billion to $11 billion.

The Times said the advisers have also decided to send checks to the 16 million families or individuals who don't earn enough to pay taxes.

The House votes Wednesday on re-establishing its special committee to conduct an investigation of the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. Action has been delayed twice as members demanded more time to look into proposals for financing the investigation and the methods proposed to be used.

Cold Eases Grip On East; Thousands Left Jobless

By The Associated Press
Severe cold conditions over the eastern half of the nation appeared eased on Sunday, but the problems will linger in some areas for months.

Tens of thousands of workers remain out of work because of plant shutdowns or cutbacks as a result of natural gas shortages.

In Florida up to 150,000 migrant farm laborers lost their jobs, when the hard freeze struck late last week, crippling the winter vegetable crop and destroying about a third of the orange, grapefruit and other citrus crops.

Gene Dyson, President of the Georgia Business and Industry Association, said 50,000 workers have been laid off in Georgia and the figure could rise to 150,000 to 200,000 if the weather and shortages continue through for the next week or two.

The General Motors assembly plant in Doraville, Ga., will be closed until further notice because of a propane gas shortage, a company spokesman said Sunday, causing the lay off of 4,500 persons. The plant normally produces about a thousand cars daily.

Officials have said it may be as long as a month before gas supplies are sufficient to reopen the plants.

Although the frigid wave had lessened, chilly temperatures still dominated many of the eastern states Sunday. The weather bureau said it will remain that way from the Mid-Atlantic coast states through the Ohio Valley through today.

Snow stretched northward across eastern Iowa and Western Illinois into Wisconsin and Minnesota and spread eastward across the Ohio Valley to the Appalachians.

Florida's worst freeze in 15 years destroyed $120 million to $150 million of tomatoes and citrus, said Frank Pope of the U.S. Agriculture Department's Florida Emergency Board.

The ruined tomatoes alone were worth $43 million, Pope said Sunday.

"Celery, lettuce and peppers were wiped out," Pope said. "They were ready to harvest."

As a result growers are saying that fresh vegetables will be in short supply in the east during the next few months, and prices are certain to increase.

Although citrus industry officials say one-third of the crop may have been lost, if the frozen fruit is picked right away it can be processed for juice concentrate. Officials also have said that the freeze may have been a blessing for the orange growers because they had faced a surplus which would have forced down the price.

Philadelphia Gas Works, which serves about 540,000 natural gas users, said it had 80 to 100 confirmed gas leaks Sunday compared with a daily average in normal weather of about 15.

The severe cold has formed an extremely deep frost layer and has caused some water mains to burst, posing major problems for underground gas lines, said Don Kenley, a PGW spokesman.

Meanwhile, ice jams continued to plague the navigable rivers and bays. An ice jam on the Mississippi has caused a rise in the water level behind it of one to two feet at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

The Missouri River, dammed by ice rose two feet above flood stage at Plattsmouth, Neb., on Sunday and minor flooding was reported in low lying areas.

The Ohio River was frozen from back to bank from Pittsburgh to Golconda, Ill., about 20 miles from Paducah, Ky.

Tom McPhillips of the weather bureau said if there is a sudden thaw, "The ice would start moving all at once. Anything in the water will go with it."

Crude oil shipments to refineries on the Delaware River near Philadelphia are well behind schedule with up to 14 tankers waiting in Delaware bay for the shipping channel to clear of heavy ice.

LA Mother, 3 Daughters Slain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 30-year-old woman and three of her four daughters were found dead Sunday by the woman's mother, who, unable to reach the family by phone, arrived and knocked on the door.

She was met by her two-year-old granddaughter, unharmed and the only survivor of the mass killing at the home in the south central part of this city.

Police identified the victims as Billy Collier, 30, and her daughters Sonia Simpson, 12, Francoise Collier, 10, and Desiree Wash, 7. The surviving daughter was identified as Celestine Wonders.

Mrs. Collier had apparently been strangled, authorities said, and the children shot with a small-caliber weapon.

People who lived next door to the family said they had moved into the well-kept neighborhood of older houses four or five months ago. Little was known about the woman, who reportedly kept to herself.

However, Michael Mercer, 15, who lives in the house across the street from 1108 W. 51st Pl., said Mrs. Collier told him Friday night she had received threatening phone calls and wanted someone to stay with her.

"It must have happened late Friday night or early Saturday morning," said Mercer, who said he noticed all the windows obscured by shades Saturday and Sunday morning. He said he had made several telephone calls but no one answered.

Sunday morning, said Mercer, the woman's mother, Juanita O'Connor, and her estranged husband, Josephus Collier, arrived and knocked (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 3)

Plumber Rescues 2 Children; 5 Killed

JACKSON CENTER, Ohio (AP) — Five children died early Sunday when fire destroyed their house. Two other children survived because a passing plumber had a ladder on his truck, fire officials said.

"Celery, lettuce and peppers were wiped out," Pope said. "They were ready to harvest."

As a result growers are saying that fresh vegetables will be in short supply in the east during the next few months, and prices are certain to increase.

Although citrus industry officials say one-third of the crop may have been lost, if the frozen fruit is picked right away it can be processed for juice concentrate. Officials also have said that the freeze may have been a blessing for the orange growers because they had faced a surplus which would have forced down the price.

Philadelphia Gas Works, which serves about 540,000 natural gas users, said it had 80 to 100 confirmed gas leaks Sunday compared with a

when she fell about 15 feet to the ground. She was in the intensive care unit of a Sidney hospital.

Russell Smith, 11, was held at the hospital for observation.

"By the time I got them out, the smoke was too heavy for me to get to the others," the plumber said.

Firemen recovered the bodies of Betty Smith, 16; Brenda Smith, 13; Julie Smith, 10; David Covert, 7, and Carrie Covert, 4, Shelby County deputies said.

Mrs. Cowart was in a downstairs bedroom when a water heater in the basement caught fire. She escaped by breaking a bathroom window, but her children were trapped upstairs. She was the mother of all seven.

Jackson Center Fire Chief Don Bailey said the house, a multiple-family dwelling converted into a one-family house, was totally engulfed when his department arrived.

Ruth Smith, 14, was injured

Dayton Schools Open Despite Gas Shortage

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Classes will be held as usual for Dayton's 40,000 public school pupils this week despite a shortage of natural gas — unless the fuel to heat the schools has to be taken away from industry and results in job layoffs, the school superintendent says.

"We can't be open if it's going to put the kids' daddies out of work," Supt. John Maxwell said Sunday.

Meanwhile, Gov. James A. Rhodes declared a statewide energy emergency, an action which primarily calls for voluntary energy conservation and opens the way for the Ohio Legislature to consider the problem.

Last week, he declared a similar emergency for the 24 counties served by Dayton Power and Light Co., which shut off natural gas to about 2,000 commercial customers because of the short supplies resulting from increased demand during several weeks in which temperatures frequently fell below zero.

The utility company's 1.3 million residential customers were not affected by the shortage. The weather took a turn for the better Sunday, with temperatures climbing into (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 6)

Florida Weather Freezes Farm Work

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — Otis Davis plowed his fields Sunday, preparing to plant peas to replace the vegetables killed last week by the worst Florida freeze in at least 15 years.

The 40-acre farm that Davis has near Homestead, south of Miami, was one of hundreds where vegetable crops were wiped out in mid-harvest or before picking. He had been growing squash, peas and beans when the temperature plunged below freezing.

As a result growers are saying that fresh vegetables will be in short supply over much of the eastern half of the nation during the next few months, and prices are certain to increase.

In addition, up to 150,000 migrant farm laborers may have lost their jobs. "There will be no more work for at least three months," said Rudy Juarez, director of the Organized Migrants in Community Action.

When Gov. Reubin Askew declared a state of emergency Saturday because of the freeze, aide Ron Sachs said food stamps were the only government help readily available.

Sachs said, however, that the governor's declaration would open the way for farm workers to get unemployment compensation they normally wouldn't qualify for.

Francisco and Esperanza Quijano are among the migrants who had come to Florida to pick winter tomatoes and other vegetables, and who are suddenly without work because of the freeze.

"From now on, if we don't find work it will be impossible to pay the bills," Mrs. Quijano said as her husband and 12 children and grandchildren waited out the uncharacteristic cold weather.

"We came to the United States for the promise of better times," said Mrs. Quijano, 40. "Even though times are hard now — we need warm clothing and blankets, jobs and food — they are better than what we faced working in the cotton fields in Mexico."

Estimates of the number of jobless vary. Some will find work with farmers who are replanting their crops, and those who were picking citrus fruit will still have some work.

"They say that in Dade County (Miami) they have 8,500 workers, 4,500 of them migrants," said Frank Pope, the head of the U.S. Agriculture Department's Florida Emergency Board. Most of those who get any more work in South Florida this year face a two-month wait for new crops to mature, Pope said from Gainesville.

Tomato growers, most important farm labor users in the Miami area, won't replant, Pope said. "By the time the crop came in it would hit the market along with the California and Mexican tomatoes," he said.

John Barker is one grower who says he won't replant tomatoes, though he hopes to make some other crop to pay the rent on his 300 acres.

"I'm heartbroken," Barker said after walking the rows of withering plants. His vines were heavy with tomatoes he says would have brought $10 to $11 per 30-pound carton. Tomatoes went to $15 after the freeze, but Barker hadn't picked any and expects to salvage few from the damaged vines.

Although citrus industry officials say one-third of the crop may have been lost, if the frozen fruit is picked right away it can be processed for juice concentrate. Officials also have said that the freeze may have been a blessing for the orange growers because they had faced a surplus which would have forced down the price.

Six Women Killed In Apartment Fire

HULL, Canada (AP) — Six women were killed and 20 others were injured Sunday by a fire in an apartment complex for elderly persons, authorities in this Quebec community reported.

Police said the blaze broke out at about 4 p.m. in one of 16 units on the second floor of an eight-story building. The second floor is rented by the Quebec government as a home for the elderly.

About 75 other residents were evacuated.

The bodies of four of the victims were found in an apartment where the fire apparently started, police said, and the two other bodies were found in an adjoining unit.

The fire was confined to only a few units and was under control within 40 minutes, fire officials said.

An investigation is under way to determine the cause of the blaze.

Names of the victims were not released.

Legion Wants Carter Ousted

HUDSON, Wis. (AP) — Delegates to a state American Legion convention recommended Sunday that President Carter be ousted from the Legion because of his pardon for Vietnam war draft evaders.

Delegates, voting unanimously, adopted a resolution which said Carter should be dismissed from Post No. 2 in Americus, Ga., and should never be allowed membership in the Legion again.

National commander William J. Rogers of Kennebunk, Maine, addressed the convention Saturday, saying Carter's controversial pardon is socially divisive.

About 400 persons attended the three-day convention.

Terrorist Courier Arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jacques Rogiers, self-proclaimed courier for the terrorist New World Liberation Front, was arrested Sunday on charges of threatening public officials.

A spokesman said the district attorney's office will ask that bail be set at $100,000 on four counts of threatening public officials and one count of threatening for extortion.

The charges mentioned communiques delivered by Rogiers for the NWLF on Dec. 11, 1975; Jan. 9, 1976; Dec. 1, 1976, and Jan. 19, 1977.

The most recent communique claimed credit for a series of bomb blasts at a Sausalito substation of Pacific Gas & Electric Co. The blasts caused no damage.

Broken Pipe Spills Diesel Fuel

BUHL, Idaho (AP) — A Chevron Oil Co. crew spent Sunday repairing a break in a Salt Lake City-to-Boise pipeline near here that spilled an undetermined amount of diesel fuel into the Snake River.

Chuck Eckhart, acting manager of the Chevron pipeline, said he did not know how much oil was spilled. He said the break occurred Saturday afternoon when a farmer ruptured the pipeline with a bulldozer while digging a water retention dam.

Eckhart said the oil flowed a mile and a half through irrigation ditches into the river and then downstream.

Chevron crews were able to close the valves 20 minutes after the break, he said.

One Dies, One Hurt In Air Crash

CALIPATRIA (AP) — One man was killed and another seriously injured when their small plane went into a spin and crashed Sunday shortly after takeoff, authorities said.

Patrick O. Jernigan, 25, of Desert Hot Springs, was killed on impact, officials said. The single-engine plane's pilot, Dale I. Abbot, 33, of Encino, was seriously hurt. Abbot was taken to a local hospital for emergency treatment then transferred to the University of San Diego Medical Center, said Imperial County Sheriff's Deputy Charles Jerniga.

Strike By BART Employees Averted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Contract differences between the Bay Area Rapid Transit District and 1,200 clerical and maintenance workers were resolved Sunday, averting the threat of a rush hour walkout this morning.

Officials of BART and of the United Public Employees Union Local 390 issued a joint statement canceling a union meeting that had been scheduled for this morning.

Paul Varacalli, executive secretary of the union, had said earlier that BART was not living up to provisions of its contract with the union, including tool and clothing allowances for workers and a scheduled contribution to the Alameda County Labor Council Blood Bank.

British Soldier Slain In Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A British soldier was shot to death and the bodies of two murdered men were found in a burnt-out car in Belfast on Sunday, the most violent day since the beginning of this year in Northern Ireland.

A British army spokesman said the soldier was on a foot patrol in Belfast's Markets section Sunday night when he was hit and killed by a single sniper's bullet.

Abandoned Log Freighters Sink

HONOLULU (AP) — The abandoned Panamanian freighter Crown Pearl sank in the mid-Pacific before dawn Sunday while another ship was trying to tow it here for salvage, the Coast Guard said.

The Crown Pearl, with a cargo of logs bound for Japan from Tacoma, Wash., was abandoned Jan. 15 by its 25-man crew after it began taking on water. The crew was rescued by another ship.

The Liberian bulk carrier Asia Loyalty put a line on the drifting freighter 856 miles northwest of Honolulu Friday night and had towed it more than 100 miles towards Honolulu when it sank, the Coast Guard said.

The Asia Loyalty said it picked up two of its crewmen it had placed aboard the Crown Pearl and resumed its voyage to Panama, a spokesman said.

Mother, 5 Children Die In Fire

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — A woman and five of her six children died Sunday when fire swept through a mountain cabin in a remote part of southwestern Oregon.

The victims were identified by Josephine County sheriff's deputies as Joyce Fay Strickland, 34, and her children, Randall, 11; Tamatha, 9; Steven 6, Connie Sue 3, and Mathew Gregory, 1.

Deputies said all six bodies were found in the smoldering ruins of the cabin at a mining site 25 miles northwest of Grants Pass.

The children's father, Lonnie Strickland, and one son, Christopher, 9, had left the cabin early Sunday morning.

Turks To Take Cyprus Troops

ANKARA, — Turkey (AP) — Turkey will withdraw 1,000 more troops from northern Cyprus on Tuesday, an authoritative source said Sunday.

Turkey invaded the Mediterranean island with 40,000 men in July 1974, but gradual withdrawals over the past two years have reduced the number there to 28,000, officials say.

The Turkish occupation followed a Greek-led coup against Archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus. Makarios has since been restored to power, but the Turkish Cypriot minority on the island and the Greek Cypriot majority have not yet reached a settlement to share political power.

CARTERS WITH BAPTIST REV. CHARLES TRENTHAM
The President Will Teach Sunday School In D.C.

Carters Join DC Baptist Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, his wife, daughter Amy and three other members of his family worshipped at the First Baptist Church on Sunday, then walked slowly up the center aisle and asked to become members.

Amy will be baptized in the church and Carter will teach occasional Sunday school classes — his first one week after next.

"What an historic moment this is," Pastor Charles A. Trencham told the congregation, his arms spread in welcome.

"President and Mrs. Carter — Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter — Chip, Annette and Caron ... all you who join the church on Sunday, a pastor in recommending them to the membership committee raise your hand."

A flurry of hands went up in the congregation.

"Mr. President, next to the privilege of serving the Lord, I count this the highest privilege of my career," the Rev. Mr. Trencham declared.

Carter told reporters his older children had visited several churches in Washington over the past few weeks. "This is their preference, and it's very close to the White House," he said.

"Amy will become a member here. She'll be baptized in this church," Carter added. He said church leaders would question her about her understanding of the faith first.

The first family, joined by son Chip and his wife, Caron, left the White House shortly after 9 a.m. They arrived at the church about 9:30 and were joined by son Jeff and his wife, Annette.

Jeff, who worshipped with the family, did not join the others in walking up the aisle to seek membership.

The First Couple's first stop was at a Sunday school class of about 70 persons. The teacher, Fred Gregg, executive vice president of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., later said Carter had agreed to teach the class about once a month or every five to six weeks beginning Sunday after next.

"He's a good Sunday school teacher," Gregg said.

The Carters chatted with other members of the congregation before the service began, then took their seats in the eighth pew of the church, under stained glass windows, a vaulted ceiling and walnut balconies.

Two candles on the light pine altar were lit. And as Carter put his arm around Rosalynn the congregation heard readings from the Old and New Testaments, a prayer by the Rev. Edward H. Pruden, who was President Truman's pastor in years past, and a sermon.

After the Carters stepped forward requesting membership, the President retrieved his Bible from his pew and the Rev. Mr. Trencham escorted them to the door.

British Paper Battle Flares

LONDON (AP) — The battle of Britain's tabloid newspapers broke into full cry today with the appearance of the new Daily Express.

The relaunched Express went into direct competition with Britain's three other national tabloids — the Daily Mail, the Daily Mirror and the Sun.

The inaugural tabloid edition of the Express carried a serialization of a book on the late American billionaire Howard Hughes.

But the Sun, not to be outdone, sported a front-page photograph of one of its reporters made up to resemble Hughes, and a centerfold feature on Hughes.

Beaverbrook Newspapers, headed by Canadian-born Sir Max Aitken, redesigned the Express because the paper has lost about 2½ million readers in the past six years.

The Sun, part of Australian Rupert Murdoch's newspaper empire, has stolen readers from all its rivals and now comes close to the Daily Mirror's 4 million circulation.

at the door. Eventually the two-year-old girl came to the door and opened it.

Celestine Dixon, who had been visiting her mother who lives next door, said she accompanied the relatives into the house. She said she saw one body immediately in a hallway and then found the others, surrounded by what she at first thought was water but then identified as blood.

"The mother was at the side of the bed, lying on the floor," she said.

The houses in the neighborhood, south of the University of Southern California, are close together. Yet none of the residents said they heard any gunfire.

Mrs. Dixon's mother, Mary Lee, said the dead woman rarely spoke to anyone, although she would answer greetings.

"She'd just bow her head and go on," said Mrs. Lee. "We all know each other around here," she added, "but I don't even know her name."

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — The city officials here want to pack local courtrooms with old people, to push judges into giving stiff sentences for muggers who prey on the elderly.

And they're asking for a $400,000 federal grant to pay for the program and other features of the all-out war on crime against senior citizens.

"We want to put gray heads in the courtrooms during trials so the judge can see the people hurt most by crime," said a spokesman for Mayor Paul T. Jordan. "If you're sitting on a bench and have a bunch of old ladies who are PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czechoslovak television carried a program Sunday accusing several British diplomats and a British journalist of being spies. The accusation was swiftly denied by the British Foreign Ministry.

Among those named in the Czech program were Sir Cecil Parrot, ambassador to Czechoslovakia in 1960-1966; British embassy press attache Cyril Jensen, and Richard Davy, a London Times editorial writer.

In London, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said, "This is quite untrue. There is no foundation whatsoever in any of these allegations."

Boy 13, Killed As 'Homemade' Bomb Explodes

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy was killed and his brother injured Sunday when a homemade bomb they found while searching for aluminum cans exploded, police said.

Sgt. Billie Givens identified the dead boy as Daniel Corbett. His brother, John, 11, was hospitalized at the Fort Carson hospital for treatment of shrapnel wounds. He was listed in satisfactory condition.

Givens said the two boys were gathering aluminum cans in an industrial part of the city when they came across the two "homemade bombs," one on the ground next to a large trash box and the other on top of it. Givens said one of the two canisters exploded when the boys checked it, killing one youth and knocking his brother to the ground.

Givens said the second bomb did not explode. He said local police and a squad of ordnance experts from the nearby Army base disarmed the explosive.

Givens said police were investigating.

3 Boys Drown Playing On Ice

IVA, S.C. (AP) — Three boys who were playing on thin ice on Lake Secession drowned Sunday, according to the Anderson County coroner.

Coroner Wilton Mack identified the boys as Jonathan Gaines, 6; Bertram Adams, 10; and Charles Eric Belton, 11, all of Iva.

He said the boys were apparently playing 60 feet from shore, when the ice broke and they fell into 14 to 20 feet of water.

A fourth boy summoned help after spotting their bicycles and then their caps floating on the water. Their bodies were pulled from the lake one hour later, Mack said.

Carter Program

The House is expected to approve re-establishment of the committee, but Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill has said there is no chance it will authorize any amount approaching the $6.5 million requested for the committee's first year of operation.

House Democrats face a showdown on whether Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes of Florida will continue as chairman of the appropriations subcommittee on military construction.

The House reprimanded Sikes last year for allegedly violating its standards by investing in a bank whose establishment was facilitated by his office and failing to report certain financial holdings.

Sikes is expected to be re-nominated for the chairmanship Monday, but some want to deny Sikes the chairmanship.

A spokesman for the Times said Davy was on vacation in Europe and unavailable for comment.

The Czech television program included film purporting to show a meeting in February 1976 between Prague theater director Otto Ornest and a person identified as a Western diplomat. The film showed a bag changing hands during the rendezvous.

Ornest, who translated the Broadway musical "My Fair

Lady" into Czech, was one of four dissidents arrested Jan. 17. They were charged with "serious criminal activities directed against the foundations of the republic."

The official CTK news agency said at the time that an investigation of the four "so far revealed that they maintained contacts with foreign enemy forces and emigre circles for a long time and handed over to them materials damaging to the interests of Czechoslovakia."

It also said that "These materials were exploited against the interests of Czechoslovakia in emigre centers and also in communications media abroad and in various publications that were secretly sent back to our republic. For this activity, those detained used also the workers of some diplomatic missions" in Czechoslovakia.

Ornest was the only one of the four arrested who was not a signer of the recent "Charter 77" human rights manifesto. It calls on the government to observe provisions in the Helsinki agreement of 1975.

Czechoslovakia was among 35 European and North American nations that signed the Helsinki accord on security and cooperation in Europe.

Schmidt In London For Economic Talks

LONDON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and four cabinet ministers arrived Sunday for talks on financing British troops in Germany, British deficits and an economic summit conference proposed by President Carter.

Schmidt and British Prime Minister James Callaghan also have scheduled talks in their own capitals with Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who flew to Europe Sunday on the new Carter administration's first diplomatic mission.

Schmidt planned a working session with Mondale Tuesday in Bonn. The new vice president was due in London Thursday.

The German leaders were met by Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland and they went by car to Chequers, the country residence of prime ministers 30 miles northwest of London.

The Schmidt-Callaghan meeting originally was scheduled as the regular twice-yearly conference of German and British leaders but was expanded into a wide-ranging economic session.

With Schmidt were Foreign the 20s and continued warming predicted for today.

Rhodes, in extending the energy emergency to all 88 Ohio counties on Sunday, stopped short of declaring an energy crisis, which would have meant mandatory conversation measures. The Ohio Energy Resources and Development Agency had urged the governor to declare an energy crisis, but Rhodes rejected that option. His main reason, he said, was that the law permitting him to declare a crisis had no effective means of enforcement or penalties.

The state agency also wanted the governor to close all schools in Ohio for 30 days, but Rhodes made no such move.

Last Thursday, the agency's executive director, Robert S. Ryan, ordered schools in the Dayton area shut down for 30 days because of the natural gas shortage. But Rhodes said Friday that the order was "a misunderstanding" because the state had no such authority unless an energy crisis were declared.

The Legislature, which had recessed until Feb. 1, scheduled a special session Tuesday to consider emergency laws to deal with the energy problem.

The voluntary cutbacks sought by the governor's declaration include:

- Setting thermostats to 65 degrees in the daytime and 55 degrees at night.
- Closing off unused rooms and supplementing heat sources with fireplaces where possible.

FAA Probing Near Crash Of Argentine Jet

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration said Sunday it is investigating the near crash of an Argentine airliner with 61 persons aboard after it took off from Kennedy International Airport.

Taking off in a snow storm on Jan. 14, the Boeing 707 suddenly lost speed and skimmed less than 100 feet over the trees in a heavily populated area near the airport.

An account received by the FAA from a passenger said the plane shuddered, dove and banked, just missing house-tops, while passengers panicked and flight attendants began crying. The New York Times reported in today's editions.

Rather than make an emergency landing, the Argentine pilot continued directly to Buenos Aires.

Mondale On Tour

commitment to consult with allies in Europe and Japan, will include stops in Bonn, West Berlin, Rome, London, and Paris before Mondale flies to Tokyo on Saturday and back to Washington on Feb. 1.

It is one element in a flurry of diplomatic activities Carter forecast for the opening months of his administration that will include other trips by Carter's emissaries to the world's trouble spots and visits to the United States by foreign leaders.

Mondale aides sketched three purposes for the whirlwind tour, which was announced two weeks ago:

- To get acquainted with the United States' primary allies.
- To find out what's on their minds, to do a lot of listening, to hear their concerns first hand and bring them back to Carter," one of the aides said.
- To report to the Europeans and Japanese on Carter's economic plans.
- To conduct preliminary discussions towards setting up an economic summit meeting in the late spring or early summer.

In addition, discussions are likely to include such specific issues as halting the spread of nuclear weapons, U.S. troop strength in West Germany and South Korea, trade negotiations and international monetary problems, the political and social relationship between emerging and industrialized nations, and relations between the East and West.

Carter, relatively unknown to the European and Japanese leaders, is likely to be one of the key topics of the discussions.

European leaders, said one official, "will want to know if there will be any significant changes in U.S. foreign policy regarding Europe. They are going to want to know as much as possible about the plans of the new administration in the economic field."

Officials said that the vice president would not carry with him any "grand designs" from the three-day-old administration.

"We'll be 90 hours old when we hit the ground in Brussels," said one official. "We won't carry any new proposals."

A major goal will be to reassure American allies of this nation's "strength and purpose, and our commitment to carry out the obligations we have," Carter said.

Aboard the plane, Mondale was casually dressed in slacks, a yellow flannel shirt and tennis shoes as he talked with reporters.

"I think it is unprecedented for a vice president to depart on this kind of diplomatic mission so early in a new administration," he said. "This is designed to demonstrate to our traditional allies and friends the high priority we place on that relationship."

"If we could move quickly now to restore our economies to better health, thereby improving trade opportunities and employment ... we can redirect our energies and not slide backwards," he said.

The stop in West Berlin was added to the tour, Mondale said, "to make clear our continuing dedication to the independence and freedom there."

He said that in Rome he will visit with Pope Paul VI "to hear from his holiness about his concerns and express to him our commitment to the great humanitarian issues he has served all his life."

Mondale said his trip to some extent would serve to lay the groundwork for an economic summit conference later this year.

"Economics is up front as an issue," the vice president said. "All of our nations are suffering from inflation and unemployment and if we could work cooperatively on a solution of these problems, we will all be able to do a better job."

After making his arrival statement in an airport hanger, Mondale was driven to a Brussels hotel where he was greeted in the lobby by a group of Americans from the Committee of Democrats Abroad. They waved welcoming signs and gave Mondale an illustrated book about Belgium. Mondale chatted briefly with the Americans before getting to his room.

Mondale's trip is one element in a flurry of diplomatic activities Carter forecast for the opening months of his administration. The plan is for other trips by Carter's emissaries to the world's trouble spots and visits to the United States by foreign leaders.

City Wants To Pack Court With Elderly

here is against the elderly. For example, 23 of the 60 purses snatched on city streets last month belonged to women 65 or older.

If the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration approves the plan, court watchers will find out when proceedings against accused muggers of the elderly are scheduled.

Buses will round up the observers and take them home at the end of the proceedings.

In addition to the "court-packing" plan, the proposed grant would pay for:

- Crime prevention classes at neighborhood centers for senior citizens.

- A four-member police team specializing in tracking down teenage purse snatchers and hoodlums who burglarize city projects where old people live. The team will consist of a city detective and three retired police officers.
- A mobile center with tips on where to buy inexpensive locks and how to turn an apartment into a burglar-proof stronghold.
- If we are to make any appreciable progress, residents, especially senior citizens, are going to have to start fighting back," the mayor said.

Rival Plans Bog Down Energy Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders are ready to work with the Carter administration in forging a new Cabinet-level Department of Energy but efforts are already bogging down in a welter of rival plans.

The concept of a new department to coordinate the nation's energy policy, urged by both Carter and former president Gerald Ford, has wide bipartisan backing in Congress. But the main problem is deciding which programs to include and which to leave out when the new superagency is formed. At the heart of the controversy is whether to lodge programs that push energy production under the same roof with those that regulate energy. At the same time, administration officials are hoping to introduce in Congress this week emergency legislation authorizing the government to allocate natural gas supplies among pipelines, a move that would permit surplus gas to be shifted to states with acute shortages of the fuel. Action on energy reorganization is mandated by the act Congress passed last year extending the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) through the end of 1977. The act requires the legislation to be submitted by April 15. The Carter administration has said it will send Congress a plan for reorganizing energy agencies early next month. Staff members of government operations committees in both houses have already done some initial spade-work with the administration in drafting the legislation. But they are awaiting word from White House energy aide James R. Schlesinger on specifics. "He's the man who will be calling the major shots for the administration," said one Senate staffer. Congressional committee aides said one major obstacle is deciding whether the new department should include the Federal Power Commission (FPC) and those parts of the FEA that engage in price regulation. Another, they said, is dealing with the Interior Department's current jurisdiction over energy production on federal lands.

Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., of the Senate Government Operations Committee and others have expressed distaste for combining agencies that regulate energy with those that promote its development. It was a similar built-in conflict that led Congress in 1975 to split the Atomic Energy Commission into two new agencies: the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC). Yet energy reorganization plans unveiled by Carter during his campaign would foster the same type of conflict by combining some regulatory programs with those oriented toward energy production. Carter proposed abolishing the FEA, FPC, ERDA and the Energy Resources Council and assigning their functions to the new department. Ford submitted a similar plan near the end of his administration. A possible alternative favored by some staff members of the Senate Government Operations Committee is to create two new agencies. One would be the Cabinet-level Department of Energy and the other a new energy regulatory agency, which would include the FPC and the regulatory aspects of the FEA.

However, the proposal for two new agencies instead of one is certain to be controversial, and does not enjoy the support of many key members of Congress. Possibly an even thornier issue is what to do about the energy management responsibilities of the Interior Department on federal land. About a third of all U.S. land is owned by the federal government. The Interior Department is responsible for issuing coal, gas and oil leases on these lands, as well as on the Outer Continental Shelf. The plan Carter announced during his campaign would bring Interior's energy management programs into the new agency. Ford's plan would leave them where they are.

UC Forced Into Appealing Discrimination Suit—Saxon

BERKELEY (AP) — The University of California had to appeal a court decision striking down special minority admissions programs because it would have caused present UC programs to be dropped or revised and "would surely exert a chilling effect on...programs throughout the country," UC President David Saxon said Sunday.

Saxon said the decision, being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, would be a "crushing blow to the many minority students now working hard...in the hope that access to professional training is a realistic possibility despite handicapped educational backgrounds." Last September, the California Supreme Court ruled that admissions programs giving preferential treatment to minorities at the expense of whites violate the equal protection guarantees of the U.S. Constitution. The ruling came in a case of Allan Bakke, a white man who sued UC on grounds that he twice was denied admission on the basis of race to the Davis medical school which reserves 16 of its 100 places for minorities. Minority organizations have opposed the UC appeal, contending the facts of the case are not strong. They contend that UC should await a better case rather than risk an adverse decision that would affect minorities nationally. Several organizations — including the National Organization for Women, the National Conference of Black Lawyers and the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund — have urged the high court not to hear the appeal. The Supreme Court may decide as early as this week whether to take the case. Saxon said in a statement that the university cannot await a "better" case. "Had we not pursued the appeal, would not minority groups six months or a year from now protest strongly about our inability to admit more minority students?" he asked. "The hard facts are that the Bakke case does exist, though not through the university's instigation, and that its consequences will not go away while we wait for some ideal case."

109 Law Enforcement Officers Killed During 1976, FBI Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminals killed 109 local, state and federal law enforcement officers last year, 20 fewer than in 1975, the FBI reported Sunday. Ninety-three of the officers were shot to death and handguns were used in 65 of those incidents, the report said. In 13 of the handgun cases, the officers were slain with their own weapons. FBI said 56 of the officers were killed in Southern states, 24 in North Central states, 14 in the Northeast, 10 in the West and four in Puerto Rico. One Drug Enforcement Administration agent was killed in Bogota, Colombia. Twenty-six officers were killed while attempting to make arrests for crimes other than robbery and burglary. 15 were slain in connection with robberies and eight in connection with burglaries, the report said. Nineteen were killed while handling disturbance calls, 13 were slain in ambushes, 11 while investigating suspicious persons, 10 while making traffic stops, four while confronting mentally deranged persons, and three while handling prisoners, the FBI said.

First Death Penalty Hearing Low-Keyed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The battle to reimpose the death penalty in California formally begins today with what is intended to be a low-keyed scholarly examination of the issue.

There may be 20 or more formal debates or floor votes this year before the issue is resolved, with emotional horror stories and demonstrations on both sides. But that all lies ahead.

There is little drama intended in the opening hearing before the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee.

Witnesses are by invitation only, and are limited to two prosecutors and two public defenders, representing the pro and con sides at the county superior court and appellate court levels, and Prof. Anthony Amsterdam of Stanford, a death penalty foe who is regarded as an authority on constitutional law.

The purpose, said committee chairman Ken Maddy, is to "lay the groundwork, review the constitutional law and case law, determine where we are today, what are the options and limits of a new law."

"It's an emotional issue," said committee chairman Maddy. "I don't think anyone's stand or anyone's vote will be based solely on statistics, solely on logic."

"But I'm going to try to keep the extremists from grandstanding or having a playday. I don't think it serves any purpose to see these people come up here who want to parade their horror stories, on either side. We know the emotional arguments. They are part of the picture we will be evaluating and acting upon."

Six capital punishment bills have been introduced so far. Maddy said his committee will wait until all the major bills are ready for a vote before starting the process of amendments or committee votes. That will be mid-February to mid-March, Maddy said.

He said measures advocated by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. — who has promised to veto the death penalty — to impose life sentences without possibility of parole will be held in committee until the death penalty issue is resolved.

If the death penalty is blocked, then those bills would be sent to the floor, said Maddy, a Fresno Republican who supports the death penalty.

Also on the legislative calendar today is formal introduction of one of two rival bills aimed at preserving California's prime agricultural land with new state limits on development.

Elsewhere in the Capitol this week, legislative committees will hold fact-finding hearings, on such diverse subjects as DNA research, local tax assessment practices, medical research on prison inmates and policies of the California Highway Commission.

A survey by The Associated Press last week found California legislators favor the death penalty by a large majority, 68-24 in firm votes and 76-33 when "leaning" votes are added in a combined tally of the Senate and Assembly. But it is too close to call where it counts most, on Maddy's

Criminal Justice Committee.

To get to a floor vote, any death penalty bill needs five aye votes in that nine-member committee. Maddy describes the committee as "three, three and three — three of us in favor, three who oppose under any circumstance, and three who are open to arguments of both sides."

However, the three undecided appear to tilt against capital punishment. When the death penalty law which the California Supreme Court overturned last month was voted on in 1973, two of the three undecided members of the current Criminal Justice Committee voted no.

Frolickers On Ice Halt River Barges

CINCINNATI (AP) — Frolickers streaming onto the ice halted a towboat pushing a string of 12 barges up the frozen Ohio River on Sunday.

"People were strung out like a picket fence from the very young who could hardly walk to the old people," said Capt. W.A. Boudreaux, of Houma, La., aboard the City of Pittsburgh which was "bullying" its way through the ice. Boudreaux said he called Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., police through the marine operator when the strollers ignored his whistle and pleas over a loudspeaker to get off the ice.

"Well, what came up to my mind was they are more stupid than I am," he drawled afterward. Boudreaux said he shut down when he got within 50 feet of the walkers who "cussed us out for trying to run them off the ice."

The pedestrians delayed the barge, as well as a train on the river bank, for half an hour.

The 1,100-foot-long string of barges was the first since Monday to go up the river past Cincinnati. Boudreaux said he was delivering petroleum products, fuel and lubricants, to Pittsburgh, Pa., from Cairo, Ill.

He was followed by another tow carrying empty propane barges. Both were "bullying" their way through the ice.

Cincinnati police Sgt. Dan O'Malley said a Conrail train was stopped briefly on the tracks on the bank on the Ohio side of the river. He said the public landing was inundated with people and cars.

"If someone had fallen through the ice, we couldn't have got the emergency equipment through to save them," said O'Malley.

John Beatty, a salvage operator and owner of a floating restaurant, tried to help talk people off the ice from aboard his large boat. "The darn fools wouldn't get out of the way," he shrugged. "One guy asked me to show my bill of sale for the river when I told him to get his kids off."

"I've never seen a barge tow stopped by pedestrians," Beatty said.

Beatty, who has been breaking up ice around local marinas since Tuesday, said the ice varies in thickness from one to 14 inches. He also said the ice underneath has a mushy quality probably from heated water dumped into the river from industries.

"I think when this goes it will go fast," he said.

Boudreaux said his tow was cracking the river ice from shore to shore.

Camel Walked Mile Too Far

MALIBU (AP) — Motorists might see a few deer, but an unfortunate camel is something different.

They said the animal died following his fall onto Topanga Canyon Boulevard about three miles north of Pacific Coast Highway.

Study Says Teenager's Friends Influence Serious Delinquency

WASHINGTON (AP) — A teenager's friends have more influence than his parents in determining whether he will become involved in serious juvenile delinquency, researchers said in report issued Sunday.

But parents will exert a stronger influence in determining the child's involvement in less serious forms of delinquency, such as truancy from school and running away from home, the researchers suggested.

The findings were developed by the Institute for Juvenile Research, a branch of the Illinois Department of Mental Health. The institute is in the last year of a six-year project financed with $1.9 million from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

LEAA issued a preliminary report and promised a more complete analysis in September.

During the project, researchers questioned 3,180 youths between 14 and 18 years of age and 1,970 of their parents. Those interviewed were in 40

Illinois counties. The researchers concluded that "peer group pressure is the single most important factor in dictating the presence or absence of juvenile delinquent behavior," LEAA said. In most cases, "kids reporting delinquency are nearly as likely to be white as black, just about as likely to be a girl as a boy, as likely to live anywhere in the state as in highly urbanized Chicago, and just as likely to come from an intact home as from a broken home," added Joseph Puntili, co-director of the project.

Liquor Industry Probed On 'Giveaways'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government investigators are gradually boring into a system under which beer and liquor were illegally peddled with the help of millions of dollars worth of free television sets or bar equipment, preferential loans and credit and secret exchanges of envelopes stuffed with cash.

So far the investigators have implicated the nation's largest brewers, distillers and distributors, confronting them with the prospect of having to pay fines or shut down their operations for a week or more as punishment.

Officials suspended federal operating authority of Glenmore Distilleries of Louisville, D&K Distributing

Co. of Akron, Ohio, and Quality Import Co. of Albuquerque, N.M., last year for periods as short as three days and as long as 18 days.

Two divisions of Foremost-McKesson, the nation's largest wholesalers, are appealing in court administrative action lifting their federal permits for 10 days. The nation's largest distiller, Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc., is battling a proposed nine-day federal suspension.

Anheuser-Busch, Schlitz, Miller and Schenley have all either admitted making questionable payments or accepted government fines for giving "things of value" to induce sales.

Thirteen distributors around the country accepted fines last year from the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms through the Bureau's system of "offers in compromise" to settle charges of using gifts or similar considerations to sell products.

Federal liquor law prohibits giving things of value to induce sales. Rex T. Davis, acting director of the bureau, said in an interview that he's encouraged by the progress the industry giants have made in cleaning up their operations. He has lauded both Seagram and Schenley specifically for coming forward voluntarily.

"But we realize of course, we have a long way to go," he said.

"Eventually the entire industry could be implicated in this," said Alan J. Gardner, deputy commissioner of the New York Liquor Authority, which has announced a number of investigations are underway in that state.

Another state, California, first hit Foremost-McKesson divisions operating out of San Francisco with suspensions as the result of an investigation there in 1974.

It is Foremost-McKesson which is in the forefront of the investigations at this point, and thus has been subject of the most detailed information on how the beer and liquor business works.

Over the last five years, Foremost has spent $6 million in gifts and cash bestowed on retailers and wholesalers and $231,000 on various government officials, according to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

In testimony and affidavits provided the Treasury Department's alcohol agency, retailers told how McKesson Wine and Spirits Co. and Pacific Crown Distributors would reward purchases of Old Crow with free wine or cash.

The payments were "given in a secret manner in envelopes, often to employees of the owners of the retail establishment and possibly without the knowledge of the owners," the Treasury records show. One recipient said he received just over $5,000 in a single payment.

Carter Urged To Retain FBI's Kelley

A panel of the International Association of Police Chiefs has called on President Jimmy Carter to retain CLARENCE M. KELLEY as FBI director. Los Angeles police chief ED DAVIS, association president, said about 25 members of the group's executive committee voted unanimously to forward an official statement of the request to the President and the attorney general's office. "My concern is the lack of stability that could be created within law enforcement if a President and attorney general change FBI directors arbitrarily every four or eight years," Davis said. "Mr. Kelley has demonstrated his integrity and his administrative ability and we fully support him as well as the office he holds."

GERALD R. FORD has accepted the presidency of Eisenhower Exchange Fellowships Inc., an official of the non-profit study organization said Sunday in Philadelphia. Ford's primary job in the salaried position will be to promote the program both in the United States and abroad. Samuel Townsend, executive director of the organization, said Ford will

'Immortal' Hounded By Friends Of Fox

LONDON (AP) — The village churchyard grave of John Peel, immortalized as England's greatest foxhunter in the ballad "Do you ken John Peel," was desecrated Sunday, apparently by opponents of the chase.

Police said the grave in Caldbeck village in Cumbria county had been opened and the headstone torn down and broken. The stuffed head of a fox had been thrown into the grave, along with a note reading, "John Peel — go blow on your horn until your face turns blue."

The bones of Peel, a farmer and huntsman who once chased a fox for 70 miles, were not disturbed, police added.

Peel was born in Caldbeck in 1776 and died in 1854. The village lies to the north of the scenic Lake District in north-west England where Peel hunted.

His great-great grandson, 76-year-old John Peel, treasurer of the Ullswater Foxhounds, said, "I am distressed and very angry. What good is it going to do anybody to dig up an old man's grave? I am sure that most of the people who oppose foxhunting wouldn't condone this sort of thing."

The Press Association news agency said it got an anonymous telephone message at 3 a.m. about the attack. The male caller said, "Something has got to be done to help foxes today, and this man killed hundreds of them."

The Rev. Colin Reid, rector of St. Kentigern's where Peel is buried, said the grave is a tourist attraction and will be restored.

"Do you ken John Peel?" means "Do you see John Peel." The rousing, cheerful song about the man who hunted "in his coat so gay ... at the break of day ... with his horse and his hounds in the morning" is sung in schools and by glee clubs throughout Britain and the United States. It was written by Peel's friend John Woodcock Graves the night before a hunt.

Solon Tells Of 'Indiscretion' In Korean Influence Buying

WASHINGTON (AP) — As many as 40 or 50 members of Congress may be involved in the South Korean influence-buying scandal, Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker said Sunday.

The Tennessee Republican said that not all of those involved are Democrats, and added that most are members of the House of Representatives.

Appearing on NBC's "Meet The Press," Baker said there are some proper activities for Korean agents in assessing the mood of Americans, but there is ample proof that there was "at least broad indiscretion" in efforts to influence Congress.

He said that these activities are being investigated and there possibly will be prosecution in some cases.

Korean influence-buying on Capitol Hill is being investigated by a congressional committee and also by the Justice Department.

Several members of Congress have been named as having received gifts, campaign money or other contributions from Korean representatives.

Baker declined to be more specific about the members who may be involved.

Baker also said that the Republican party is forming its own economic program and intends to present it as an alternative to Carter's plans.

Baker was particularly critical of the proposed one-time tax rebate. This was tried before, he said, and most of it went to pay bills or into savings accounts, which he said did not boost the economy.

Baker also said he would favor a fundamental change in the role of House and Senate members.

Currently, he said, Congress is an elected bureaucracy. If this is to be the case, pay should be increased and limits placed on outside income and activities. He predicted that such limits will be approved.

"It ain't the way it ought to be, in my view, but I think that's the way it's going to have to be."

As an alternative, he suggested that Congress meet from January to May and September to November, setting policy and trusting the President to administer it.

Right now, Baker said, Congress doesn't trust the President, the President doesn't trust Congress and the Court doesn't trust either.

He also suggested a national debate on the possible necessity for compulsory government service and mentioned the possibility of draft-type government service.

The debate ought to be this year, Baker said, discussing the possibility of some form of national government service training for 18-year-olds or 19-year-olds. This would not necessarily be military training, he said.

'Last Man' Drinks Prize Wine In Toast To Buddies Of WWI

WALHALLA, S.C. (AP) — Harry Fayonsky, who outlived 12 fellow World War I veterans to win a bottle of 1937 California Tokay wine, has tasted his prize and pronounced it: "Not too bad."

Fayonsky, 79-year-old survivor of Walhalla's "Last Man's Club" sipped the wine from a shot glass Friday as friends and relatives of departed club members looked on and laughed a little.

The club was formed in 1937 by the late Sam Pitchford. It had 15 members, all veterans who made a habit of defying bad luck by meeting on the 13th day of the month, paying 13 cents dues per month and keeping a black cat as mascot.

The dues were used to pay for wreaths at the funerals of deceased club members.

Fayonsky, who coincidentally was the keeper of the wine, said on Friday that he never thought he would be the one to claim it. The bottle of slightly cloudy, acidic Tokay became his last week on the death of his good friend, Benjamin Todd.

"In a way I feel good, and in a way I feel badly," Fayonsky said in an interview. "I just cannot be too happy about this because of the memories of my good friends who have gone on."

Fayonsky said he had waited more than a week to open the wine out of respect for Todd. He read a toast which he had written to those who gathered for the opening of the prize:

"Following the wishes of my departed friends, I will now open this bottle of wine. With sorrow and thanks, I toast my 12 lifelong friends whom I'll never forget."

The club's meetings had fallen off after age began to catch up with the survivors.

Economy Overhaul Proposed By Sadat

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat called Sunday for drastic changes in Egypt's economic structure in the wake of bloody riots last week that left at least 77 persons dead.

Sadat asked the government to find other means for balancing the budget deficit instead of the food price increases that sparked the rioting, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said.

At the same time, the agency reported, Sadat said there should be no reduction in military expenditures.

The Egyptian leader's remarks came at the end of two days of consultations with his top political and military advisers.

During the disorders in Cairo, Alexandria and other cities, rioters ransacked nightclubs and shops and attacked police stations.

Sadat later suspended the price hikes.

The news agency said Sadat conceded that the angry reaction to the price increases was understandable because the hikes represented a heavy burden on the poor. But he also accused unnamed elements of exploiting the masses to resort to force, according to the agency.

An earlier statement by the Interior Ministry said Egypt's outlawed Communist party was an agitator in the disturbances.

Excess Freedom 'Unhealthy' For Lebanon Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — (Censored) A footnote from Premier Salim el Hoss on press freedom: too much freedom is unhealthy for the Lebanese press.

"Unbridled freedom is a luxury that we cannot afford to grant the press under existing conditions. The press was partly responsible for Lebanon's tragedy. And I don't think the press will ever be the same again," Hoss declared in a televised interview Saturday night.

He accused Lebanese organs of disturbing Lebanon's relations with Arab and foreign powers and undermining stability at home.

"Censorship was deemed inevitable. It can be therapeutic. It might be tough at the present, but this was necessitated by the grim conditions we are living in," he said.

Hoss also put part of the blame on loose prewar economic and political conditions. But he insisted the press cannot be given a clean bill of health.

He conceded a new charter might serve as a better guide for the country's press, and censorship might be relaxed if future security conditions permit this.

But he categorically ruled out chances of a return to prewar conditions when the press was "used as a platform for slandering and undermining the country's vital interests."

Some newspapers were funded by other Arab nations to reflect certain policy trends. These made Lebanon a free but turbulent stage where bitter inter-Arab propaganda was fought.

Seven dailies and one weekly were closed briefly for "security reasons" after the 19-month civil war. They reopened earlier this month when their publishers pledged to abide by censorship.

But several English-language publications have shifted to London, Paris and Nicosia to escape censors' thick red pencils. The publisher of an Arabic-language magazine is said to be planning to operate from a base in Paris and distribute in Arab countries.

At the peak of their freedom, Lebanese publishers issued more than 40 daily newspapers and weekly magazines. They employed more than 15,000 persons. Now, 17 newspapers and magazines are publishing. Many reporters and printing workers are out of jobs.

FOR BILKING BANK

Wealthy Swindler Jailed

By LEE STROBEL
Chicago Tribune

A glib Miami man with a guaranteed annual income of $100,000 has been sentenced to four years in prison for swindling Exchange National Bank of Chicago out of nearly $1 million.

Robert J. Ferguson, 49, nicknamed "the counterfeit millionaire" by federal prosecutors, was sentenced to two consecutive terms of two years each and was ordered to pay restitution.

Ferguson, who comes from a family of multimillionaires, was convicted last month of using counterfeit stock certificates and a phony will to get $978,634 in the form of loans, drafts, and letters of credit from the bank between 1972 and 1975.

Documents show that Ferguson, who receives his annual income from several family trusts, is fond of buying yachts, airplanes, foreign sports cars, and houses with swimming pools and tennis courts.

"Not content with the comfortable life his trust income could provide, Ferguson has lived the life of a millionaire by defrauding others," Suzanne Conlon, an assistant U.S. attorney told Judge Prentice H. Marshall of the District Court at the sentencing hearing.

"The only work he has seriously engaged in over the past several years is defrauding banks," she said.

Marshall said Ferguson bil-

antly defrauded the bank "for no reason other than personal comfort and ego. There are no mitigating circumstances — none."

Marshall also fined Ferguson $23,000 and sentenced him to five years probation after he completes his prison term. Despite objections from Ferguson's attorney, Raymond Smith, Marshall ordered deputies to lock up Ferguson immediately.

"I can't honestly stand before you and say there's any excuse for this," Ferguson told Marshall before sentencing.

Ferguson pleaded guilty to two charges of submitting false financial statements to the bank and then was found guilty by Marshall of numerous mail and wire fraud charges.

As part of the scheme, Ferguson produced bogus stock certificates and a phony will to convince the bank he owned $2.7 million in a family company and was to receive $2.4 million on the death of his uncle.

Among other claims, he told the banks he owned millions of dollars worth of Danish ships and claimed he received $480,000 in annual income from the fleet.

"I think he's relieved he was caught," Smith said.

Carter May Spend $5 Billion On Jobs

NEW YORK (AP) - The economic recovery package being prepared by the Carter administration will contain about $5 billion in jobs and training programs, F. Ray Marshall, the labor secretary-designate, said Sunday.

Marshall also declared on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" program that the dimensions of the jobs program that he put forward was accepted by President Carter.

He said the package still was being worked out and he could not say that a tax-cut envisioned in it would be the $11 billion that has been mentioned.

As now anticipated, the program would increase government employment from approximately 310,000 jobs now to about 725,000 by the end of 1978. In job training, Marshall expected the numbers to increase from the current 655,000 to more than one million.

Marshall said he wanted "to correct one impression. ... Many people think President Carter did not give me all that I asked for in terms of public service employment and training programs in that recovery package."

"The contrary is the case, and when I was reported as having said I was disappointed, what I meant was that when we studied carefully how much we could reasonably manage in terms of public service employment and training slots, it was a good bit less than I had hoped it would be when we started out."

He said he believes creating jobs rather than cutting taxes is the best way to reduce unemployment, but the size of the jobs program settled on was as big as could be managed effectively and produce results.

He said the entire recovery package was designed "not to overstimulate the economy but stimulate it enough to get consumer and business confidence that we are going to proceed in a sound and orderly fashion."

He said he favored apprenticeship training as the best vehicle for bringing unemployed and unprepared young persons into the job market.

Increasing productivity also should have a high priority, he said. As for immediate increases, he said, "The outlook is not as bright as I'd like it to be, but certainly we cannot predict the future from the slow growth during this quarter that we've just gone through."

He said he did not believe unions were unreasonably resisting apprenticeship programs.

"Organized labor strongly supports apprenticeship programs," he declared. "They know it is meaningful training. ... An apprentice-training journeyman is less likely to be unemployed, more likely to be upgraded faster, learn the trade faster and be more productive."

Resistance comes, he said, when unions believe they will be forced to take 100 apprentices in situations where there is room for only 10 or if they think standards are being lowered or if their members are heavily unemployed already.

"What we need is to expand in areas where apprenticeship is not now commonly used ... and not concentrate on those that are relatively saturated now," he said.

Demos Divided In Contest To Succeed Young

ATLANTA (AP) - Fragmentation of a coalition that helped make Andrew Young the first black congressman from the Deep South since Reconstruction could return his seat in Congress to a white Republican.

When Young defeated conservative Republican Rep. Fletcher Thompson in 1972 with the support of the poor - both black and white - and progressives - both Democratic and Republican - he called the era one of "new politics in the South beyond racism."

But several leaders of the coalition that elected Young are among the 10 Democrats and two Republicans competing to represent Georgia's 5th District, which includes Atlanta and its northern suburbs, after Young's expected confirmation as U.N. ambassador.

The candidacy of several blacks and liberals may split the vote and throw the election to Republican Paul D. Coverdell, state Senate minority leader, many political observers say.

Among Democrats running for the post are the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; Marjorie C. Thurman, state Democratic chairman, and John Lewis, former head of Atlanta's Voter Education Project.

The field may thin out after Gov. George Busbee sets a date for a special election after Young is confirmed, but it now also includes J.E. "Billy" McKinney, a black state legislator, and Wyche Fowler, president of the Atlanta City Council.

"It's a full field of Democrats, and that can only help the Republicans," said Mrs. Thurman.

She also said that Atlanta's black leaders are "overly concerned with color rather than representation" and that insistence on a black successor to Young may result in Coverdell's election.

"It would be a tragedy for not only black people, but for the city of Atlanta if we lose this particular seat in the House," said Abernathy. "We only have 17 blacks in the House and if we lost this, that would make it 16 out of 435."

Republicans see the election as a chance to regain a congressional seat which they feel was stolen from them by a reapportionment plan sponsored by Democrats.

A predominantly white, and largely conservative, area was cut out of the 5th District when it was redrawn in 1970.

The racial composition of the district is now about 40 per cent black and 60 per cent white, Mrs. Thurman said. Young has made no public endorsement of any candidate.

"He has too many friends running in the race," Mrs. Thurman said.

It's surprising how many times clearance sale signs go up at the same time your checking account balance goes down. A little planning can take care of this once and for all.

To keep from running out of cash, simply walk into the nearest office of Lloyds Bank and ask for a No-bounce Account application. We have nearly 100 convenient locations throughout California.

Once your No-bounce Account is approved, you can write checks up to your established limit without having to worry about getting caught with your balance down. It's like writing yourself a loan, anytime and anyplace. You also receive a No-bounce card which guarantees checks up to $100. It is especially handy when you need extra cash in a hurry.

For larger purchases, like a car, recreational vehicle, or swimming pool, you might want to apply for a direct loan. A larger loan over a long period of time could mean a lower interest rate and smaller payments.

Success Of Gandhi's Iron Rule Debated

By MYRON L. BELKIND
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — When Prime Minister Indira Gandhi assumed emergency powers on the morning of June 26, 1975, opponents charged she was laying the foundation for dictatorial rule. But she called the measures "shock therapy" to save India and its 610 million people.

News Analysis

Pointing mainly now to economic improvements she says her therapy worked and it is time to start dismantling the emergency powers and hold elections. The opponents contend the improvements could have come without emergency powers under which civil liberties were suspended and political opponents went to jail. They also maintain that Indian democracy has been harmed.

Mrs. Gandhi announced last week that elections for a new Parliament would be held in March "to reaffirm the power of the people and to uphold the fair name of India as a land committed to the path of reconciliation, peace and progress."

"Anyone can see that today the nation is more healthy, efficient and dynamic than it has been for a long time," she said.

"Our people have shaken off the sense of defeatism and gloom. There is a new pride in being Indian. Indeed, it can be said that in the year just completed, the nation has rediscovered its sense of purpose and its potential strength."

The strength cited by Mrs. Gandhi is derided primarily from the economy, which was stagnant before the emergency but which showed significant improvement in the past year while more developed countries saw their economic problems worsen.

To back up Mrs. Gandhi's contention, government officials cite a record grain crop of 118 million tons last year, a record buffer food stock of 68 million tons, record foreign exchange reserves of $3 billion, a 60 per cent jump in industrial production, a 33 per cent increase in exports and a money-saving 10 per cent drop in imports.

The government also boasts of having considerably reduced work stoppages through a ban on strikes, and it also claims to have virtually wiped out black-marketeering and smuggling through the large-scale arrests of persons accused of economic crimes.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Gandhi's critics argue that the improvement in the economy could have been carried out even before the emergency — without suspending civil liberties, jailing political opponents and imposing news censorship — if she had exhibited stronger leadership during her first nine years in office.

Her opponents also say that the main reason for the improvement in the economy was the record grain harvest which they contend was brought about primarily by good rains, not any new government policies.

But critics and supporters alike give Mrs. Gandhi's government credit for using the emergency to implement a family planning program that has achieved results for the first time since independence. In the past this had been considered too politically risky in a country where social customs have stressed large families.

The main emphasis has been on sterilization and the government announced last week that seven million persons were sterilized in the first seven months of the 1976-77 fiscal year, against a target of 4.3 million for the entire year.

But the government has been hurt by scattered riots in areas where local authorities have been blamed for adopting compulsion to achieve large numbers of sterilizations.

Mrs. Gandhi complained in a speech last week that "unimaginative and ham-handed methods are sometimes adopted to achieve targets."

To opposition leaders, many of whom spent the emergency in jail, discussions about improvement of the economy are off the mark.

They say that the country should judge Mrs. Gandhi for what she has done to alter the political system through various measures that will remain law even after the emergency is lifted.

They cite the constitutional amendment adopted by Parliament last November to increase the powers of the executive branch and reduce some of the powers of the judiciary. They also cite a press bill that they claim amounts to permanent censorship by barring publication of items the government considers objectionable.

"But the greatest damage from the emergency is the creation of an atmosphere of fear which pervades everywhere, even in the ruling Congress party," says an 80-year-old former prime minister, Morarji Desai, a prominent opposition politician.

Desai said he thought that private businessmen and industrialists, for example, would be reluctant to contribute to the opposition campaign for fear that they would be victimized after the election in Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party is returned to leadership.

For Mrs. Gandhi, the election campaign could have some risks, although it has the best organization and the opposition has been unable to carry out normal activities for the past 19 months, some experts say.

The main risk is that her own party has developed serious rivalries in the past year, between its left and right wings, and between the old guard generation that helped fight for independence and the youth wing led by Mrs. Gandhi's 30-year-old son, Sanjay.

Gandhi Critic Calls Election 'A Sham'

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Ailing opposition leader Jayaprakash Narayan said Sunday that India's first post-emergency election in March will be "nothing less than a choice between democracy and dictatorship" and voters should oust Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party from power.

Narayan led the national protest movement that provoked Mrs. Gandhi to declare in 1975 the national emergency that she recently lifted. In a press statement, he expressed doubt whether the first general election since 1971 would be free and fair, as pledged by Mrs. Gandhi.

"The opposition parties have been given hardly any time to reorganize their shattered party cadre, raise funds and make the extensive arrangements required to fight elections in this vast land with the biggest electorate in the world," Narayan said.

Narayan, who spent the first five months of the 19-month emergency in jail, said the opposition parties are hampered by what he described as the slow pace in the release of political workers still in detention and government control of the only radio and television network.

"I have fears this election will just be a sham," he told reporters a day after arriving here from his native Bihar state to map campaign strategy with other opposition leaders.

"All that has happened since June 26, 1975, shows that the choice is nothing less than between democracy and a fascist type of dictatorship," he said. Mrs. Gandhi declared emergency rule on that date, following her conviction on charges of corrupt campaign practices.

"The ruling Congress party, which has been guilty of murdering democracy, of putting thousands of innocent citizens behind the bars and of other undemocratic acts should never be elected to power again," Narayan continued.

"This is my advice to the Indian people."

Narayan said that his failing kidneys, which require him to walk with a cane and take treatments three times a week, would limit his own role in the campaign.

Narayan's statement was read at a news conference he attended along with leaders of the Janta, the newly-merged four major non-Communist parties. The Janta, which stands for people, is headed by former Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai.

Announcing the decision to hold elections, Mrs. Gandhi promised last week that her government would permit "legitimate" political activity during the campaign.

Following her pledge, the government ordered the release of political prisoners, lifted press censorship and ended its ban on public rallies. About 600 persons have been released in the past three days, according to reports received here, but opposition leaders estimated there were still nearly 10,000 rank-and-file workers in jail around the country. The government has never disclosed how many persons were detained during the emergency.

Even Lambasted Officials Attend Rites For 'Capitol Muckraker'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Capitol picketer Robert Simpson was given a warm farewell Sunday by some of the same people — including Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. — he used to lambast in his placards.

The memorial services were in the same church where he once waved a sign which cursed Unitarians.

Simpson, who proclaimed himself "muckraker-in-chief at the capitol," died Thursday at age 96. He had been admitted to the hospital the previous Sunday after accidentally scalding himself in a bathub.

Among the estimated 150 persons attending the services at the First Unitarian Universalist Church were a four-member honor guard from the state police force, which had arrested Simpson more than 300 times, by his count, until the anti-picketing law was repealed.

Simpson began waving his salty placards about 10 years ago in protest against a six-month forced stay in a mental hospital. He was freed when a jury found him to be sane.

INSOMNIACS CAN SLEEP SOUNDLY

DR. CARL REMELIN

"IF I COULD ONLY SLEEP!"

This statement is sufficient most of the time to stamp a case of "Insomnia" and with it the train of other symptoms that follow. According to Dr. Carl E. Remelin, D.C. of the Remelin Chiropractic Office, insomnia is basically a condition which prevents the nervous system from relaxing.

"While severe pressures on nerves can produce insomnia," says Dr. Remelin, D.C. "usually the condition is one of long standing. What generally happens," he states, "is that a person starts building to a severe case of insomnia. First there are occasional restless, sleepless nights. Then the problem begins to compound itself. A person begins to be worn out during the day thus finding his work harder and harder to accomplish. This in itself exerts further nerve pressure and sleep becomes more difficult, insomnia more prevalent.

"Of course," adds Dr. Remelin, D.C. "the general health is affected by the lack of sleep, tense daytime activity, etc. An insomniac has a brutal path ahead of him unless he has the original cause of his troubles corrected."

Dr. Remelin, D.C. does not advocate sleep producing drugs in most cases. "After all," he says, "they are generally habit forming and addiction brings a tolerance as often as not". In other words, persons who take sleeping tablets are usually only avoiding the inevitable.

"It's really a heartening experience to aid the person who suffers from severe and repeated attacks of insomnia. Their lives always seem to change dramatically, once their vitality has been restored through proper sleep," the Doctor relates.

"We look to the basic cause of the nervous tension that produces sleeplessness," says Dr. Remelin, D.C. "And correcting the cause of the nervousness, not only is sleep a desirable end, but also the sufferer finds his wakefulness a pleasure. Vim and vigor during the day is generally as important as rest during the night.

Dr. Remelin, D.C. urges insomniacs, both those suffering from current acute cases, and others who through nervous tension and other symptoms are building to real problems, to visit him at his Chiropractic office.

Note: Dr. Remelin maintains Chiropractic offices at 1505 W. Katella, Anaheim. (Telephone 535-7268.)

Warning Issued By U.S. On Using Mistletoe Tea

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department list of possible substitutes for coffee boiled into controversy over the weekend with the inclusion of mistletoe tea.

Despite the pleasant Christmas-season associations of the plant, experts said the plant is poisonous, particularly the berries.

But the question of danger from tea brewed from mistletoe leaves remained a question. Some experts said it was also dangerous, while others said no harmful effects had been noted from commercially prepared mistletoe tea.

Mistletoe was included in the list of coffee substitutes suggested by the Agriculture Department and reported over the weekend by The Associated Press.

This report led at least one television network to switch signals and begin warning consumers not to drink mistletoe tea.

NBC reported that "The Poison Control Center in New York advises us there have been deaths from eating mistletoe and deaths from drinking mistletoe tea. Mistletoe tea and berries are poisonous. NBC News regrets passing on this misinformation. We repeat: mistletoe is poisonous."

According to the Agriculture Department and the Food and Drug Administration the real problem is the berries — the possibility that someone might eat them or use them to make homebrew tea.

All commercial mistletoe teas are made from the leaves, and the USDA and FDA officials say they know of no complaints about commercially sold mistletoe tea.

A USDA official cautioned against persons using either the berries or leaves to make homebrew tea in view of the poison possibility.

American mistletoe is cited by health food reference books as a treatment for cholera and St. Vitus Dance. But the New York City Health Department's Poison Control Center lists it as a poison.

"The berries are deadly poison," said a spokesman for the center. "There seems to be some dispute on the leaves themselves. There are varying opinions but there have been deaths from eating the berries and from making tea from the berries."

The spokesman said, however, that he was not aware of any documented case of a fatality resulting from tea made from mistletoe leaves.

Jack Walden, a spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration, said he knew of no complaints from sales of commercial mistletoe tea and said that if there have been no reports of deleterious effects from a product, "we have every reason to believe it's safe."

James Duke, an herbologist with the Agriculture Department, added:

"Mistletoe has killed people when eaten in quantities. But caffeine (an ingredient in coffee) is poisonous, too, when eaten in quantity."

Other, less controversial, USDA suggestions as coffee substitutes included brewed flaxseed, bearberry, rose hips, horehound, rosemary, gentian root, yarrow and watercress.

Set your thermostat at 68° instead of 72° and save! If you're in the habit of keeping your thermostat at 72°, you're wasting money.

Because with a slight flick of the wrist to the left, you can move the needle to 68° And move your heating costs about 28% lower.

There are other ways to lower heating costs, too.

Properly insulate your attic. With proper insulation you can reduce heating costs substantially. You'll also save on air conditioning costs. Based on today's prices, properly insulating an attic in a typical house runs between $200 and $300.

And what better place to invest your money than in your own home? It's a sensible long-term investment. So call an insulation contractor.

Some more ways to lower heating costs and save energy. Lower your heat setting or turn it off when you're away from home. However, in areas where freezing may occur, a 40° thermostat setting is advisable.

Weather-strip your doors and windows. Close your draperies and curtains to keep heat in. Keep the fireplace damper closed as well as vents in rooms not being used. Make sure your filters are clean. Maybe they even need replacing.

Dirty return-air grilles and warm air ducts can cost you, too. And if you have electric radiant heating it will be worth your while when you are home to turn off thermostats in rooms not being used.

For a free conservation booklet on other ways to save energy, write "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

Rhodesians Promise Scorched Earth

By JOHN EDLIN

BINDURA, Rhodesia (AP) — Farmer Ian Ross stretched an arm towards his tobacco barns and said, "We'll blow the whole bloody lot up with dynamite if we don't get our way."

A few yards away, Ivor Richard, the British chairman of deadlocked Geneva talks on Rhodesia's future, was sipping tea in between puffs on a cigar.

Richard, who has been touring southern African capitals in an effort to revive the Geneva conference, encountered a mood of defiance as he met for lunch with Ross and other farmers from this district about 70 miles away from Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital.

The British envoy's mission is to get Prime Minister Ian Smith, head of Rhodesia's white minority government, and black nationalist leaders back at the conference to arrange a peaceful transition to black majority rule. The talks ended at Christmas time with no agreement on an interim biracial government.

Richard talked with the Rhodesian farmers over a lunch of prawns imported from Mozambique, where most of the black guerrillas fighting against Smith's regime are based.

What the farmers were seeking, Ross told reporters, was assurances about their own future and guarantees for their children also. They didn't get any.

Instead, Richard told the farmers they were to blame for denying the vote for so long to Rhodesia's 6.4 million blacks, who outnumber the nation's whites 20 to 1.

Following the luncheon, Richard said, "We had differences but there was no hostility. There was an exchange of views."

Several farmers among the 45 attending the lunch said they told Richard that his mission was impossible — that he couldn't hope to gain white support for a black government unacceptable to the whites.

"We can hold on to this country for years," said Ross, who recently was injured in a land mine explosion while on patrol as a police reservist in southeastern Rhodesia.

"But if you hand over to the terrorists (a term for black terrorists) then we'll take the scorched earth policy. We'll destroy everything and leave it to the blacks as it was before we came here and built the cities and the roads and everything else," Ross said.

Geoff Perleman, another farmer who spoke to Richard, said: "Look. The Brits (British) don't think we're prepared to fight it out. But we're not chicken. We'll fight for our rights as long as we figure they're not being guaranteed from outside."

"And if the big crunch comes — and we have to leave — then we'll be leaving as refugees like those from Angola and the Congo, with nothing. All we've got is here in the land."

Before the lunch, one farmer, Basil Kearns, said,

"I've got a revolver under here. And I've got a bullet with Richard's name on it."

Another farmer recounted later that when the luncheon began, feeling against Richard was running so strong that as the tables were being set one farmer remarked, "Make sure he's well away from anyone else. We'd hate to shoot the bloke next to him by mistake."

The meeting apparently helped to tone down somewhat the farmers' harsh attitude towards Richard. Peter Denton said later, "We're no wiser than we were, but we did have a good lunch."

Referring to Richard, Denton said, "He'll never change but, then, if he hasn't got anything for us to change for why should we change? We're just ordinary farmers who want to make sure our future is okay."

Jets To Turkey Deal Ironed Out

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — American and Turkish defense representatives have reached final agreement on the sale of 40 F4 Phantom jets to Turkey, an authoritative Turkish military source said Sunday.

The source said the Phantom order would have a total bill of $464 million, including spare parts. Of this, $123 million is to be paid from a $250 million military sales credit extended to Turkey under the 1976 and 1977 U.S. foreign aid bills, he said.

The rest is supposed to come from a U.S. military aid package totaling $1 billion promised over the next four years under a new defense cooperation pact signed last March. In return for this aid, Turkey has pledged to reactivate two dozen American military installations on its soil which were shut down in reprisal against an American arms embargo. The embargo was imposed because of Turkey's 1974 invasion of Cyprus.

However, the aid package still must be ratified by the U.S. Congress.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 25

Your birthday today: Serves mainly to upset comfortable habits you're falling into, stirs you up for a year-long scramble to get out of your current level of development into another. Projects undertaken now either last for short periods, bridging gaps to greater responsibility, or must be reorganized frequently. Be ready to move on short notice. Relationships are tenuous, not easy to confirm or intensify. Today's natives are unconventional, inventive, intrigued by new ideas.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: People merely mark time; hasty reactions won't help. Allow for delay in appointments, travel. Collect useless clutter, find profitable disposal for it.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Expect a combination of impatience and poor cooperation. Ignore irritations: save wear and tear on your nervous system, insure survival of future goodwill.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Everybody has a different theory about your money, how it should be spent. Look to see what they're doing or did lately with theirs, judge accordingly.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Errors, misunderstandings are the main crop of pilot projects, fliers. A long lane lacks a convenient turn. The problem is staying out of it to begin with.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Wade through petty rivalry of people you aren't too familiar with. Old friends know how to get to you. You're at their mercy momentarily; forgive them, go on.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Affinity for cycles of nature dictates keeping to fundamentals. If tracking down details is dissatisfying, stop to think why. Abstain from criticism.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Youngsters come between people who should be in close harmony. Step out of the picture pro tem. Let all find out what it means to get along without you.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Since today has no overriding force, you're tempted to supply it. Harsh words spoil an old relationship; be sure they're not yours or caused by your actions.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Unrealistic estimates upset judgment, make calculated risks too much so. Never mind other's urging. Whims stay with you long after you tire of them.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Your organizational drive blows everyone's tolerance. Any theory with you at its center is abandoned. Temperament has a field day, many a scapegoat, not just you.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You're better off if people cancel out while you still have freedom of movement. Take it lightly. They return on discovering what it's like elsewhere.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Use adequate but simple logic to defend your principles against distortive pressures. The more important your function, the tougher the resistance, dissent.

France's D'Estaing Huddles With Saudi Arabian Leaders

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing of France and King Khalid of Saudi Arabia talked for 40 minutes Sunday in the first formal session of the French president's state visit to the world's major exporter of oil.

The talks were attended by Crown Prince Fahd, who later met with Giscard d'Estaing for an hour on the subject of energy, a French spokesman said. He would not disclose whether any oil supply agreements were being arranged, but said the two leaders would continue their talks later.

The visit by the French president and several of his ministers to Saudi Arabia was attracting attention in the light of recent criticism in the West of France's decision to free Abu Daoud, suspected organizer of the Palestinian raid at the 1972 Munich Olympics, without waiting for West Germany's formal extradition request.

The subject of French arms sales to Saudi Arabia was not scheduled for discussion, nor was the suggested setting up of an Arab arms industry in Egypt, for which France has been mentioned as a provider of technical assistance and Saudi Arabia as a financier, the spokesman said.

Sunday activities included attendance by Giscard d'Estaing and the king at a horse race and a dinner in a tent in the desert.

The spokesman said Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud would meet Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud el Faisal to discuss the Middle East problem, the situation in the Red Sea developing from the French pullout from Djibouti, and the Euro-Arab and North-South dialogues.

NEUROTHLIPSIA AND YOU

Symptoms and Their Meaning With ...

Dr. A. N. Burpee, D.C.

The ratio of people suffering from neurothlipsia to those who know what it means is probably a thousand to one. It has become fashionable to call diseases by their proper medical term. To some it's a status symbol to have a problem with an exotic name. Unfortunately, it's sometimes misleading.

If you are nervous, irritable, suffer from frequent headaches, dizziness; experience pain in your neck, shoulders, arms, back and legs; or feel tightness in your chest, there's a good chance you have neurothlipsia. There's also a good chance you have a pinched nerve—essentially they are one and the same.

A pinched nerve, of course, is caused by a vertebral misalignment. Your spinal nerves that transmit the work directives from the spinal cord are protected by vertebrae. Often, falls, sprains, or faulty posture cause misalignment of these vertebrae and a pinched nerve results. All in all, it's apparent that no matter how fancy the name of the ailment, it can become a painful, or serious reminder that an individual serious reminder that an individual needs proper effective treatment and care.

Fortunately, modern chiropractic as practiced at Dr. Burpee's offices is known to be effective in the treatment of vertebral misalignment, thus relieving the painful effects of a pinched nerve. DO YOU HAVE A QUESTION? Call the Chiropractic Care and Information Bureau, 836-1190, and ask to speak to a Doctor of Chiropractic.

Treated daily at Burpee Chiropractic Offices are injuries resulting from home, work, auto or sports accidents, and spinal related health problems as headaches, neck, shoulder and arm pains, chest and stomach pains, and low back, hip and leg pains and sciatica. For an appointment to see if you can be helped by modern chiropractic care, CALL THE NUMBER IN YOUR AREA.

Pope Canonizes Spanish Nun

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI called Sunday for a "sincere brotherhood among all social classes" in Spain as he elevated to sainthood Rafaela Maria Porras y Ayllon, the Spanish-born founder of the Servants of the Sacred Heart.

Rafaela Maria's canonization in St. Peter's Basilica came 52 years after her death in Rome. It was the first ceremony of its kind this year. The canonization of Bishop John Neumann of Philadelphia, the first male saint from the United States, is scheduled on June 19.

In a speech in Spanish during the canonization mass the Pope expressed the hope that the new saint might help Spain to "achieve the graces the country seems more in need."

The new saint, beatified by Pope Pius XII in 1952, was born in 1850 in Pedro Abad, in the province of Cordoba. The youngest of 13 children of well-to-do parents, she made a vow of chastity at the age of 15 and with her sister Dolores dedicated her life to helping the needy.

Rafaela, who took the name of Maria of the Sacred Heart, and Dolores received official approval for their new congregation in 1886. Rafaela became the first superior general of the congregation and ran it for 66 years before turning over leadership to Dolores.

Rafaela then lived in her order's convent in Rome without any position of authority until her death in 1925.

Thirty cardinals, scores of prelates and about 60,000 other persons, many of them from Spain and Latin American countries where the congregation has houses and convents, attended the ceremony.

Even Burglar Protected By No-Knock Law

LOS ANGELES (AP) Patrolman Robert Freet thought he had a good arrest.

He had seen two men enter a building and followed them to an upstairs apartment. The apartment door had been pried open. Inside, a man was removing jewelry from a dresser and placing it on a bed next to a screwdriver. He fit the description reported in another burglary Freet had investigated 10 days earlier.

Freet went through the open door and arrested Hector Solario and another man. But he didn't knock, and Solario's 1974 conviction has been reversed.

The 2nd District Court of Appeals, in a decision written last Dec. 3, ruled that a motion to suppress evidence had been improperly denied in Solario's original trial. Freet, it said, had violated Section 844 of the California Penal Code, known as the "Knock and Notice" statute, which requires an officer to identify himself and announce his intentions before entering a private residence.

Freet, still on the force, cannot comment on a pending case.

Section 844 originally was meant to protect homeowners against illegal search and seizure. But the appellate court held that Solario, who pleaded guilty in April 1975 to second degree burglary after the suppression motion was denied, also enjoyed those rights "vicariously."

Freet's seizure of the jewelry and screwdriver as evidence was unlawful, it held, even though it was the rights of the apartment's occupant, Jose Macias, not Solario's, that had been violated.

The state attorney general has appealed the reversal and the case is now before the California Supreme Court. The attorneys involved in the appeal decline comment, but the matter has drawn the attention of the California District Attorneys Association, which filed a friend of the court brief in support of the attorney general.

"The court of appeal in Solario has taken a useful and necessary rule of law (Section 844), and turned it into a needless and absurd limitation upon the reasonable and necessary actions of a police officer," said Barry Levy, who wrote the CDAA's friend of the court brief.

Finally, Vantage Longs.

The first long cigarette to bring good taste to low-tar smoking.

Like a lot of smokers you may like the idea of a longer cigarette. You may also want low tar.

But longer cigarettes usually have more tar. Well, Vantage just wouldn't go along with that.

So we worked. Until we could perfect a longer cigarette with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar. Not the lowest long cigarette you can find. But very possibly the lowest that you will enjoy.

New Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.

That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage Longs. Never before has there been a long cigarette quite like it.

U.S. CITIZENSHIP

Dear Trouble Shooter

Thanks to that big wave of your Stetson back in September, our citizenship class grew from just nine to 100 people. This group has called itself "The Trouble Shooter Gang," and, as such, had a good time, learned a lot and became prepared to get United States citizenship.

As this semester draws to a close, it's time to inform anybody else who is a "green card" carrying legal resident alien that the Alamitos Adult Center on Dale (near Lampson) in Garden Grove is again willing to give all help in attaining U.S. citizenship. It doesn't cost a thing, and folks from anywhere are welcome. We meet one evening a week from 7 to about 9:45 p.m., Monday or Wednesday.

We've got the forms needed. We'll do the fingerprinting and we know how to get things going until the goal is reached and folks are registered to vote. (We haven't lost an applicant in more than 1,100 so far!)

For information, all folks need to do is call the Alamitos Adult School office at 638-6361.

C.J.W.

Garden Grove
The Trouble Shooter hopes folks who know "green card" carrying legal resident aliens will tell them about your citizenship class, podnah.

He understands that your "Trouble Shooter Gang" has been a great group. They've supported Danny Davey's Indian projects with clothing, food and money, and have responded generously to other community needs.

Since the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization office in Los Angeles is extremely busy and the process takes some time, the sooner application forms are filled out, the sooner the processing is done. All legal aliens, of course, are required to report their current address at their nearest post office some time this month.

DANCE ROOM

Dear Trouble Shooter

We are five adult couples comprising a costumed folk dancing exhibition group. We do not charge for our exhibitions. We just enjoy performing for people and making them happy. We are available for worthy causes.

We need an uncarpeted room, approximately 25 by 30 ft. or larger, for rehearsals on Sunday or Monday evenings. Our rehearsals last about two hours.

We neither drink nor smoke and we respect property.

Do you suppose there is someone in the north, central or western area of Orange County who could share some space with us at no charge?

COFFEE BREAK

Dear Trouble Shooter

Everybody knew the good old American ingenuity would come to our rescue in this coffee situation. Jerry Huggins' directions for "Hard Time Coffee" printed in a recent edition of The Register is really great!

We couldn't find the "malt-ing barley" he recommended, but found a big supply of "pearled barley" at Nutrition Village, 320 N. Euclid, Fullerton. They had reduced the price to 19 cents per lb.

We roasted it like Huggins recommended (400 degrees for about 45 minutes, got it quite dark in color, then simmered a tablespoon in three cups of water until it got quite rich looking. We didn't even grind it. It tastes wonderful. Without even adding the coffee to it, it was good.

Using half of the roasted barley and half coffee, you'd hardly know it wasn't all coffee.

We are going to gradually reduce the amount of coffee we use and go on straight roasted barley for our hot drink. We'll save a lot of money and it's better for our health.

(P.S. One pound of pearled barley, after it's roasted, fills a 1-lb. coffee can only half full, but it goes a lot further than you'd think.)

(You can boil the barley a second time and get more nice brown delicious beverage.)

H.M.

Buenos Park

The Trouble Shooter reckons a lot of folks will be interested in your enthusiastic letter, Ma'am. Thank you for writing.

NURSING DATA

Dear Trouble Shooter

I have about 15 years of nursing journals (A.J.N. and R.N.). I think they might be of great interest to one of your readers.

I'll give them to someone who's willing to pick them up. Please ask those who are interested to write you a note and please forward the letters to me.

K.K.

To speed things along, let's ask folks to write the words "Nursing Journals" on their outer envelope and to be sure to include a phone number where you can reach them.

BOAT SAFETY

Dear Trouble Shooter

Boats are easy to come by for anyone who has the money for the down payment. Accidents are easier for the novice skipper who hoists his new boat into the water and takes off.

If this person were aware that there is an organization that teaches basic boating, free of charge, I am sure he would avail himself of the opportunity of attending this class.

I am public relations officer for the SANTANA Power Squadron. My job is to make the public aware of the "when" and "where" of these classes. Our "bag" is boating for pleasure, power or sail, and we offer free boating classes, to the public, 12 years and older.

We do not make any money on these classes. On the contrary, we spend many thousands of dollars providing these classes.

We believe in safe boating, and we feel that by providing these classes taught by experienced skippers that new boat owners will learn what safe boating is.

Please tell your readers when our next classes begin.

D.B.H.

Orange

Classes will begin Jan. 31 at El Dorado High School, 1651 N. Valencia, Placentia; Feb. 1 at Magnolia High School, 2430 W. Ball Rd., Anaheim; Feb. 2 at Ladera Vista Junior High School, 1700 E. Wilshire, Fullerton; Feb. 2 at Brea Olinda High School, 803 E. Birch, Brea.

All classes start at 7:30 p.m., are taught by experienced skippers, free of charge and are designed to teach boating skills essential for safety on the water. There are some 12 evening lecture sessions, followed by an examination. A certificate of completion is issued to those achieving a passing grade on the exam.

Classes deal with handling a boat under normal conditions, handling under adverse condition, seamanship and common emergencies, "rules of the road," aids to navigation, compass and chart familiarization, running lights and equipment, boat trailering, river boating and mariner's compass and piloting.

VALUABLE BOOK?

Dear Trouble Shooter

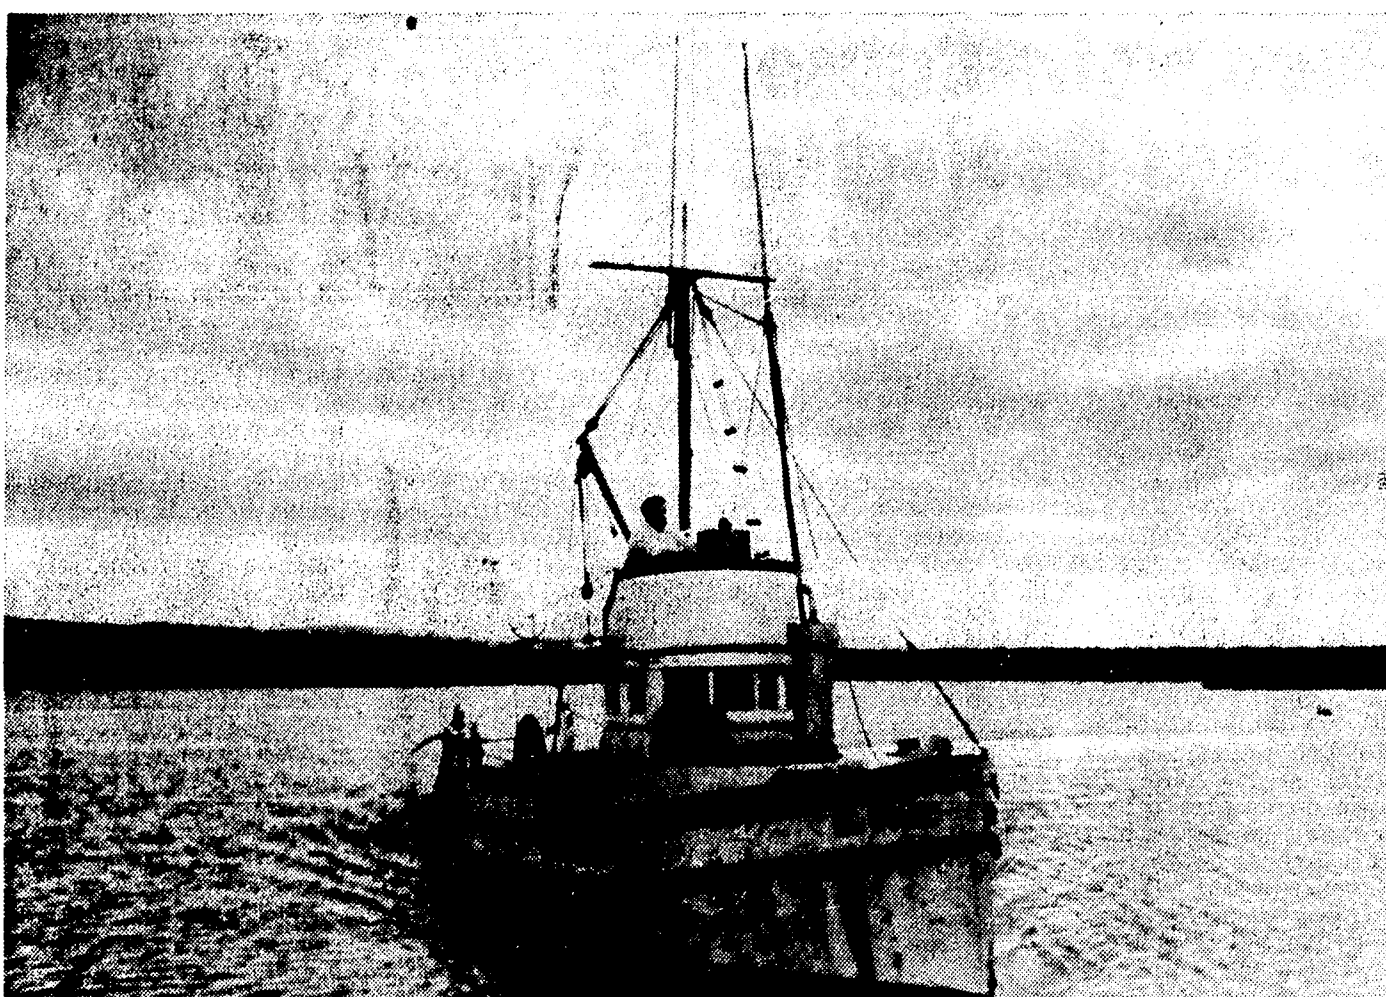

In a recent edition of the Parade magazine supplement to The Register, there was a story that said a copy of "Gone With the Wind" printed in May 1936 was valued at $2,500. I have a copy printed in 1936 but can't find a month. Where can I write to find out if the book I have is a valuable one?

TONY DISCALA EASES HIS FISHING BOAT, 'EL SOLE,' OUT OF DANA POINT HARBOR

Lure Of The Sea Runs Strong Despite Diminishing Catches

By STAN WULFF
Register Staff Writer

DANA POINT — A cold wind swept from the hills out over the coastline, painting whitecaps on the choppy waves as "El Sole," an old fan-tail commercial fishing boat, chugged out of the harbor.

"There's a storm out there somewhere," said skipper Tony DiScala, 43, bearded and barrel-chested, eyeing the heaving swells and the blue-gray cloud front on the horizon. Gripped by the waves, the 33-foot vessel built in 1919 in San Pedro pitched and rolled as it was pushed by its diesel engine towards the fishing nets a mile off shore.

DiScala was delighted. "Maybe we'll be lucky today," he said. "The change in weather makes the fish move about." Fishing hasn't been good this winter.

"It's been very frustrating," said DiScala. There are good and bad seasons and this had been a bad one. "You're truly at the mercy of the elements. In a way it's like farming, except you don't get subsidies from the government. The little, independent fisherman like me is out there all by himself. If you don't make money one year, you're on your own. It's a cold world."

It was indeed a chilly morning. The temperature was around 45 degrees.

Only minutes before, DiScala had been at a coffee shop sipping hot coffee and eating a hearty breakfast of sausage and eggs in the company of other commercial fishermen like Gene Stivers, Bob Lombard and house builder "Spanky" Auger who said he quit fishing because there wasn't enough money in it.

For DiScala, fishing has been his life and the only thing he says he knows enough about to make a living.

Born in Connecticut of parents who immigrated from Italy, DiScala came with the family to California in 1942. From San Pedro his father sailed a fishing boat and that's where Tony learned the business.

From San Pedro he went to San Diego where he bought the old "El Sole" in 1964 for $6,500. "It's a good boat," he said. "It was owned successively by four San Pedro fishing families. They don't make boats like this anymore. The engine is so economical that my annual fuel bills runs to only $300. That's less than half what others pay."

"The 'El Sole' is today probably worth more as an antique. I wouldn't sell it for less than $15,000. But I'll probably keep it and retire on it some day," he said.

From San Diego he moved to Oceanside where he and his wife Dian operated a fish market. They have two children, Jennifer, 5, and Anthony, 6.

It was less than a year ago that they sold their market in Oceanside and moved to Dana Point where they opened the Dana Wharf Fish Market, only a few paces from the commercial fishing docks.

"The way it's going," said DiScala, "I'll probably make more money on the market than on fishing." His own daily catch is only part of the fresh fish offered at the market.

"Fishing is not what it used to be in the 50s when you could still make a lot of money."

Dear Abby

Key To Problem Fits Family Car

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As many others have said, I never thought I'd be writing a letter to Dear Abby, but I must confess, I don't know where to turn.

Our 17-year-old son has become interested in a girl. We've always wanted him to have girlfriends, but this one might not be good for him. A week ago Saturday, on their first date, they went to a movie. (We let him use the family car.) He came home at 7:45 Sunday morning!

He said that after the movie, he went to her house to watch television and they both fell asleep. Last Saturday night he went out at 7 p.m. and came home at 4:30 Sunday morning.

Wouldn't you say that something is drastically wrong with a mother who would allow a 15-year-old girl to keep such hours?

Any advice his father and I give him causes nothing but back talk. We've always had a good relationship with our son until now. What do you suggest?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: I suggest that his father have a man-to-man talk with the boy. Of course the girl's parents should place some restrictions on her with regard to the hours she keeps, but since they do not (or she ignores them), it's up to you to put some on your son. Tell him what time you want him home, and if he doesn't comply, the key to the situation is the one that fits the car.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of the following situation:

When friends just drop in, should the hostess excuse herself and put on a pot of coffee, or get a cold drink and serve it with a sandwich, cake, cookies or whatever she has on hand? Or should she ask her guests if they would like a hot drink, a cold one or a sandwich?

My husband and I are on opposite sides of this argument and need you to settle it for us.

MILLIE IN MARYLAND

DEAR MILLIE: The gracious hostess does not inquire. She acts. (P.S. Drop-in visitors should not expect a feed-in.)

DEAR ABBY: For the last 12 years I have gone to the same hairdresser once a week for a shampoo and set. It now costs $6 plus a dollar tip and the cost of parking. Every Christmas I have given my hairdresser a lovely gift, carefully chosen—something I would like to receive myself.

It just occurred to me, Abby, that inasmuch as I tip my hairdresser every week, SHE (or the owner) should be giving ME a small present at Christmas in appreciation of my business.

Next year should I ask, "Which would you prefer, a tip every week or a nice Christmas present?"

I would appreciate your opinion and those of your readers and hairdressers.

TIRED OF GIVING

DEAR TIRED: Don't ask. Those who perform personal services NEED tips, but feeling as you do, skip the Christmas gift.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Reservoirs Cause Quakes-Geologists

MENLO PARK (AP) — The frequency of earthquakes around dams may be related to the height of water behind them, two government geologists say.

"There is no question about it — reservoirs trigger earthquakes," said Robert Mark of the U.S. Geological Survey office here. "We felt this information in the report was of sufficient importance that it should be in the public domain. That's why we published it."

Mark and fellow researcher Desiree Stuart-Alexander said last week that they found that of 19 dams ranging from 150 meters to 250 meters in height, five have been shaken by earthquakes greater than 3.0 on the Richter Scale.

Some earthquake scientists have theorized that the weight of millions of tons of water exerts massive pressure on the fault, causing it to shift and creating an earthquake. Others have theorized that quakes are caused by water forcing its way into the pores of rocks, thus weakening rocks beneath reservoirs.

The USGS researchers told the San Francisco Examiner that they reported their findings late last year, but an official USGS announcement of the report was canceled by officials in Washington, D.C.

Included in the data was the Aug. 1, 1975, earthquake that heavily damaged Oroville, which sits just below the mammoth earthen Oroville Dam on the Feather River. That tremor registered 6.1 on the Richter Scale on a fault long considered inactive.

New data collected after the Oroville shock is prompting officials to have an Oakland consulting firm reevaluate the $47-million Auburn Dam project and the similarly priced New Melones Dam for earthquake safety.

Donald Alexander, project director for the Auburn Dam, said the Bureau of Reclamation is adding 30 per cent more concrete to the dam's foundation in anticipation of expected results of earthquake safety studies.

"The places you build high dams are also places where there are often earthquakes," Devine said.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Every year you clergymen and teachers might improve on this sketchy outline of my Bicentennial Address. For each new crop of children must be indoctrinated afresh, or liberty will vanish from America!

CASE K-612: On our Bicentennial July 4th, I was asked to speak at a union church service at 9 A.M. in a beautiful city park.

And I stressed a few points that clergymen and other speakers could easily improve upon for annual salutes to our great Republic and its brave founders.

So I mentioned that our Republic is unique in the history of all governments!

For in the famous Declaration of Independence we pay tribute to Deity as the source of our liberties, saying that we are "endowed by our Creator with certain unalienable rights."

Other governments pay allegiance to kings or dictators and look to them for such limited concessions as the despots wish to let their subjects enjoy. But we salute God Almighty as the true source of our freedoms!

And that word "unalienable" means "not capable of being surrendered or transferred."

Which shows that our Founding Fathers believed God implanted such innate liberties in us, as He did the natural peacemaker in our hearts!

And I also explained why North America has far outdistanced South America in world leadership, invention, education, churches and agriculture!

For the Pilgrims, Puritans, Quakers and the Catholics who settled at Baltimore, made their perilous journeys in search of freedom to worship God.

They were thus seeking God, not "gold!"

Alas, the European explorers of Central and South America greedily sought gold and killed thousands of natives, often torturing them sadistically to find where they might loot the Indians' supply of that yellow metal.

There is thus a whole of a difference between "God" vs. "Gold" as a motivator of the two continents in our Western Hemisphere!

In seeking a new land, away from Europe's dictatorial despots, our pioneers thus asserted their determination to gain "independence" from temporal monarchs.

But meanwhile affirmed their "dependence" on Divine Providence.

And I concluded my 30-minute address by citing the remarks of a Confederate Captain, who came up to his Colonel after a big victory for the South, saying:

"Colonel, we certainly slaughtered the Yanks today, didn't we?"

"We're soon going to win the war, eh?" the Captain gleefully went on.

But the Colonel shook his head.

"Why, Colonel," the Captain added, incredulously, "this is the third battle we've won in a row!"

The Colonel looked at him gravely and replied:

"Captain, we have won these battles but we can't win the war, for when men like that, you can never defeat them."

And the Colonel pointed his arm toward the distant hills, whence came this familiar lyric from the "Battle Hymn Of The Republic":

"As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free..."

Our famous Founding Fathers were acting upon that same invincible theme when they drafted the Declaration of Independence.

And the starving, half frozen boys at Valley Forge were doing likewise!

LOW BACK AND LARGE INTESTINE PROBLEMS

CASE NO. 1804

I heard Dr. Gary Couture speak at a health symposium and then attended a series of free lectures at his office. What I learned there made me aware of my abdominal bulge and lack of energy. A barium x-ray of my large intestine (colon) showed a prolapse, constriction, kinks, parasites, and a toxic distended condition. The constriction was so severe it could have necessitated colon surgery.

After 24 colon therapy (water and oxygen) treatments, the colon was restored to normal function. I might add I had a weight loss from 205 to 185 pounds.

I also had x-rays done on my spinal column and the x-rays indicated that I had a pinched nerve in the low back. Through a series of chiropractic adjustments, the side pain, the pain in my low back are gone, and my general health is phenomenal.

One word describes my experience — miraculous. I advise anybody who has a large intestine problem, or spinal problem, to have consultation and become a patient at the Couture chiropractic offices.

BACKGROUND SKETCHES OF CARTER'S CABINET

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are thumbnail sketches of President Carter's Cabinet members and some remarks Carter made about them at their swearing-in ceremony Sunday:

Cyrus R. Vance — secretary of state; expected to end the center-stage shuttle diplomacy practiced by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger; served in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations as general counsel of the Defense Department, Army secretary and deputy defense secretary. "He got closest to the most unanimous recommendation of any," Carter said.

W. Michael Blumenthal — secretary of treasury; a former federal trade negotiator and deputy assistant secretary of state for economic affairs; resigned as president and chief executive officer of the Bendix Corp. to enter government service. "He's the one that's going to make sure we stay on a sound basis ... in economics and finance," Carter said.

Harold Brown — secretary of defense; a physicist who once headed the Air Force and was the Pentagon's research and development chief; pledged to maintain adequate defense while trying to trim between $5 billion and $7 billion in waste from the defense budget. Carter described him as a chief scientific adviser and quipped that the California Institute of Technology, which Brown headed, "is second only to Georgia Tech."

Cecil D. Andrus — secretary of interior; resigned as governor of Idaho to take the job; former chairman of the National Governors Conference; is expected to emphasize conservation and environmental protection and a balanced use of the nation's resources. "The only Cabinet member I never hesitated at all about," Carter said.

Bob Bergland — secretary of agriculture; a Minnesota farmer and Democratic member of Congress who has been active on the House Agriculture Committee as a political ally of Vice President Walter F. Mondale. Carter had promised to appoint a farmer and called Bergland

"a man who has worked hard all his life in manual labor and knows the concerns of the consumer."

Juanita M. Kreps — secretary of commerce; an economist, vice president of Duke University and a specialist on problems of the aged; expected to bring no major change to the department. "We have a very close, very tender relationship," Carter said.

Brock Adams — secretary of transportation; a Democratic member of Congress from Washington state since 1964; principal author of the Northeast Rail Bill aimed at revitalizing ailing railroads; will take part in negotiations with Great Britain and France over landing rights for the Concorde supersonic airliner. As chairman of the House Budget Committee, Adams was "instrumental for evolving a sound way of handling budgetary and appropriation questions," Carter said.

Patricia Roberts Harris — secretary of housing and urban development; a Washington attorney and former dean of the Howard University Law School; appointed U.S. ambassador to Luxembourg by President Johnson; expected to help implement Carter's plan to use housing to create jobs in such a way as to hold down inflation. "She's in the forefront of carrying out a proper role for minority groups and women," Carter said.

Thomas B. Lance — director of the Office of Management and Budget; president of a rural bank in north Georgia when Carter tapped him to be state transportation commissioner; pledged to sell $2.8 million worth of stock in the National Bank of Georgia to become budget director. Carter called him "one of the closest friends I have in the world."

James R. Schlesinger — Chief White House energy adviser; former defense secretary under President Gerald R. Ford; one-time head of the CIA; former head of the Atomic Energy Commission. "I hope we can form without much delay a new department of energy policy," Carter said. "At that time he will be head of that department."

Charles L. Schultze — chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; budget director under President Lyndon B. Johnson; with the Brookings Institution since 1968 where he and others served as a "shadow" economics council during the Nixon and Ford administrations. "My closest person in shaping basic economic policy," Carter said.

Zbigniew Brzezinski — national security adviser; chairman of Carter's newly reorganized National Security Council; former Columbia University professor who was Carter's chief foreign policy adviser during the campaign. "He has caused consternation for the typesetters of this country," Carter said. "He is a man whose name I can spell, and all of my staff are now learning how."

Staff Chief

PLACENTIA — Dr. Robert M. Sigler is the new chief of staff at Placentia-Linda Community Hospital for a two-year term.

Named to assist Sigler were Dr. David Ewing, vice chief of staff, and Dr. Donald O. Mode, secretary-treasurer.

The Doctor Says

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My father's recurring gout has us concerned. After he is well, he takes half or none of his Benemid pills.

By taking the pills regularly would he build up an immunity? Do whirlpool foot baths help? Is it proper to raise the leg and rest it? What food or liquids should he avoid? Is cold water soaking helpful? When gout occurs, in addition to taking the pills, what steps can be taken to ease the pain and help speed up the reduction of the acid?

DEAR READER — You are right to be concerned about your father's mismanagement of his gout. Benemid is used to increase the elimination of urate, the salt of uric acid, by the kidneys. In this way Benemid decreases the amount of uric acid in the body and helps to prevent attacks of gout. It is not used to treat acute attacks at all and should not be started until the acute painful attack is over.

No, one does not develop an immunity to the pills. Whirlpools and other devices are not the primary treatment of gout. Anything that makes a person more comfortable with an acute attack will be appreciated but the most effective treatment for the acute attack is Colchicine, a medicine that has been used for this purpose for years.

There is medicine, allopurinol (Zyloprim) that prevents the overproduction of uric acid by the body cells. By prevention of the overproduction of uric acid the problems of gout can be controlled or prevented.

With the medicines available, the need for a strict diet to control the uric acid level is no longer so important. You do need to understand gout and how the medicines work. A person with gout should continue to take his medicine regularly to control the uric acid level. To help you I am sending you a copy of The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please explain macular degeneration in the eye?

DEAR READER — The best way to think of the macula is that it is a pinpoint spot at the back of the eye where much of the image of what we see is focused. Although the entire retinal screen at the back of the eye may be used the portion called the macula is the main area of sight.

Damage or disease of the macula, even if the area is quite small, may have a marked effect on vision. The macula may degenerate in both eyes about the same time because of an inherited defect. In most cases it is secondary to some other disease or injury. A common cause is damage to the blood supply to that small area. The circulation cannot be restored and the area may be permanently damaged. The progressive damage though may be stopped if the underlying disease causing it can be corrected. That does not mean that any sight that has already been lost can then be restored.

Since there are many different causes for macular degeneration the treatment varies. It is such an important problem that anyone with such a disorder should be followed by an eye specialist.

Jim: "When was the forcing two-bid invented and who was responsible?"

Oswald: "The year was 1929 and there were three of us — Ted Lightner, Waldemar von Zedwitz and myself. Our three basic concepts were: It should include so many high cards that there would be a danger a non-forcing bid would be passed. It should be within one trick of game. There should be distinct aim possibilities."

Jim: "Those are still valid. How about the bust response of two notrump?"

Oswald: "That was our idea also, but it wasn't as good as it might have been. Nevertheless it got into standard American bidding and is probably there to stay."

Jim: "If South opens today's hand with a forcing two bid, North responds two notrump, South raises to three, West opens the queen of hearts and if the defense doesn't block the suit they gather in five quick heart tricks."

Oswald: "That is why the correct opening bid with this South hand is three notrump. Nothing can hurt him and if a heart is opened he will have 10 top tricks."

Ask the Jacobys

A Minnesota reader sent us the hand in today's article. He asked if we would open it with a forcing two bid. This article answers his question. Avoid forcing two bids with notrump type hands if possible.

GO O.J.

Halfback-Actor Keeps Busy

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) "I always said I would work as hard as I could until I was 30-years-old, then I'd start to slow down. Well, I've got seven months to go."

At 29-plus, O.J. Simpson maintains the pace you see in those car-rental commercials that have him racing through air terminals. He never seems to slow down, although he did admit to taking his family on a five-day jaunt to Puerto Valarta recently.

Having just completed a season in pro football with the Buffalo Bills, Simpson joined the cast of Sir Lew Grade's space film "Capricorn One," taking time out for the Pro Bowl. He can also be seen in the movies "Cassandra Crossing" and "Killer Force."

For eight years he has been a TV sportscaster for ABC "and I hope I stay with them forever." His commercials are among the most successful in TV, and he turns up on variety shows and dramatic series. He is also active in a number of business enterprises, including racquetball gyms.

With it all he manages to preserve his sanity and his down-to-earth charm. At CBS Studio Center one day he left the "Capricorn One" set in his astronaut's uniform and devoured a lunch that included lasagna and chocolate cake. "Most people gain weight when they get older; I lose," he explained.

O.J., James Brolin and Sam Waterston play astronauts aboard Capricorn One, the first manned mission to Mars. In truth, the flight is a hoax managed by NASA chief Hal Holbrook and investigated by reporters Elliott Gould and Karen Black.

"Capricorn One" may constitute a transition film for Orenthal James Simpson, better known as "The Juice." Until now he has been appearing in secondary roles to stars like Lee Marvin and Richard Burton ("The Klansman") and Steve McQueen and Paul Newman ("The Towering Inferno").

"Now I'm looking for films that are tailored to me," said the athletic actor. "It's time that I became the leading man. I don't mean to say that I have paid my dues, but I certainly have watched and learned. Now it's time to see if I can carry a picture on my own."

Such a movie is now being prepared for him by producer Howard Koch ("The Odd Couple," "Plaza Suite"). Originally it was based on the John Garfield film "Body and Soul," but Simpson said the script has veered from that concept. He hopes to finish the project before he has to report to training camp this summer.

Is he prepared for the leap to stardom?

"I think so," said the ever-confident O.J. "I've worked hard on my acting, not with classes or lessons, but by observing and learning. On 'Cassandra Crossing' I became good friends with Lee Strasberg, and he advised me against taking lessons. What I do is natural, he told me."

"Still, I want to stretch myself as an actor, to express more emotion. I watched Strasberg in a scene in which he had to break down. To my amazement, he was able to do it again and again. I asked him about that, and he said it is simply a matter of finding keys within yourself, so you can summon up whatever mood you need to express. I'm trying to learn that."

He strives to be himself on TV, despite the heckling of co-performer Howard Cossell,

McCracken: Crack Singer!

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) - The opera "Le Prophete" has been revived twice in the last 50 years - in Zurich and Berlin - and made a third appearance at the Metropolitan Opera here Tuesday. Each time the person chosen to sing the title role has been a big man with a big voice, the American tenor James McCracken.

"It's an unusual role from the standpoint of stamina," says McCracken. "There's one scene where I do three arias in a row."

The Met, trying to shorten the evening, cuts out a couple of intermissions and runs the first three acts of this unusually long opera as one act, 95 minutes long.

McCracken could hang out a sign, "Have stamina, will travel." He says he wishes he had counted how many times - it's in the hundreds - he has sung the title role in Verdi's "Otello," the role for which he's best known. It, too, is a long, taxing role and there aren't many tenors who can or will sing it. Jon Vickers, for instance, will sing it - but never more than five times in one year.

Caruso had one of his great successes in "Le Prophete" at the Met before 1920 and Giovanni Martinelli, who was the great Otello of his day, sang "Le Prophete" the last time it was heard at the Met, 50 years ago, in 1927.

The opera was written by Giacomo Meyerbeer, whose name, before he embellished it, was Jacob Beer. "A man whose name is Beer can't be all bad," McCracken says.

The singer used to come off stage at the end of an opera, thirsty from the exertion, and drink quantities of beer. He has given that up in an attempt to keep his weight in the low 200s. But the word obviously still has fond associations.

McCracken's disposition is genial, his manner as down-to-earth as though he'd never left Gary, Ind. At 50, his hair is wavy white, his face youthful and his speaking voice light-textured, a surprise to one who has heard his clarion tones while singing.

The tenor's daughter, Ahna, a sophomore in political science at Yale, sums up the plot of "Le Prophete" as "the story of a Jesus Freak." It is based on a real 16th Century person, Bockles Bockleson, who lived on the Holland-Germany border.

EDER OR

Beatty Ex Girlfriend Nets A Tax Bonanza

By SHIRLEY EDER
Knight News Wire

HOLLYWOOD - Warren Beatty's girlfriend - oops - I mean ex-girlfriend, Michelle Phillips, currently playing opposite Rudolf Nureyev in the movie "Valentino" and formerly a singer and composer with the Mamas and Papas, has come into a bonanza. She has just been informed by her business manager that she is to receive immediately a $175,000 tax rebate from three years ago. Maybe it's because of this new-found loot that she has had the courage to walk out (which she did this week) on marriage escape-artist Warren.

And some more news from Splitville, U.S.A.: Cher and Gregg Allman have done it again: Cher has once more split from her husband, Gregg. I'm told it's for the same old reasons - Gregg's involvement with drugs.

SHIRLETTIES: Linda Ronstadt agreed to go with California's Gov. Jerry Brown to the Inauguration. And what's more, Jerry Brown went to the Inaugural rehearsals to watch Miss Ronstadt do her thing.

On Jan. 30, Elizabeth Taylor and her husband, John Warner, check into the Beverly Hills Hotel. On Feb. 2, the Richard Burtons arrive in Los Angeles. Because Liz will be staying at the Bev Hills, Richard decided to book a suite for himself and Susan at the nearby Wilshire. I guess they all assume it will look better to the neighbors if they don't take up residence at the same hotel at the same time. And besides, Elizabeth gets there first.

Elizabeth and Richard, you can bet, will get together at some point with their daughter, Liza Todd. Liza has just entered art school here in L.A. and is ensconced in her own apartment. Both Mama and Papa Richard are anxious to see what she is about. Liza's real father, Mike Todd, was killed in a plane crash a few months after she was born. She was a small child when her mother was married to Eddie Fisher, so the only real father figure in her life has been Burton, whom she adores and who adores her.

Joseph E. Levine, here in Hollywood to oversee the technical work on his "A Bridge Too Far," says he's looking for a male star for his next movie, "Magic." He says: "It's a great Bill Goldman script. Any actor will be delighted to do it. W-E-L-L. He had a meeting with and made a firm offer to Jack Nicholson to star in "Magic." And what happened? "We never heard back from him," said Joe. "So we're looking." Isn't it nice to be so much in demand that you don't even have to answer offers for work which could make you a million dollars or more!

Henry Fonda is building up to feeling well again and is at home reading the many movie scripts which seem to be pouring in.

DIDYA KNOW DEPT.: Friday night Helen Reddy is to be beamed. Her midnight show at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas will be beamed by satellite to music journalists at a convention in Cannes, France. When it's midnight in Las Vegas, it's 5 a.m. in Cannes. So I hope all those music reporters aren't planning to review Helen. What critic could be in a receptive and happy mood at 5 o'clock in the morning?

Incidentally, this entire project has been co-ordinated by Jeff Wald, Helen's husband, and paid for by Capitol Records and EMI.

Cellist At Ambassador Sills Recital Sold Out

PASADENA - Daniel Shafraan, cellist, will perform at Ambassador Auditorium here Thursday, Jan. 27 at 8:30 p.m. His Ambassador appearance is part of his third U.S. tour - and the first in 11 years. He has also performed throughout Europe, South America, in Japan and Australia.

In Russia, Shafraan is esteemed as one of that country's greatest artists.

Accompanying Shafraan on this tour is the distinguished Soviet pianist Anton Ginzburg, first prize winner of the 1957 Smetana Competition and, since then, a busy soloist and ensemble performer.

Shafraan and Ginzburg will perform Brahms' E minor Sonata, Schubert's Arpeggione Sonata and Shostakovich's Sonata for Viola transcribed for cello by Shafraan. The latter, the composer's final work before his death, will be receiving its west coast premiere.

Beverly Sills' recital at Ambassador Auditorium on Sunday, Feb. 6 at 7:30 p.m. is sold out. The program for Miss Sills' recital includes arias from Handel's "Samson," Mozart's "Der Schauspieler," and "Exultate, jubilate," Thomas' "Mignon" and Rossini's "Il barbiere di Siviglia" and songs by Koehlin, Lizst, Delibes, Rossini and Bellini.

BALLET CASTING

LOS ANGELES - Principal casting for the 23-performance Los Angeles engagement of the American Ballet Theater in the Music Center's Pavilion Feb. 7-27 is announced by directors Lucia Chase and Oliver Smith.

All casting is subject to change. Box office opens Monday.

On opening night, Feb. 7, the company will dance "La Bayadere" with Gelsey Kirkland and Ivan Nagy; the West Coast before-New York premiere of "Voluntaries" with Cynthia Gregory, Charles Ward, Martine van Hamel, Clark Tippet and Richard Shafer; a pas de deux with Yoko Morishita (debut here) and Fernando Bujones, and "Push Comes to Shove," with Kirk Peterson, van Hamel, Marianna Tcherkassky and Tippet.

For Tuesday, Feb. 8, the bill will be the full-length "Swan Lake" with van Hamel and Tippet. The Tchaikovsky work repeats at the matinee and evening, Feb. 9, with Eleanor D'Antuono and Bujones at the matinee, and Gregory and Nagy in the evening.

On Feb. 11, "La Bayadere" repeats with Gregory and Ward; "Voluntaries" with Natalia Makarova, Tippet, Leslie Browne, Michael Owen and Shafer; a pas de deux by Kirkland and Nagy; and "Push Comes to Shove" with the same cast as above.

The same bill repeats at the matinee and evening, Feb. 12. At the matinee for "Bayadere," Tcherkassky and Nagy; for "Voluntaries," van Hamel, Tippet, Browne, Owen and Shafer; pas de deux, Kirkland and Ward; and, the cast above for "Push Comes to Shove."

At the evening performance, the casts are respectively, Makarova and Nagy; Makarova, Tippet, Browne, Owen and Shafer; D'Antuono and Bujones; and, the same cast as above for "Push."

Miss Morishita and Bujones conclude the first week with a performance of "Swan Lake" on Feb. 13.

On Monday, Feb. 14, ABT dances the West Coast premiere of "The Sleeping Beauty," supervised by Robert Helpmann after the 1949 Sadlers Wells triumph. The entire second week of the engagement is devoted to this new production, and for Feb. 14, the principals are Makarova, Nagy and Marcos Paredes; on Feb. 15, they are, at the matinee, van Hamel, Tippet and Paredes; and Gregory, Ward and Paredes that evening. For Feb. 16: D'Antuono, Bujones and Paredes; for Feb. 19, at the matinee: Gregory, Ward and Paredes; and that evening, Makarova, Nagy and Paredes. For Feb. 20: van Hamel, Tippet and Paredes.

Two premieres begin the third week of the run, Feb. 21: ABT's U.S. premiere of "The Firebird" with Makarova and Nagy, and the West Coast ABT premiere of "Le Sacre du Printemps" with Ferenc Barbay (debut here), van Hamel and Tippet. Also programmed is "Petrouchka" with Erik Bruhn, D'Antuono and Ted Kivitt.

For the matinee of Feb. 22, "Petrouchka" will be danced by Prinz, Karena Brock and Paredes. "The Leaves Are Fading" by Kristine Elliott and Ward, and "Billy the Kid" with Terry Orr and Tcherkassky. That evening, "Les Sylphides" will be danced by D'Antuono, Hilda Morales, Brock and Nagy; a pas de deux by Tcherkassky and Bujones; "Pillar of Fire" by Sallie Wilson, Gayle Young and Paredes, and "Le Sacre du Printemps" by Peterson, van Hamel and Tippet.

An all-Pokine festival bill will be danced at the matinee of Feb. 23 with Bruhn, D'Antuono and Young dancing in "Petrouchka," Tcherkassky, Elliott, Brock and Bujones in "Les Sylphides," and Gregory and Kivitt in "Firebird." That evening, "The Leaves Are Fading" will be danced by Elliott and Nagy; a pas de deux by van Hamel and Tippet. "Pillar of Fire" by Wilson, Young and Paredes, and "Le Sacre du Printemps" by Barbay, van Hamel and Tippet.

At the matinee of Feb. 26, "Billy the Kid" will be danced with Orr and Brock; "Jardin aux Lilas" by Morales, Prinz, Marie Johansson and Young; and "Firebird" by van Hamel and Tippet. That evening, "Les Sylphides" will be danced by Brock, Nanette Glushak, Menendez and Ward; a pas de deux by Makarova and Bujones. "Jardin aux Lilas" by Browne (debut in the role), George de la Pena, Glushak and Young; and "Firebird" by Makarova and Nagy.

The final performance of the season begins at 9 p.m. on Feb. 27, and it will contain "La Bayadere" with Makarova and Nagy; "Voluntaries" with Gregory Ward, van Hamel, Tippet and Shafer, and "Le Sacre du Printemps" with Barbay, Makarova and Tippet.

Performances begin promptly at 8:30 (except Feb. 27) and matinees at 2:30 p.m.

Spaghetti Fling Highlights 'Revenge Of The Cheerleaders'

ORANGE - A new type of "spaghetti western" will get a special preview here at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday at the U.A. City No. 2. It's called "Revenge of the Cheerleaders" and is rated R.

Take 100 teenagers, give them 25 vats of spaghetti and meatballs, then turn the mischievous kids loose in a spotless high school cafeteria. The result - a cafeteria that is no longer spotless and an epic food fight wilder than anything seen on screen since the pie-throwing days of Mack Sennett.

As the enthusiastic students bombarded each other with fistfuls of pasta and drenched the wall, floors, tables and windows with globs of tomato sauce, the cameras were rolling to record the slapstick shambles for Monarch Releasing Corporation's new comedy, "Revenge of the Cheerleaders." A youthfully made-for-TV opening throughout the country this spring, "Revenge" is set in Aloha High, a permissive California school where the students are in charge: breaking the rules, ignoring their teachers, infuriating their parents...and having the time of their lives! At Aloha High there's dancing in the halls, chaos in the classrooms, boys in the girls' locker room

EVER STRIVING FOR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Bonded Larceny

Your next door neighbors are nice people, no doubt; but how long would you think so if the government decreed that, henceforth, a certain amount would be deducted from your family's monthly income and added to that of your neighbors?

Absurd? Well maybe. But before you discount the possibility entirely give a thought to a situation created by federal intervention in the New York City bond market. Here are the sordid details as reported in a recent edition of the Wall Street Journal:

Back in 1950, New York City built eight housing projects funded with $67 million worth of its Housing Authority bonds. The bonds, backed by the city's taxing power, were snapped up by buyers all across the country. Being tax exempt and with that kind of a guarantee, they were considered excellent buys.

Then, along came the Big Apple's recently disclosed financial difficulties. Having spent in excess of its income for years, New York City was exposed to the world as tottering on the brink of bankruptcy. And that, pointed out the Wall Street Journal, caused the New York City Housing Authority bonds, "to trade at a very depressed price of about 30 cents on the dollar."

In other words, potential buyers, doubting the city's ability to stand behind its guarantee of the bonds, were no longer so eagerly buying. And holders of the bonds, caught with investments steadily falling in trading value, couldn't unload them except at a loss.

Or so nearly everyone surmised.

The exceptions being Stoeber, Glass and Company, a New York bond firm, and Mudge, Rose Guthrie and Alexander a Wall Street law firm prominent in bond matters. The staffs of these two firms thought they recalled that the eight housing projects concerned had been made a part of a federal subsidy program several years ago. And, as it turned out, they were right.

The projects were converted to a federally subsidized status between 1968 and 1972. And, in a letter Joseph Burstein, HUD assistant general counsel, confirmed that the Federal government was, indeed, "obligated to pay to the New York City Housing Authority annual contributions in amounts sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the bonds when due."

In other words, the bonds were not only backed by the now near defunct New York City government, but by the taxing power of the Federal government, as well.

Which, of course, put a different face on the bond matter and their value to potential buyers. Just how different was pointed up by the Journal when it concluded: "Obviously, U.S. backing would result in an immediate price jump on the city's bonds that would create millions of dollars in paper profit to their holders."

So, if your neighbor happens to be holding any of those New York City bonds, and you are a federal taxpayer (who isn't?), your neighbor does, indeed, have his hand in your pocket. His gain, your loss — by courtesy of the Federal government.

India's Atomic Plan

The government of the United States and India are heading toward a showdown over disposal of spent fuel from nuclear power plants. This could be a test of whether proliferation in nuclear weapons technology can be curbed.

The U.S. is refusing to supply more enriched uranium for an Indian power reactor unless the Indians return all of the spent fuel from uranium we have supplied previously. In reprocessing its own fuel elements to obtain plutonium for an explosive device tested in 1974, India went back on a commitment not to use imported nuclear materials for weapons purposes.

The United States has guarded its own nuclear reprocessing technology to avoid the kind of proliferation in weapons which the case of India represents. However, until recently we have failed to play a role in discouraging other countries from developing their own technology or acquiring it from other sources. Pressure from the United States may keep France and West Germany from exporting reprocessing facilities.

India is complaining that failure of the United States to deliver enriched uranium could mean a heavy financial loss on a nuclear power plant waiting to use it. Perhaps that's a consequence the Indians should have considered when they first decided on a secret program to develop atomic explosives.

Illiterate Graduates

As a veteran of 13 years in schools, about to make my move out into the world of jobs and responsibilities, I personally think I can handle it, but then, I can read.

One of the requirements for graduation is a reading level of 8th grade or a class in remedial reading. I find this totally ridiculous. A reading level of 8th grade isn't going to get you anywhere in school or in the job market.

For example, taking a pre-employment exam at one of the larger department stores, I was asked a question by a fellow test-taker, not an answer to a test question; she didn't understand the wording of the question! This person was a 19-year-old high school graduate. I also find that I am constantly asked questions in my school classes, not about the work, but by people who don't understand what is written in the books. They don't understand all those big words.

As for remedial reading classes, I have worked in one as a student aide for almost three years and a person could go through one and come out the same level he went in. Instead of an 18-year-old reading like a 14-year-old, why don't they read at their age level? Instead of using a system of under-achievement, why not bring students up to par?

It's time schools stopped letting students get by with a minimum and started expecting a maximum. You get what you deserve and I think the school system is going to start getting theirs — a generation of under-educated people. It's time for the school boards to open their eyes and see the truth which faces them everyday in the form of hundreds of illiterate and incomplete job applications. If this letter doesn't get printed, that's okay. Most of my contemporaries probably couldn't read it anyway and the people who should read it, the school boards, probably won't.

tomatic of a heart attack. Her pulse was extremely rapid and irregular.

When the attack did not subside after a few minutes, I called the Laguna Hills Fire and Rescue Department for assistance. Within minutes a unit arrived and within seconds they diagnosed her condition, started treatment, linked communications with Mission Community Hospital and arranged for ambulance transportation.

I was awed by the professionalism of the entire unit. They were obviously well trained, confident, dedicated men. Thanks, in large part to their efforts, my wife's attack was stopped shortly after arriving at Mission Community, where another very professional team took over.

Although I do not have the names of the men that assisted, I hope that you will relay my sincere appreciation for their efforts and my heartfelt congratulations for an obviously proficient and dedicated department.

We, the citizens of Saddleback Valley, should be proud and grateful to be served by such a group of fine men.

Last Chance

The British Empire has followed the Roman Empire into self-destruction from within, and in pretty much the same way.

Exchequer Denis Healey has announced the final series of restraints, controls and sacrifice in order to qualify for a $4 billion loan from the International Monetary Fund. Inability to make repayment will be England's last chance for survival.

This glaring example of the failure of socialism and the welfare state should be adequate warning to the United States and others that state control of business and industry will not work under a democratic form of government.

Uncle Sam must change his course before it is too late. We are already following England's bad example and are well down the road to bankruptcy through inflation, deficit spending, no win wars, bad management, poor estimates and disastrous decisions. Who will make a loan to Uncle Sam when he goes broke?

Black Hat Boys

A condemnation procedure is going on against a woman, 81, in Costa Mesa. Costa Mesa apparently wants to make a super complex out of the area her property is on.

Progress is a necessary thing, of which Costa Mesa has done much in the last 20 years, to the point it has lost its beauty and charm!

Mrs. Ruth Swope and her deceased husband were among the first citizens of Costa Mesa. Why, at 81 years of age, and 61 years in Costa Mesa should she be deprived of her property?

Not only is she 81 years old, she is also raising a 12 year-old child who is her great, great, great niece. Much of what the child needs in support and care comes from the income Mrs. Swope receives from her property. Although Costa Mesa will pay her for this property, why must she and the child have to lose the only home they've known for most of their lives?

The Mayor of Costa Mesa and others on the city council owe her some loyalty. They were able to depend on her support to obtain their ambitions and positions, specifically, Mr. Racite and Mr. Pinkley.

We feel your headline re G.M. Gilmore execution was tasteless, unnecessary, and as sick as the execution itself. Our eight year old son reads too. We are adults and are capable of reading further if sadism is attractive to us. But, mercy on our children!

We had subscribed to your paper wanting news, not sensationalism. This places you on our "garbage out" list.

BRUDNOY'S COMPLAINT

'Desegregate' Now, Fail Later

By DAVID BRUDNOY

Nine hundred pages and untold hours of preparation by what passes for a School Department in Boston, and we learn conclusively what many have said all along: court-ordered "desegregation" has failed to improve the quality of education in the Boston public schools. And since every problem is soluble with ever larger infusions of money, the report's authors, educationalists all, insist that extra funds are required to cope with the problems brought about by Federal Judge W. Arthur Garrity's endless series of orders.

The report makes for gory reading: we have students carrying "portfolios of fear and racial prejudice," students who "do not talk across racial lines in the classroom, nearly half of Boston's school kids testing below national average in reading, two-thirds of the Negro children thus deficient and one-third of the white kids in the same boat. Add to the reading deficiencies similar, if not worse, deficiencies in math skills, throw in the 20,000 or so white pupils who have fled from the Boston public school system during the nearly three years of the Garrity reign of terror, add in millions upon millions of new tax dollars needed to pay for police guards and other accessories to the nonsense, all making up a bloated school budget for a greatly decreased school population, and you have:

Failure. Abysmal, manifest, certifiable failure.

Why did Judge Garrity undertake, in 1974, his massive campaign of social engineering? Because, the gentleman found, there had been a deliberate pattern of segregation in the schools fostered by School Committee policy over the last several years.

Let us grant part of that: wiser heads, or at least wiser ideas from those same elected heads, could have acted more cleverly to help ease Boston into integration. Let us acknowledge this one truth in the judge's decision: the "leaders" led poorly. But not necessarily evilly. Ignorance and resistance to change typify politicians, as they do everyone else now and again.

But from that initial finding has come years of additional misery, sponsored, however unintentionally, by Mr. Garrity as well as by those who have resolved never to succumb to his rulings, as well as by those who gloat because of those rulings and have determined to make white Boston crawl.

The report is a testimony to failure, and it should get nationwide exposure. Consider the catastrophe on the most basic level, the number of schools reported as predominantly black prior to desegregation and now. Sixty-five schools were so considered before 1974; and now? Now there are 119 schools predominantly black. That's "desegregation!"

Throw in tens of millions of dollars, "magnet" schools, "experts" by the bushel-ful; run half of Boston's kids around in circles from one school to another, in fruitless search for a place that would remain stable enough to be "desegregated"; and wind up with white flight on a grand scale, intra-school hatred along racial lines, and the goddamn bottom line: demonstrable decreases in pupil abilities in the essential skills schools are dreamily thought to teach.

Now comes the rejoinders. From the Wonderland lady who superintends the Boston school system, Marion J. Fahey, we get this: the report is a "needs assessment," meaning a wonderful guideline for what yet remains to be done, what areas will require what amount of millions upon millions of bucks. Miss Fahey puts a brave face on to confront her critics, and demonstrates gargantuan capacity for dissembling to say that "I believe children are getting a much better education now" (than before "desegregation"). She sticks out her hand and demands more money. So what else is new?

NAACP head Thomas Atkins, whose own children are sent to predominantly white schools in the suburbs, races to the TV stations to say that the report doesn't mean that "desegregation" is a flop, only that Boston's "racism" has hurt black kids so badly that it'll take years to catch up. Might there be something genetic (scare word!) in all this? No one in Boston would so much as dare breathe the word. Might there be something counterproductive about forced busing? You won't hear the notion from Miss Fahey or from Mr. Atkins or from Judge Garrity.

But hear it from the people of Boston: they do not want forced busing, they know it's a bust, they said "never!" and they meant it. It's your move, Garrity.

No Statehood For P R

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Former President Ford's surprise Puerto Rico statehood proposal is as dead as the proverbial dodo.

In fact, it died aborning. Neither the Carter administration nor congressional leaders intend to do anything about pressing the matter. Their attitude is succinctly summed up by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Interior Committee which handles statehood legislation:

"If Puerto Ricans want statehood, they'll ask for it. Until then, there is no occasion to do anything."

The likelihood of their doing anything in the foreseeable future is nil.

That is — other than seeking more large-scale grants which currently total some $200 million a year for welfare, education, housing and pensions.

Sixty per cent of Puerto Rican families now get food stamps.

Real significance of this massive aid is underscored by the fact that Puerto Rico, a self-governing commonwealth, is exempt from the U.S. income tax.

Puerto Ricans pay local taxes determined by their own legislature, but no U.S. taxes — although benefiting extensively from U.S. relief funds without contributing a cent to them.

Still Unsatisfied
But despite that, to hear Baltazar Corrado, new Resident Commissioner, indignantly tell it, Puerto Rico is being "discriminated against."

He's demanding inclusion in the supplemental security income (SSI) program.

Established in 1972 as part of the Social Security system, SSI replaced the old-age assistance program and aid to the blind and totally disabled. Puerto Rico was excluded from this legislation; instead, its aged, blind and disabled continued under the welfare provisions with an additional $24 million in income maintenance on a 50-50 matching basis.

Corrado vehemently wants that exception repealed on the intriguing ground that it is "discriminatory."

Just why he doesn't explain, unless the following is a justification:

"Puerto Rico faces a 20 per cent unemployment rate, and has been subjected to an unprecedented hike in the cost of living. It is just and appropriate that past injustices be rectified."

The first thing the insular politico did on taking his nonvoting seat in the House was to introduce a bill to include Puerto Rico in the SSI program. Co-sponsors of the measure are Reps. Philip Burton, San Francisco radical who came a cropper in his ambitious blitz for Democratic Floor Leader; Herman Badillo, born and educated in Puerto Rico and an all-but-announced candidate for mayor of New York; "Pete" Stark, Oakland, Calif., leftist who passes up few chances to promote himself personally and politically.

Needless to say that in Corrado's thunderous statement accompanying his bill there was no mention that Puerto Ricans pay no U.S. taxes, while U.S. taxpayers are providing them with around $200 million a year in welfare and other benefits.

Yes...But

However, Corrado did expound on statehood.

He's for it — but! Says the new Resident Commissioner:

"I am a statehooder with conditions, and a Puerto Rican without conditions. I will not give up Spanish for statehood. I am flatly against any attempt to impose statehood from outside. Any initiative for statehood should originate in Puerto Rico."

That's the whole story why former President Ford's sudden statehood proposal is as dead as a dodo.

Also why Corrado's haughty demand for SSI benefits is virtually certain to get nowhere. He himself seems to be doing his utmost to make sure of that by arguing that "while federal benefits have been increasing over the years, those in Puerto Rico have remained more or less the same."

Even Corrado concedes there is no likelihood of another plebiscite on statehood until at least 1980.

The last one, in 1967, went overwhelmingly against statehood — with 60 per cent opposed, 39 per cent for, and less than 1 per cent for independence.

The New Progressive Party, which carried the island last November, is nominally for statehood, but carefully doing nothing about it — least of all a plebiscite. Vaguely, 1980 is mentioned as a possible date, and left at that.

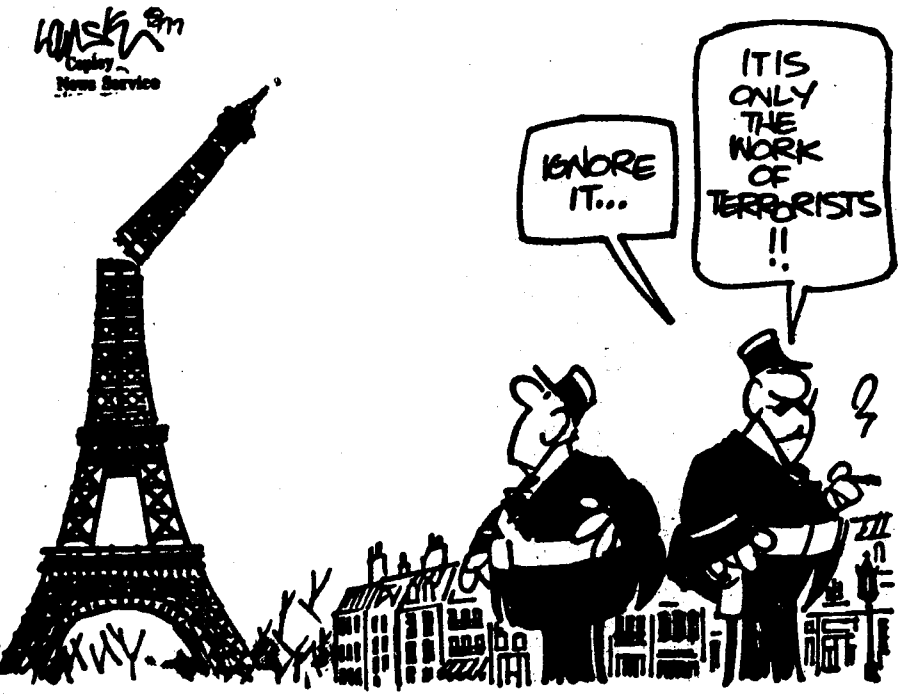

Getting Set

There will be far-reaching farm legislation this year, and the stage is already being set for that.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., chairman of the Subcommittee on Agriculture Legislation, is calling hearings on a measure to increase appreciably federal support payments. He contends that's necessary because of a $3.2 billion decline in such aid between 1972 and 1978.

"In 1972, support payments amounted to $3.7 billion," says the tall, forceful Alabamian. "Last year they sank to $514 million. This drastic drop demonstrates that the Department of Agriculture has done a pretty good job of achieving its goal of taking government out of farming. The economy of our country is dependent upon the success of our farmers, and Congress must do every thing necessary to assure that."

It's a safe bet it will if Allen has his way.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1977. There are 341 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1848, a gold nugget was found in California at a sawmill being built for John Sutter near Coloma in the Sierras. The discovery touched off the California gold rush.

On this date —

In 1830, the city of Venice was declared a free port.

In 1915, the British defeated the Germans in a World War I sea battle off Dogger Bank in the North Sea.

In 1924, Petrograd was renamed Leningrad in honor of the founder of the Soviet Union.

In 1945, in World War II, Soviet soldiers crossed the Oder River, reaching German soil for the first time.

In 1949, the U.S. Air Force organized Operation Haylift to try to save millions of cattle and sheep isolated by heavy snow on the Great Plains.

In 1965, Sir Winston Churchill died at his home in London at the age of 90.

Ten years ago: Premier Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam ran into a wild anti-war demonstration on a visit to New Zealand.

Five years ago: Israeli planes strafed inside Syria as students rioted in Cairo demanding immediate war with Israel.

One year ago: The United States and Spain signed a five-year Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation, increasing Spain's status in the Western defense community.

Today's birthday: U.S. Ambassador to West Germany Walter Stoessel Jr. is 57.

Thought for today: "We shape our buildings; thereafter they shape us." — Sir Winston Churchill.

Against King Day

President Carter is being pressured into declaring Martin Luther King's birthday as a national holiday. Propponents put King in the same category as Washington and Lincoln who played such a great role in our country's history.

Following, because of limited space is a brief review of King's contribution to our nation as expressed by some prominent people; Roy Wilkins, Ralph Bunche and Senator Edward Brooke (all black), called King's program "demagogic and irresponsible." (Reader's Digest, Sept., 1967.) Attorney General Robert Kennedy stated that King was in touch with and was influenced by various communists. (Patterson News, 6/25/69); Lola Belle Holmes, counter spy for the FBI, reported that King was under direction and discipline of Claude Lightfoot, chairman of the Illinois Communist Party (personal interview at Senate Office of State Senator Bill Richardson, Sacramento, Calif., 1969); Rev. Henry Mitchell, the leader of a group of West Side black ministers, declared that King should "get the...out of here!" (Congressional Record, 5/16/68, p. E 4311); The Rev. Uriah Fields, black clergyman and former secretary to King, said "King was surrounded with Communists and gave it as his reason for severing their relations." (Christain News, 4/1/68).

Among many statements and questionable actions which inflamed people into violent reaction was his statement that "At least 20 casualties came from American fire-power for one Vietnam inflicted injury, we have killed a million of them, mostly children." (Congressional Record, p. H 4310).

Are we to believe that King's contribution to our nation measures up to that of Washington and Lincoln, and justifies declaring Martin Luther King's birthday a national holiday?

Your letter or a copy of this letter to President Carter and members of Congress will help to stop this unthinkable act.

Reslice The Pie

Why don't you print the other side of the story sometimes? About the unscrupulous people who get rich off other people's sweat.

Why don't you suggest that the government put all the figures in a computer to find how much a person produces in a day and how much it is worth, then pay everyone accordingly. You would find there would be no millionaires. Of course, they would have to establish a value for necessary (but non-productive) work.

You are always preaching less government controls. Without controls the big fish eat the little ones, quick. We have had that. As long as there is to be no morality, the union workers have just as much right to make unjust demands as anyone else.

There can only be justice when you can no longer point your finger at someone who gets paid more than he earns. The industrialists and other professional thieves are the last people who would be willing to put the figures in a computer.

Inflation is caused by people (not workers) who up the prices when they are already getting paid many times what they earn. You say where would they get money to build factories and machines? Where did they get money to fight a major war, when we were all sitting around starving?

We had price controls then, and we need price controls now. There has got to be enough money in circulation to keep people working. If they can't take it away from the big thieves, print more. If the deficit goes to ten trillion dollars, cancel it, and all paper money, and start over.

Good Home

My letter is long overdue. I would like to praise the technicians and workers at Fairview State Hospital.

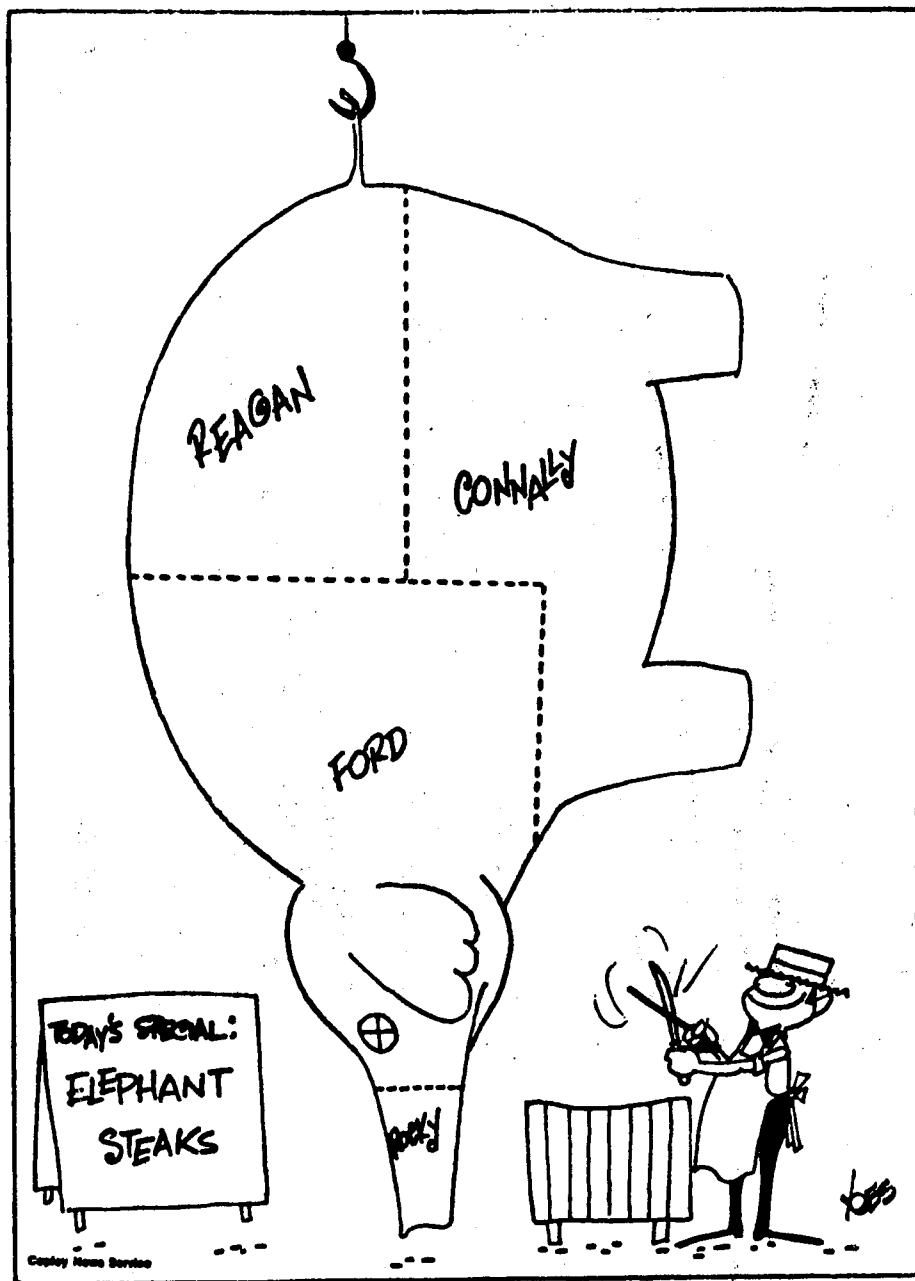

I have a retarded 31-year-old sister who functions at about a four year level. She has spent her happiest years at Fairview State Hospital where the present programs have greatly enriched her life. She has been in a family care situation also and I can say from experience that Fairview State Hospital is far superior.

I have watched her perform in many activities and I always come away with a heart full of thankfulness to God that these technicians are gifted with such an abundance of love, patience and understanding of our retarded loved ones. I don't know of anyone who works longer hours and who is any more dedicated than these people.

Right now there is a lot of unfavorable publicity because of a possibility of wrongful deaths at Camarillo State hospital. But for every bad employee, there are hundreds of dedicated, over-worked, and under staffed and under paid workers. We are only being told one side.

I would like to say from the bottom of my heart that I thank and appreciate every one of you at Fairview.

The Sadistic Side Of Soviet Policy

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON - (NEA) - One year ago, while in Moscow, Henry Kissinger paused in his discussion of cruise missiles and Backfire bombers to approach his hosts with a matter more human. He wondered why the Russian wife of an American professor was not being allowed to join her worried husband in the United States.

In effect he was told: Don't ask. That was the last word, even if indirect, that University of Virginia historian Woodford McClellan has received from the Soviets regarding his wife. He met her as a tourist five years ago, he married her in May of 1974, but he hasn't seen her in more than two years. Her visa is in permanent freeze, and no good reason is forthcoming.

Unfortunately, it is not uncommon for the Soviet Union to detain the Russian spouses of American citizens. At any given moment, McClellan reports, there are about two dozen U.S. Russian families thus separated. But the McClellans are rudely special. No other couple on record has been divided for so long a time.

And even yet the outlook is not bright. Moscow shows no sign of thaw. Last week the professor received a cable from his wife that said her visa application had not only been denied again, but that the bureaucrat in charge had advised her not to bother reapplying until 1978. Twelve more months. Imagine the bleak emotion.

It is of course a detested sport, as William Cowper wrote, that owes its pleasure to others' pain. But the Russians lead the league. And concerning Woodford and Irina McClellan they have outdone themselves. It would have been More research is needed into the reason why people who sing, act and dance exceptionally well spend a lot of time in courtrooms.

A woman who dropped out of West Point has written a folk song about it. This might start a tradition for the young. If your report card is bad, sing it to your folks.

When the Great TV Scorer comes to write against your name, it matters not if you were good or bad but whose time slot was the same.

There will be no long winter nap for dear old dad, who got up in the middle of the night to sign the credit card slips for Santa Claus.

one kind cruelty to have denied the couple permission to marry. But in allowing it, and then preventing their union, the Soviet barbarism is doubly loathsome.

McClellan suspects the Russians may have permitted the nuptials for intelligence reasons. At the time he was courted Irina, as a visiting professor, he was friendly with several members of the American embassy. McClellan says the Russian secret police (KGB) approached him often - "calling themselves historians" - to pump him for data. "I knew nothing, of course; they wasted their time."

Thus spurned, perhaps the bureaucrats got angry. Who knows the motivations of robots? When the McClellans first began to protest the state's reluctance to act on the visa request, there was some dark suggestion that the wife knew Soviet secrets (her mother had been a clerk in the KGB; she had been a translator in a government advisory office). Other than this lame excuse, the state has merely explained that its laws permit it to keep its reasons in confidence.

Apparently, Soviet law also permits the state to compound its sadism by harassing Irina McClellan. She is now all but alone, save for a 17-year-old daughter from another marriage, and easily tormented. McClellan says she is not allowed full-time employment. The daughter is not allowed higher education. And both are followed everywhere by the KGB.

McClellan believes the object of this bedevilment is to break his wife's spirit. And then again it may just be for the sport. One hero of the KGB has advised the wife to divorce McClellan, marry a Soviet Jew, go to Israel, divorce the Jew, and remarry McClellan. Says the professor: "How the Russian officer loves the taste of misery."

So far, McClellan says, the Soviet outrage has not worked to crack the couple's will. The wife is growing thin, McClellan says. She smokes too much, she may be developing heart trouble and she doesn't sleep well. "But she is strong. She's like a woman of good Russian history. We correspond often to brace each other."

Meanwhile, the months and the years go by. The wife's mother has deserted her. The KGB may be working on the daughter to do the same. The professor cannot visit, cannot even send support money ("It would be confiscated"). And Irina McClellan lives from hand to mouth in an intermittent tutor of the English language.

When will it end? Next year? The year after? Never? The couple can only wait to see, half the world apart from one another.

The Republicans Sink In The West...

By THOMAS W. HAZLETT

Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford may never have had the pluck to tell the American people, "I'll never lie to you." Yet, as the Republicans evacuate the District of Columbia, there are bound to be a few folks who, possessing clear memories, will wonder if they weren't conned a bit by the GOP.

Eight years of Republican reign has just been neatly boxed and lowered into the grave and the epitaph is about to be engraved. That tombstone message will carry a remembrance not too cheery, even if scrawled by the most starry-eyed GOP groupie.

Because the Nixon-Ford years began with grandiose gestures and arms swinging in the air, and finished with tiny, spasmodic quiverings. The game-plan was constant throughout: make life better for America's "silent majority" middle class. Do things like reduce crime, taxes, inflation and federal meddling. Yet the execution of this famous theme sagged from poor to pitiful over the course of eight years and ended up discrediting the GOP's commitment to the theme itself.

The Republican Party was swept into office back in the Pleistocene Epoch, circa 1968. Political historian Theodore White describes the momentous occasion thus: "In 1968 the American people repudiated the administration of Lyndon Johnson in one of the greatest somersaults in their political history.... When one adds the Wallace and Nixon votes together, their combined total of 56.9 per cent to 42.7 per cent for Humphrey is an historic turning-of-the-back on all the great promises and domestic experiments of one of the most visionary administrations ever to hold the helm in America."

Politicians are endlessly boasting of their "mandate" to do this or that with the powers of state, but if ever there really existed a mandate, it belonged to Nixon in 1968. The people had seen a powerful president enmesh the country in a costly, nonsensical war, greatly expand the scope and expense of the federal government and accelerate domestic inflation to fearful proportions. Not even the landslide of 1964 nor overwhelming numerical superiority was sufficient to allow the Democrats to survive the verdict of Nov. 5, 1968.

Richard Nixon launched the Republican administration, then, with the wind behind him. As Mr. White concluded: "The mood was undeniably a swing to the right, an expression of a vague sentiment for a government oriented to caution and restraint." And this mood, far from peering out, has increased relentlessly in the intervening years.

Here, in 1977, are the accomplishments of this "swing to the right" as orchestrated by Messrs. Nixon and Ford:

The budget of the federal government has been sliced from approximately 150 billion dollars to the modest sum of about 440 billion.

The proliferation of federal agencies was ground to a halt with the addition of the Federal Energy Administration, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, Conrail (appropriately named), the PSRO, and the Consumer Products Safety Administration.

Federal intrusion into our lives was ended by using IRS, CIA and White House operatives to establish an extensive domestic espionage syndicate for purposes of harassing individual citizens.

Inflation was brought down from about 5 per cent in 1968 to 12 per cent in 1974.

Government intervention in the economy was cut-back with the implementation of peace-time wage and price controls for the first time in our history.

Time and reality have indeed been cruel to the Republican pledges of 1968, to the disparagement of the American people. When Richard Nixon told us in 1968, "I say its time to quit pouring billions of dollars into programs that have failed in the United States of America," we tended to interpret that statement to mean that he would do something about the wasted billions. Yet a fresh study by Roger Freeman, The Growth of American Government, documents that federal spending grew more than 50 per cent faster in Nixon's first term than in any comparable span during Kennedy-Johnson.

While the federal budget continued to pork-up and grow to obscenely obese proportions under Nixon-Ford, perhaps the most chagrining moment for loyal GOPers happened just last year, in the great Presidential Olympics. We saw the desperate incumbent, good ol' Jerry, throw literally billions of taxpayers' dollars at various and sundry special interest voting blocs in his vain attempt to gain the Presidency via "democratic" election.

Gerald Ford thus became both pathetic and ignominious in 1976. It started inauspiciously in New Hampshire, with the auction of a couple of ho-hum federal jobs and a decision to keep open an economically popular naval station. But the urge spread quickly to a federally-funded rapid transit for Miami, interstate highways for selected rural precincts, large aerospace contracts, federal judgeships, promised Cabinet appointments, ad nauseum. Then came the supreme publicity stunt: the swine flu inoculation fiasco. And this was just the primary! As fellow Republican Ronald Reagan remarked: "The band is getting confused. When the president walks in they don't know whether to play 'Hail to the Chief' or 'Santa Claus is Coming to Town.'"

In the general election, President Ford's vote brokering only became more luxurious. Unable to appeal to small constituencies, state by state, Ford bargained away sweeping subsidies on a transcontinental basis. Most memorable were his shameful appeasements of the shoe and steel industries by tightening controls against foreign competition and giving 200 million American consumers less choice and more heart-ache.

The vote-bribing of 1976, side by side with the ignobility of Nixon's Watergate, brought on the grossest irony of the eight year Republican endeavor. The mandate for pulling back the reins became simply an excuse for jockeying into the driver's seat where-upon the reins were not only let loose, but the stirrups were dug in clear to the bone. The growth of government today proceeds at a gallop, and this is the predominant legacy of the retiring GOP.

The philosophical bankruptcy of the Grand Old Party has been mirrored in its political demise, it should be mentioned. In 1968 the party towered high in national politics, owning 31 governorships (the most since 1920), and in need of just 26 more House seats to gain a congressional majority; today's political map lists but 13 (!) Republican governors and a Democratic House majority of 292 to 143, the Republicans trailing by a mere 149 seats. The "pragmatism" of the GOP incumbents has not only sold-out the policy reforms that the mandate of 1968 hoped for, it has produced total disaster in the won-lost column - the very thing it was designed to prevent.

Many alleged analysts forecast the impending death of the Republican Party. It is much too soon to tell. Certainly the 1964 debacle prompted similar hallucinations which were slapped with icy waters by the stupendous GOP rebound of 1966. But the '64 defeat, while more severe numbers-wise, left the party vibrant in ideas, teeming with integrity and charged with zeal. So constituted, it energetically arose to capture the affections of the politically malcontent that were to form a winning constituency just around the corner. Conversely, the Republicans recovering from 1976 appear bewildered and apologetic.

This is seen as the Republicans leave town offering a defense that comes out in a whisper, for it is the feeble pleas of impotence. "We did as well as we could, given a hostile Congress," they tell us. Few of us are susceptible to such blatant attempts intellectually to shuffle off to Buffalo, but we may wish to grant the Republicans this pious fiction. For if they could not do any better than they did, what better argument could be offered to ask them to step aside? Unable, through eight years of presidential control, to bribe or convince the American people of the need for a "right-thinking" Congress, the simple solution has arrived: exit GOP. The new Presidency, in changing hands, allows us to hold some one responsible for what happens with our national government.

This, more than any other, is the blessing of Jimmy Carter.

Who Will Prosecute The Prosecutors?

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN

Copley News Service
WASHINGTON - "I believe that if the rights of one man are threatened," observed New York attorney Roy Cohn, "the rights of all men are."

The above line was written five years ago in Cohn's book, "A Fool for a Client: My Struggle Against the Power of Public Prosecutor" (Hawthorn Books, N.Y., 1971).

In this work the former federal prosecutor of the Soviet atomic spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and the chief counsel for the late U.S. Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., maintained that his series of indictments and trials were politically inspired by U.S. Atty. in New York Robert Morgenthau, at the instigation of then U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy. Just about everyone refused to believe Cohn.

In the October, 1976, issue of Commentary magazine a former associate of Morgenthau, Irving Younger, maintained that indeed his boss was ordered by Robert F. Kennedy "to get" Roy Cohn. In three separate trials Cohn was acquitted, but the cost was staggering.

"I estimate the actual dollar cost to me," Cohn wrote later, "for the six-year official vendetta conducted by Mr. Morgenthau in the name of the U.S. government at $400,000 in actual expense. If added to that is a loss of profit from my profession by not having the time to represent available clients and to build up my practice and by losing potential clients who were scared away by the publicity, a total of well over a million dollars would be a conservative estimate of loss. I estimate the cost to the taxpayers as a whole for having involuntarily bankrolled Morgenthau's vendetta at over $2 million."

Cohn has not been the only victim. Former U.S. Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., was subjected to a series of trials which he maintains were politically inspired.

"Was it justice?" he asked last December. "I have been acquitted of all charges but I have been ruined financially and politically."

Gurney is deeply in debt and his friends have established a legal defense fund to pay off his huge legal bills that total over $250,000.

The former member of the Senate Watergate Committee believes that a law must be put on the books by Congress compelling the government to pay the legal expenses of defendants if they are acquitted.

"If such a law had been on the books," he stated, "the U.S. government and its attorneys never would have tried me out of the fear how bad their record would look if the government were forced to pay my enormous legal bills."

"As it now stands, huge sums of public money have been spent in my prosecution and I am a free man, but I have been ruined by men who sought to destroy me for political-personal career reasons."

What is to be done, moreover, with public prosecutors who bungle a case and cause a mistrial? The recent thirteen-and-one-half-week trial in Maryland of the state's governor Marvin Mandel, is a case in point. One of the leading defendants in the governor's trial has been financially broken by the first trial and now may have to seek a public defender.

A mistrial was declared when the judge and the prosecutors failed to sequester the jury and there were charges of jury tampering.

No one has suggested that both the judge and the prosecutors be made accountable for their blunder that has imposed financial hardships on the defendants. Should not in such a case the legal expenses of the defendants be paid by the state and the judge and prosecutors be fired?

What the Cohn, Gurney and Mandel trials illustrate is the naked unaccountability and enormous abuse of power of public prosecutors. Much the same use of the law for personal and political vendettas is carried on by various agencies of the federal government against businessmen and individuals who dissent from policy positions taken by such agencies.

It's time to ask, "Who will prosecute the prosecutors?" when they use the law as a hunting license to destroy their personal and political enemies.

- Al Davis, owner of the Oakland Raiders, on the quartet back of his Super Bowl-winning team.

"Statehood will be a blessing precisely for those who are in the poorest economic conditions. The infamy that has been spread around Puerto Rico about statehood is that it concerns something by the rich for the rich."

- Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo, of Puerto Rico, in a recent booklet about the issue of statehood for the island.

"By every criterion used to measure strategic balance - that is, damage-expectancy, throw-weight, equivalent megatonnage or technology - I am unaware of a single important category in which the Soviets have not established a significant lead over the United States."

- Maj. Gen. George J. Keegan, Jr., former Air Force intelligence chief, on recent intelligence reports of Soviet arms strength.

"With few exceptions, they were not in accordance with the positions he espoused during the campaign."

- Ralph Nader, criticizing President-elect Carter's cabinet appointments.

"For me directing films is like having sex: when it's good, it's very good; when it's bad, it's still good."

Jubilant Watson Wins Crosby Despite Bogey

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jubilant Tom Watson hurled the golf ball into the pounding surf of the Pacific Ocean, gave his wife Linda a resounding kiss, threw back his head and yelled: "Hot damn, I've won the Crosby."

He had indeed. It was shaky down the stretch and finished with a meaningless bogey, but, as Watson noted, "I did it well enough to win."

Blessed with what he called "absolutely perfect weather" for four days, Watson had to break the tournament scoring record by four strokes to turn back the challenge of England's Tony Jacklin and win the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am by a single stroke.

"The Crosby always has been something special to me," said Watson, who recalled he'd drive down from Stanford in the pre-dawn darkness, play the course before anyone else would be out, then wait around and play again when the paying customers had finished.

"This means so much to me," he said. "I haven't even thought about the money. It gets me back in the Tournament of Champions. It helps with Ryder Cup points. And I've won the Crosby. That's really something."

Watson, 28, a leading figure in the cadre of young men rapidly claiming the rich pro golf tour for their own, acquired the fifth title of his career with a final round 71 over the cliffs and crags of the Pebble Beach Golf Links.

He nailed it down with a scrambling par on the 16th hole and a gorgeous shot that almost found the cup on the dangerous par-three 17th that is surrounded on three sides by the pounding surf and cavoring seals of Carmel Bay.

White Returns To Spark USC

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The University of Southern California, led by forwards Paul Henderson with 24 and Greg White, returning from an injury, with 22, took a 106-65 victory over Denver University Sunday in a nonconference clash which ended the losing streak.

"This was a good return for Greg White," he added. "He got some playing time and had a good effect on the game." White had missed the six previous games with a stress fracture of the left foot.

The Pioneers, coached by Al Harden, are now 8-10 on the season, while Boyd's team improved its record to 4-12.

He bogeyed the tough 18th, hooking his second shot into a bunker by a seawall. It really didn't matter. Jacklin, playing in front of him, had three-putted for a bogey on the same hole moments earlier.

The freckle-faced redhead, who hadn't won in this country since taking the 1975 World Series of Golf, claimed this prestigious title and a $40,000 first prize with a 273 total, 14 under par and four strokes better than the tournament record Billy Casper shot in 1958.

Lee Elder, who gained international fame as the first black to play in the Masters, occasionally challenged for the lead and finished with a 71-275, only two strokes back. He, too, bogeyed the par 5 18th, like Watson hitting his second into the bunker that perches just on the edge of a cliff that plunges down to golf's largest hazard — the Pacific Ocean.

It was one of the most lopsided defeats in Denver history, and one of the biggest margins of victory ever for Southern Cal, which ended its losing streak at five games.

In all, four Trojans scored in double figures at the game in the Forum. Henderson also led both teams with 18 rebounds.

He nailed it down with a scrambling par on the 16th hole and a gorgeous shot that almost found the cup on the dangerous par-three 17th that is surrounded on three sides by the pounding surf and cavoring seals of Carmel Bay.

Bruins Split Irish Series

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps has long felt that the Irish's heated rivalry with UCLA is the greatest in college basketball, and he saw no reason to change his mind after Sunday's 70-65 loss to the Bruins.

to win the game since we lost by such a large margin on the boards," Bartow said. "Notre Dame had the momentum, then we had it, kept it in the second half for a while, and it changed again."

Williams, who led the Irish with 19 points, put Notre Dame ahead 59-56, and two more free throws by Paterno gave the Irish a five-point lead with 3:09 remaining. Baskets by Hamilton and Spillane brought the Bruins within one, and Johnson hit the go-ahead baskets following two free throws by Notre Dame's Rich Branning.

The Irish tied the game six times before a 10-2 UCLA spurt put the Bruins on top with 6½ minutes left in the first half.

Hamilton, a 6-2 guard, keyed the charge with two baskets and fed Johnson on a perfect pass for another fast-break layup.

"This game typifies the series that we've had with UCLA," Phelps said after the nationally-televised game at Notre Dame's Athletic and Convocation Center. "UCLA is a class team with class people."

The Irish, trailing by 12 points midway through the final period, rallied behind guard Duck Williams and held a three-point lead with two minutes left before two straight baskets by the 6-foot-7 Johnson put the Bruins ahead to stay. A three-point play by Jim Spillane and two free throws by Roy Hamilton in the closing seconds iced the game.

Hamilton finished with 16 points and David Greenwood wound up with 14.

...AND STILL CHAMPION — Westminster's Carlos Palomino was all smiles Saturday night after putting on the belt symbolic of the WBC

The fight was 2:45 old with Palomino moving to his left, issuing a left hook himself at Muniz. His movement allowed the guard to drop and Muniz caught him with a solid left hook to the chin and Palomino went down on both knees.

Dons Face Tough Foes; Cypress Enjoys Break

If someone doesn't do something fast, Santa Ana College, Cypress, Santa Barbara, Palomar and Bakersfield just may be runaway winners in their respective conference basketball races.

All of them are sole owners of first place in their community college conferences and the odds look good that they will remain entrenched at the top unless they fall victim to the upset bug.

Another week of heated action is assured as all conferences launch campaigns to unseat the leaders.

South Coast Conference leading Santa Ana faces two solid tests as the Dons host Grossmont Wednesday night, then travel to Cerritos on Saturday night. Cerritos stung Santa Ana 93-91 in December tournament action, so figures to be doubly tough on the Falcon court.

Southern Cal Conference leader Cypress gets a brief break in the schedule, hosting the Fullerton State JV team

Friday night to fill a bye date. The Chargers completed the first round of conference play with a 6-0 sweep and remain a strong favorite to sweep to the championship.

Palomar, leader of the Mission Conference, gets its stiffest test Wednesday night when the Comets host defending champion Riverside at San Marcos while Saddleback, tied with Riverside for second, entertains Chaffey on the Gaucho court.

Metropolitan Conference leader Bakersfield hosts Los Angeles Valley in a crucial game Tuesday night, and Western State Conference frontrunner Santa Barbara visits Moorpark on Thursday night.

'Kojak' Back In Racing Limelight

Television's "Kojak," Telly Savalas, who last year at this time was providing racing with a welcomed shot in the arm publicity-wise, through the exploits of his multi-stakes winner, Telly's Pop, is back in the limelight.

Relatively quite since Telly's Pop went to the farm for repairs nine months ago, Savalas is expected to announce a possible return-to-action date for the California hero when he accepts his Big Sport of Turfdom Award Feb. 10 at the Century Plaza Hotel.

Savalas was picked for the award, presented annually by the Turf Publicists of America, for his unselfish, "I'll be happy to talk to anyone any time" attitude.

Joining Savalas at the head table will be Howard Koch, the movie producer who talked Savalas into putting up $3,000 to become a partner in the ownership of Telly's Pop. As of the moment, Savalas' share of Telly's Pop's earnings stands at $175,000.

BIDDIN' HIGH - The California Thoroughbred Breeders Association held its annual winter sale last week at the Hollywood Park Sales Pavilion, and the big winners were Earl Scheib, Wynn Williams and Ron McNally.

Scheib, the auto paint king, decided to disperse his entire Green Thumb Farm Racing stable and practically did except for a few that did not reach their reserves. Overall, Scheib sold 45 horses for $1,039,900, including the good grass horse Rex Ranger ($96,000), the outstanding broodmare Exotic Age ($101,000) and Cautious Bidder ($100,000), the unbeaten three year old Ack Ack Man ($55,000) and a newly-turned two-year-old colt by Sir Ivor out of Summer Sorrow ($55,000).

Williams also sold most of his racing stable, including a pair of well-regarded three-year-olds, Tegula Sunrise ($83,000) and Pesty Paul ($80,000), and the hard-hitting Albert H.B. ($55,000). In all, Williams pocketed $303,900 for his 10 head.

Trainer Ron McNally didn't sell any horses, he just inherited them. One of his clients, Bob Bird of Bellflower, forked over $142,000 to obtain Mark's Place, while McNally himself, bidding for an undisclosed patron, earned the nod on Tegula Sunrise, the Droll Roll colt who has won two of three lifetime starts at Santa Anita.

YOUNG IDEAS

By BICK YOUNG

Clubhouse Confidential

Great Enos Slaughter Controversy rages. How could he not be elected to Hall of Fame? He batted .300 lifetime to Ernie Banks' .274. Answer: They are of different decades. A man's superiority is measured by how he competes with his contemporaries.
In Country Slaughter's time, there were many great ball players. He was good, very good, but he was not stickout. Writers who voted were busily writing down names like Ted Williams, Yogi Berra, George Kell, Jackie Robinson, Warren Spahn, Roy Campanella, Whitey Ford, Joe DiMaggio, Stan Musial, Ted Kluszewski, Early Wynn, Vern Stephens, on their ballots. They would run out of allotted 10 spaces before getting to Enos Slaughter. Ernie Banks was a stickout in his era. When it came time to vote on him, baseball writers had no such problems.
One other thing: Slaughter built reputation as hustling player: Pete Rose, belly-whopping baserunner type of time. Some teammates and rivals put rap on it, called it false hustle. Enos probably lost votes that way. Any questions.
Suits Up Early
Monte Towe, who rooms with David Thompson on Denver Nuggets, arrives at all arenas dressed for game, with overcoat thrown over shoulders. He's 5-foot-7 and doesn't want guard on doors giving his lip about whether or not he's really an NBA basketball player...Rangers have complained to league office about referees staying at same hotels as players. Spoils their dinner?
Yankees initiating soak-the-rich policy to carry skyrocketing payroll. Steinbrenner rejected move to raise Joe Fan's scorecard from 50 to 75...Instead, new snob dining club will be opened at Stadium, open only to Super-box patrons at membership belt of $1,500 per table. These members already pay $20,000 per year for luxury box...Corporations buy them and write them off so you and I can have privilege of paying taxes.
Mack Truck people, who present annual Bulldog Award to outstanding NFL defensive lineman (Wally Chambers of Bears won it this time), reveal several ballots were returned blank by voting offense linemen, with notation: "I'll vote for a defensive lineman the day you get them to vote for an award for offense linemen." Consequently, Mack Trucks plans duplicate award... Slowly men in pits receive due recognition...Dodgers marking 20th anniversary in L.A. by issuing opening day souvenir replica of first Giants-Dodgers game played at Chavez Ravine.

Heavyweight Henry Clark has become punching bag. Was terribly fat against Howard Smith. Should either get in shape or forget about fighting...Steve Cauthen, apprentice jockey sensation, has big feet, long legs, indicating he'll outgrow job. He fears he'll be washed up before 20...Save the money, kid.
Good Old Days Dept: Garden staging three 10-rounders at $15 tops, Feb. 2...
Dreams Of Youth
How come TV hasn't insisted on warm weather site for Presidential inauguration? ...Paul Owens, Phil's GM, says baseball is losing two out of every three of nation's outstanding athletes because it doesn't have proper program to develop players between teens and college age...Boys who used to grow up wanted to be ballplayers now grow up wanting to be ballplayers' agents. So, Marty Appel, and Joe Garagiola, Jr., have let Yankees office to set up player-rep biz. Appel was Yank publicist. Young Garagiola is attorney.
Julius Erving, former big fish in Nets' small pool, feeling like smaller fish in 76ers big pool. "The demands on me haven't been as great. There is so much talent on this team," he says... Nets, in building this powerhouse they have, traded away first, second, and third choice for next draft...We already have World Boxing Association, so will Women's Basketball Association please find different initials?...This gals' hoop league is fine idea, but I'd like to warn you that next thing you know some 6-foot-6 transsexual, guy by name of Julia Unswerving, will be slam-dunking, and all the other girls in the league will be screaming for the chromo-some test.

Buyers Market Has Returned Says PW Mag.

BARRINGTON, Ill. — The buyer's market has returned, says Purchasing World Magazine in its January issue. Not only are prices again open for negotiation, but lead-times and delivery performances continue to improve.

Perhaps the most dramatic change has been in deliveries, the magazine reports. Back in August, some 64 per cent of the nation's purchasing executives were reporting slower deliveries. Today, the figure is under 50 per cent, Purchasing World says.

Some 20 per cent of purchasing managers queried actually were experiencing faster deliveries — more than twice as many as those noting further slowdowns.

Not surprising, forward commitments also are being cut back. Specifically, only 31 per cent of the nation's purchasing managers are ordering 90 days or more ahead — some 2 per cent under the previous month, and considerably below the 38 per cent high of last summer.

Inventory levels also seem to be heading down again, as buyers rely on shorter lead-times to fill in holes. The number of purchasing managers paring inventories, for example, now outnumber those adding to their inhouse stocks of materials and components by almost 3-1.

Purchasing executives responding to Purchasing World's monthly procurement survey cite several factors (excess capacity, sluggish demand, and vendor eagerness to nail down an order) for the new buying climate. And the majority of respondents see it continuing — at least through early spring.

Bank Clearings Set Record

NEW YORK — Climbing for the third straight week, bank clearings in twenty-six leading centers mounted 11.9 per cent to a new record of $423,209,577,000, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

Up from $378,172,715,000 a week ago, check transactions exceeded their previous peak of $391.8 million set in December and soared 26.2 per cent above their level of $335,298,451,000 in the comparable week of 1976.

New York banks cleared an unprecedented $379,167,788,000 this week, 131 per cent more than last week's $335,123,222,000. Too, check turnover in New York outpaced by 29.1 per cent the year-earlier rate of $293,786,907,000 in the like week.

In the twenty-five centers outside New York, bank clearings edged up 2.3 per cent to $44,041,789,000 from $43,049,493,000 in the previous week and 6.1 per cent from $41,511,634,000 in the previous year.

1,800 Devaluations - Pick

The stock market continues its erratic behavior — but economists and stock market forecasters remain bullish.

The question of where to deposit excess dollars still remains a problem. Interest rates on savings accounts do not keep step with inflation when the income tax bite is factored in.

The stock market is still a graveyard for some investors. The bond market has been a bright picture for some investors the past year.

Pick's World Currency Report points out that since the end of World War II there have been some 1,800 full and partial devaluations. "By the end of 1976, the American minidollar has fallen to an unofficial buying value of slightly less than 10 cents of its one-once-upon-a-time 100-cent purchasing power of 1940," the report stated.

The January 1977 issue of Pick's World Currency Report is based on the results of leading auction markets in the United States, London, Paris, Zurich, Geneva, Monte Carlo, Dusseldorf and Hamburg.

In the field of art, the French Impressionists which had been on top of the 1975 list with an advance of 230 per cent against their 1974 valuation were neglected in favor of the Surrealists, etchings and prints, and drawings and pastels, according to the Pick report.

"Leading the list (stock markets or bourses) at the end of 1976 was Tokyo, whose stock exchange average registered a 19 per cent jump despite a sinking economy. Wall Street's famous Dow Jones Industrial Average increased 18 per cent, as Washington strove to make money cheap.

"Swiss stock exchanges, dominated by the strong Swiss franc, listed an 11 per cent rise, while Montreal's stock market registered a four per cent gain.

"All other major exchanges were on the downside. Madrid's Bolsa tumbled 32 per cent, as the flight from the peseta intensified. Milan's Borsa skidded 22 per cent, a victim of the decrepit lira. The bourse of Paris, fearful of a socialist takeover, slipped 25 per cent, while Brussels' Marche des Valeurs was off 15 per cent.

"The Amsterdam exchange declined nine per cent. Despite the debacle of the pound sterling, London's stock market was down only seven per cent for the year. The Bourse in Dusseldorf eased just six per cent," the report stated.

For graphic representations of these figures and other vehicles considered by some of investments, consult the graph on this page.

Orange County No. 1

Not too many years ago, economists considering California and issuing reports about its economy would lump Orange County into the "greater Los Angeles area."

But this is no longer true. In fact Orange County is selected as the "premier" growth area for California. The latest report eulogizing our state was issued last week by Bank of America.

Its "Economic Outlook 1977" states:

"As in previous years, Orange County has one of the most favorable economic prospects of any California County. In 1976, taxable sales, employment, population and residential construction increased solidly.

"The county issued 85 per cent more building permits than it did in 1975; the permits represented 14 to 15 per cent of the state total.

In Tijuana, which has suffered badly along with other border towns since the devaluation, the peso dropped from 19.90 to 24.50 per dollar Thursday but slowly came back to 21 at the close of operations Friday.

Many banks stopped selling foreign currency at midday to cover themselves against possible fluctuations because of a two-hour time difference with the rest of Mexico.

In Mexico City, the rate was 20 pesos per dollar. Francisco Gomez, a branch manager of the Banco Nacional de Mexico, said, "I believe the sudden drop is temporary. As I see it, it was caused probably by heavy purchases by big companies in Mexico City to pay debts or for imports."

He and other Tijuana bankers said they expect the peso to firm at around 20 or 21 to the dollar.

Border business owners have been protecting themselves since the peso was floated by quoting prices in U.S. currency. Even shoeshines, haircuts, hotel rooms and newspapers are priced in American money or its equivalent, according to the day's exchange rate.

Pesos are still used to pay for government services and bus fares.

Hardest hit are wage earners who are paid in pesos. Jorge Batiz Vidrio, vice president of an electronics plant that assembles goods for companies in the United States, said, "These constant changes in the exchange rate are not good for business."

"Take a look at the long faces of my people in the assembly plant," he said. "They are paid in pesos. I get paid in pesos, too. But we all have to pay for our vegetables, meat and bread and tortillas in dollars or dollar equivalents."

His firm is one of the so-called in-bond border plants that receive parts from the United States, assemble them, and then ship the items back across the border.

Benjamin Diaz, local branch manager of the Banco Minero Mercantil, said that for the last two months border firms had set their own rate at 20 pesos per dollar.

"The sudden drop in the peso jars everyone," he said, "but we are sort of used to it by now. What else can we do?"

California's Natural Gas Supply Dropping

By STEPHEN FOX

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is a grim picture that California's utilities paint. The state's supply of natural gas is dwindling and unless new sources are in place by 1981, homes and small businesses may have their gas shut off. Some industrial users already have been curtailed.

To avert the crisis, California's two largest utilities, Pacific Lighting, parent firm of Southern California Gas Company, and Pacific Gas & Electric in the north, have proposed a number of projects to get more natural gas to the state.

One plan, the Arctic Gas Project, would mean building a pipeline to transport gas from Alaska's North Slope to the lower 48 states. California would get about 30 per cent of the gas, but the pipeline couldn't be built before 1983.

Another project, in northern New Mexico, involves construction of the nation's first coal gasification facility but it too cannot be completed before 1983.

The third and most controversial project seeks to bring large quantities of Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) to California by tanker ship. The proposal means construction of one or more LNG terminals to take the liquid gas out of specially built tankers, store it and reconvert it for use by utility customers. Most likely to win final approval is a site at Oxnard which would receive natural gas from Indonesia.

Natural gas is liquefied by chilling it to minus 260 degrees, a point at which 600 cubic feet of gas will condense into one cubic foot of liquid.

When it is revaporized, the cold gas at first hangs close to the ground, forming a potentially explosive cloud. The disastrous possibilities of a spill are illustrated by a 1944 tank rupture at the nation's first LNG facility in Cleveland which resulted in a fire that killed 133 persons and injured another 300.

Utilities say that today's LNG tanks are far stronger than the ones in use during the Cleveland holocaust and point out that the terminals planned for California will have high concrete dikes around the tanks. The safety issue is far from settled, however, with a California assemblyman charging that construction standards for LNG facilities are dangerously below those mandated for nuclear power plants, an assertion the utilities deny.

Three sites are being considered for LNG terminals — Oxnard, Pt. Conception and Los Angeles Harbor. Utilities say one must receive final approval this year if it is to be built in time to receive LNG in the winter of 1980-81, when a serious shortage is expected.

Weyerhaeuser To Acquire MLC

TACOMA, Wash. — (BW) — Weyerhaeuser Co. announced it has agreed in principle to acquire Murrefreesboro Lumber Co. and Murrefreesboro Land & Timber Co., of Murrefreesboro, Ark.

The Murrefreesboro companies own a lumber mill in Murrefreesboro and 35,750 acres of timberland in Southwestern Arkansas.

BRIAN READING

British Economy Improves

By ALVIN NAGELBERG
Chicago Tribune

It appears, at least for the moment, that the British economy has turned around. Investment money is flooding into the country, stores are swarming with buyers, and the North Sea oil revenues soon will be pouring into the United Kingdom.

Brian Reading is one of those formerly gloomy pessimists who believes that barring an unexpected disaster or a government blunder, the economy will keep improving through 1978. He won't make any predictions beyond then.

Reading reached that conclusion late in 1976, and in the last week there has been ample evidence to prove him right. The Bank of England Friday was finally forced to cut its lending rate from 14 per cent to 13 1/4 per cent to slow down the huge influx of money from investors who apparently have confidence in Britain.

Reading, economics editor for the Economist, a prestigious British news magazine and a former adviser to government officials, estimates the oil wealth will add between $5 billion to $6.8 billion to U.K. balance of payments next year.

That estimate was developed with the government's own forecasting model. Last year, the British government gave the public access to the formulas used in making economic predictions. In cooperation with Scicon Computer Services, Ltd., the Economist plugged in its own guesses about the future.

Reading couldn't believe the first computer readings — they seemed too optimistic. So the Economist plugged in additional pessimistic assumptions. The reading continued to turn out optimistic.

The findings: The inflation rate in 1978 would be about 5 per cent and the economic growth rate would be 4 per cent.

"The sentiment about the economy has swung around from vastly too pessimistic in August to something now approaching euphoric," Reading said.

"The dilemma has shifted from how to cope with money running out of the country to what to do with money running into the country."

Britain now wants to avoid building up huge liquidity similar to the situation when the Arabs put their oil money into the country and then pulled the floor out from under the pound Sterling when they withdrew their funds.

Last week, London bankers said more than $1 billion had poured into Britain's official reserves in the previous four weeks from overseas investors.

The treasury, which in October was desperately trying to keep the pound from plunging below a record low of $1.55, is now trying to keep it from moving too far above $1.71. Anything higher could shave the competitive advantage now enjoyed by Britain in the export markets.

tage now enjoyed by Britain in the export markets.

Bankers said factors producing the optimism include the International Monetary Fund (IMF) approval of a $3.9 billion loan, and the slower rate of monetary expansion in Britain. Last week, Britain reported a surplus in its balance of trade — the first since last March.

There was another encouraging sign Friday when the government index for retail prices showed the inflation rate had climbed to an annual rate of 15.1 per cent, from 15 per cent the previous month. It was the lowest monthly increase since last September.

One of the attractions for foreign funds was the high interest rates — 14 per cent for short-term funds and 15 to 15 1/2 per cent for long-term funds.

Four months ago, the Bank of England lending rate was a record 15 per cent.

On Thursday, nearly half the record $2.125 billion 16-year government bond issue was sold out in the first day of the offering. The interest rate was 14.38 per cent.

Until last September, the government had encountered difficulty in funding its estimated $17 billion budget. However, in recent months the issues have been successful. Investors have been encouraged because the government has raised interest rates on long-term debt offerings and has adopted conservative fiscal policies as a condition for obtaining the IMF loan.

One bond dealer estimated that about half of the amount of bonds sold the first day went to overseas accounts.

The theory in the marketplace is that foreign investors are being attracted to government securities, hoping that bond prices will rise as interest rates come down. Thus investors will have locked in a high yield and will obtain a profit as bond prices rise.

The growing awareness of the North Sea oil potential may be responsible for a current "wouldn't-it-be-lovely" rumor. It seems, Reading said, there is interest in the upcoming bidding for oil drilling leases of tracts in the English Channel, 5 to 15 miles offshore.

Although no test wells have been drilled, the rumor holds that geological surveys may indicate the presence of oil in shallow waters.

Reading observed the oil would be easier to obtain than the North Sea operation and would be only 40 to 50 miles from a refinery. "It wouldn't compare to the North Sea oil, but would be a plus," he said.

Peso Still Causing Problems

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — A drop in the value of the Mexican peso last week disrupted commerce all along the Mexican side of the border with the United States.

Mexican bankers and businessmen here expressed hope Friday that the government would soon peg the peso at 20 per dollar.

The government floated the peso last Aug. 31 and it plunged from the pegged rate of 12.5 pesos per dollar to a low of 26.50 late last year. It has recovered some ground since.

Discount Stores See 5 to 10% Gain In 1977

Most discount department store chains are planning for existing store dollar sales gains to 5-10% for 1977 as compared to last year, according to the January 31 issue of Discount Store News, the industry's newspaper.

Regional chains are among the most optimistic discounters, with West Virginia-based Heck's, Arkansas-based Wal-Mart and Nebraska-based Pamida all projecting store-for-store increases of at least 8%.

These expected gains do not include new store sales. As a result, projections for total sales increases are more substantial.

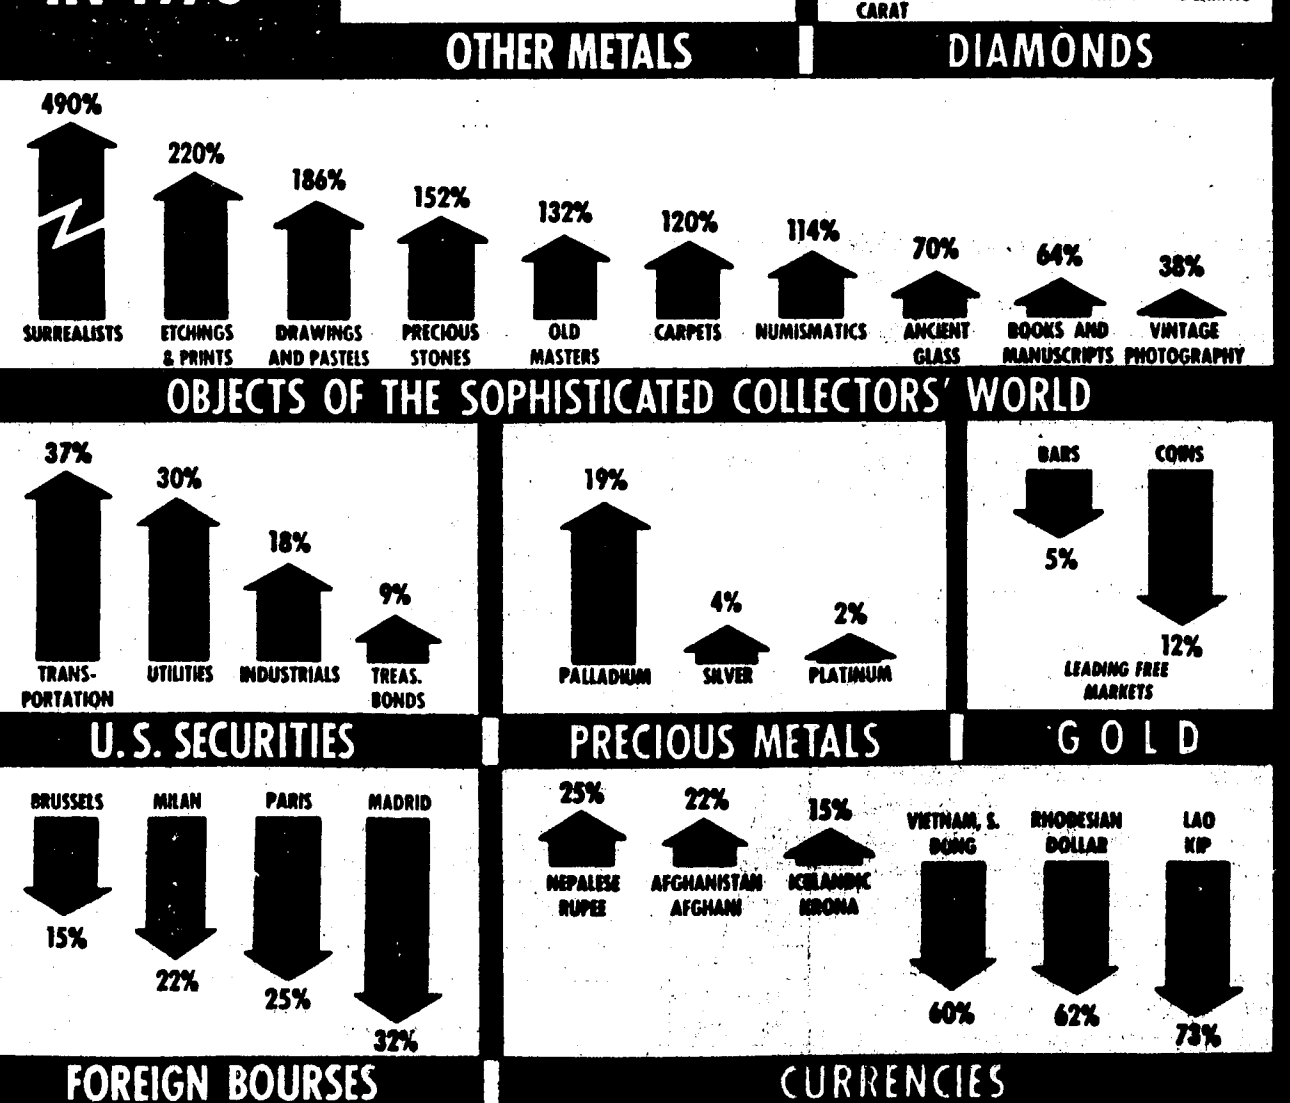

For example, K Mart, the industry's largest chain and the nation's third largest retailer, is projecting store-for-store gains of 5-10%. But when all new stores are considered, K Mart is budgeting for gains of 20%. Heck's is expecting gains of 15%.

Discounters measure productivity on an existing store basis, since it is the truest comparison of gains from one year to another.

Traditionally, discounters are conservative when establishing goals. But the modest projections of 5-10% sales gains for 1977 reflect similar gains for the 1976 Christmas season over the 1975 Christmas season.

In looking ahead, discounters also see many of 1976's hottest-selling items leading sales in 1977 — including electronic television games, CB radios and several convenience cooking mini-appliances.

W-C Lawsuits Date Feb. 2

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Suits against each other by the law firm in which Richard Nixon was a partner and Westgate California Corp. will be tried Feb. 2 in bankruptcy court.

The suits stem from the tangled affairs of businessman C. Arnholt Smith, whose United States National Bank was declared insolvent by the government in 1973.

Smith also was the power behind the Westgate conglomerate, which was forced into bankruptcy by the failure of the bank, its principal source of capital.

Mudge, Rose, Guthrie & Alexander, the New York law firm in which both former President Nixon and former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell were partners, seeks $338,000 in fees from trustees of the bankrupt operation.

The trustees, in turn, have filed a suit seeking $73 million from the law firm, alleging malpractice, negligence, breach of duties and conflict of interest.

The trustees say the law firm simultaneously represented Westgate, United States National Bank, Smith as chief executive of the bank and Philip A. Toft, the then president of Westgate who is charged with Smith with grand larceny and other counts.

The trustees, who have been laboring to keep the Westgate empire afloat, allege the law firm gave priority to interests of the bank to the detriment of Westgate.

BankAmerica Earnings Up

SAN FRANCISCO - (BW) - BankAmerica Corp. reported continued steady growth in earnings for 1976.

Consolidated income before securities transactions for the year amounted to $335.9 million, up 11.4 per cent from $301.7 million for 1975. On a per share basis, earnings were $2.40, up 10.1 per cent from $2.18 for the prior year. (Per share figures have been restated to reflect the two-for-one stock split on Aug. 17, 1976.)

The effect on earnings per share of the October 1976 stock issue of 7 million shares was only slight for the full year of 1976.

Net income including securities transactions for 1976 totaled $338. million, up 11.2 per cent from $302.8 million earned in 1975. This amounted to $2.41 per share, up 10 per cent from $2.19 per share in the prior year.

For the fourth quarter, consolidated income before securities transactions was $93.6 million, representing an increase of 13.1 per cent from $82.8 million in the fourth quarter of 1975.

By SAM CAMPBELL, Register Associate Editor
Quoting a recent survey, Joyce Roberts said only one out of four widows had a thorough knowledge of her husband's life insurance, prior to his death.

According to the same survey, only one of five widows had ever discussed the use of life-insurance proceeds with her husband.

Mrs. Roberts and her associate Marvie Facone, both of the Newport Beach office of Metropolitan Life, are out to change all that. They are conducting classes for women's groups. The subject is "Widowhood."

"When a husband dies, the woman is thrown into a new world of responsibility," Mrs. Roberts said. "More often than not, her responsibilities are unfamiliar. They fall on her when she is likely to be emotionally distraught. The best circumstances possible are none too good."

Before a recent gathering of the Mothers of Twins Club in Fullerton, she and Miss Facone discussed what the insurance agent is suppose to do, what the settlement options are on a typical policy, what Social Security provides, and a little bit on taxes."

"The matter of wills inevitably arises," Mrs. Roberts said. "Our advice there is to see a good lawyer."

Miss Facone added, "The important thing is to keep the will up-to-date. For instance the birth of another child could change the whole picture. The prudent course is to make an annual review."

"They point out that many men prefer to buy insurance at their office. The effect is to leave his spouse in the dark."

"We advise women to be involved in all discussions," they said.

They showed a short film depicting how to make funeral arrangements, how to contact the insurance agent, how the death claim is processed, how to obtain copies of death, marriage and birth certificates, how to contact the Social Security office, how to find out about the husband's employee insurance and other probable plans, how to contact creditors and to find out which debts are covered with insurance.

They warned that a safety deposit box is the wrong place to keep papers that have a bearing on death.

The reason is that the state tax agent is quick to lock up safety deposit boxes before the bereaved can retrieve the necessary papers.

Items such as birth certificates, the marriage license and insurance policies are best kept in a fireproof box at home, they cautioned.

The tax agent comes into the picture because death is taxable according to the rules laid down by California Assemblymen and Senators. In general, these rules provide that the estate is divided in half. Twenty per cent of the deceased's half is taxed immediately. The wrinkle is, for tax purposes, the estate includes insurance proceeds as well as bank accounts, the survivor's dwelling place, bank accounts, and personal property such as the family auto, the engagement diamond and other jewelry.

An unbroken line of excellence. Since 1886, Mercedes-Benz has produced one classic automobile after another. Each one a car engineered like no other car in the world.

The automobiles of Mercedes-Benz. The legend continues.

Mercedes-Benz invented the automobile in 1886—and in 1895 produced the first car ever built on a production line.

Over the generations, Mercedes-Benz has perfected one engineering advance after another.

Add to that an auto racing record of over 4,400 individual victories and you have an automotive heritage that's unmatched by any other car in the world.

Now Mercedes-Benz offers seven separate and distinct models for sale in the United States. Each one is unique.

Each one continues, in its own way, the Mercedes-Benz legend.

Above, you see almost 50 years in the life of a legend. Look closely. See how nobly time touches these Mercedes-Benz cars. Their appeal is enduring. A characteristic that marks the truly legendary and distinguishes it from the merely passing fancy.

A blend of future and past

Here is disciplined grace, the product of thoughtful evolution in design. When Mercedes-Benz engineers create a new car, their vision is wide. They look backwards to retain and improve on their worthiest earlier ideas. And forwards as well, to blend in their latest innovative technology.

Thoughtful evolution in design: a mark of Mercedes-Benz.

To the eye, the changes may be subtle. Invariably, though, they are quietly beautiful—which shows how unerringly their "form follows function."

More importantly, the cars of Mercedes-Benz are designed to appeal strongly to your intelligence. They are honest cars. The promises they make relate directly to their primary function: well-engineered, safe transportation.

One of the seven Mercedes-Benz models

currently available in the United States is in the front rank above: the 450SEL Sedan. Our full offering is described in the table, below. Each one is a blending of patient craftsmanship with sophisticated technology.

Enduring value... and enduring pleasure

Many models of the Special Roadster 500K shown here (no. 4, circa 1935) are appraised at over $50,000. The rare 540K Cabriolet B (no. 3, circa 1936) is considered a genuine value at over $75,000. And based on average official used car prices over the past five years, the contemporary Mercedes-Benz automobiles have held their value better than any other make of luxury car made in America.

The high retained value of Mercedes-Benz cars is a rational attraction. But they have an emotional raison d'être, too. To experience it, arrange, through your Mercedes-Benz Dealer, to drive one. You'll experience an unrivaled automotive pleasure. One that happens only behind the wheel of this charismatic car.

Truly, the legend continues.

Medical-Insurance Caution Advised

SACRAMENTO — (BW) — Caution should be exercised in imposing changes on either the financing or delivery of health care insurance, said Cotton M. Lindsay, associate professor of economics, UC-LA, at a seminar examining national health insurance here.

Lindsay was one of three panelists at the event titled "Health Care 2001 — New Directions in Public Health Care." It was co-sponsored by the Institute for Contemporary Studies and the University of California — Davis Extension, and was held at the Mansion Inn.

According to Lindsay, current health insurance plans serve our rapidly changing society well, and do not need a "major overhaul" as advocated by politicians. Although he acknowledges there are flaws in the system, he feels they can be remedied with minor rather than major changes.

Other panelists were Keith B. Leffler, assistant professor of business administration, Graduate School of Management, University of Rochester; and Charles E. Phelps, senior research economist, The Rand Corp.

They agreed national health insurance would increase the demand for medical care without increasing available services, and would make prices skyrocket.

"If national health insurance is adopted," said Leffler, "major price escalation for physician services can be expected."

Under the proposals, he said, unlimited payments will be available for physician services, with no co-payments or deductibles required. Demand for services will increase, stimulating significant price increases.

According to Phelps, public intervention in medicine has risen steadily over past years, primarily aimed at services for the poor and elderly, until it now approaches 30 per cent of total health care expenditures in this country.

"National health insurance would further escalate involvement by the public sector in health care, and would require long-term expansion of the medical care sector to keep per-unit prices from rising," he said.

BankAmerica Earnings Rise 11.2% For 1976

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Earnings of BankAmerica Corp., parent of the world's largest commercial bank, rose 11.2 per cent last year to $36.8 million, it was reported Friday.

BankAmerica, which owns the Bank of America, earned $302.8 million in 1976.

Per-share earnings were $2.41 last year, up 10 per cent from $2.19 in 1975. The net earnings reflect last year's 2-for-1 stock split.

President A.W. Clausen attributed the increase in earnings to a higher leasing revenues, a lower loan loss provision and good cost control.

Old-Fashioned Burning Stoves Hottest Sellers

BALTIMORE (AP) — George J. Thaler Inc. has been selling stoves since 1870. And this winter the firm has experienced a run on old-fashioned wood-and coal-burning stoves from cost-conscious consumers trying to beat low temperatures, high fuel prices and natural gas shortages.

"They cleaned me out," company vice president Joseph M. Thaler says. "There ain't nothin' left in the warehouse."

A small steel and cast iron Ashley wood stove costs $196 at Thaler's. A deluxe Warm Morning coal stove, about the size of a small furnace, sells for $331. Ben Franklin stoves go for $299 each.

Sculptor Kevin Donnelly paid $65 for a 595-pound coal-burning stove. He estimates a ton of hard coal will cost him another $65 and will heat his large studio for more than a month.

"That's much better than the gas and electric company," he says.

Another sculptor, Paul Kubic, welded together his own woodburning stove from metal scraps worth about $15. He fills it with pieces of lumber he finds around his neighborhood and figures he'll definitely save money over the $50 gas bill he got last month.

fixed + income instruments are in a bull market which has a long way to travel, Kelly says.

But because the Dow Jones Industrial Average is heavily weighted toward basic industry, Kelly says the Dow will spend 1977 doing just what it did in 1976 — trying unsuccessfully to scale Mt. Olympus (altitude of which is about 1,110 or 1,200).

"Some other indexes, such as the Value Line Index (which includes many stocks) may do better, and even the Standard & Poor's 500 (which has a wider variety of categories) could record new highs," Kelly said.

What nags Kelly about his economy is the situation overseas. In fact, he sees the specter of another recession in Europe.

"I would say the probability of a 1977 recession in Britain is high, and in Italy high, and

INSTITUTIONS OWN 70% OF NYSE SWAPS

NEW YORK (AP) — Institutional investors accounted for 57 per cent of the volume and 70 per cent of the value of New York Stock Exchange trading in the first quarter of last year, the NYSE said.

Trading in the period averaged 28 million shares a day, worth $1.3 billion.

The proportions virtually the same as those reported by the exchange in 1971 and 1974, contrast with October 1966, when 55 per cent of the volume and 48 per cent of the value came from institutional trading.

Peril Cited To Auditor's Independence

CHICAGO — Government intrusion and unwarranted sniping at the accounting profession's standards-setting process could result in increased federal regulation for the entire U.S. business community, an executive of an international accounting firm told business leaders here today.

Speaking to the Executives' Club of Chicago, William S. Kanaga, managing partner of Arthur Young & Company, said, "A raging floodtide of change is occurring and the truly important issue is whether that current of change can be directed into constructive channels and who will perform that engineering feat. The contest is well-illustrated by the effort to establish accounting rules to meet evolving needs of the public, the business community and the accounting profession."

Kanaga supported the Financial Accounting Standards Board — and independent, private sector, rule-making body organized in 1973 to establish standards for financial reporting. He noted that assault on the FASB from government, business and the accounting profession "could well cripple and possibly destroy this crucial endeavor to achieve needed improvements in financial reporting."

Citing recent congressional activities focusing on the accounting profession, Kanaga also said, "These developments suggest a general movement toward more — not less — governmental intrusion into the private sector."

"Now there appears to be an inclination in some quarters in Washington to redefine the auditor's mission by requiring him to be a gumshoe who must ferret out any and all departures by management from a set of value standards of behavior and report them in unspecified detail to an ill-defined audience," he said.

Baja Highway Finish Slated

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — The federal director of public works for Baja California says the highway linking Ensenada on the Pacific and San Felipe on the Gulf of California should be completed before the end of 1977.

Jesus Vizcarra Castro said funding of $1.25 million is nearly finalized for construction of the paving of the last 35 miles of the 125-mile route. Vizcarra predicted completion of the highway, which runs at a southeast angle across the Baja peninsula, will benefit California residents who are visiting the fishing village of San Felipe in growing numbers each year.

France moderate," said Kelly, a native of Scotland who got his master's degree from Edinburgh University.

He says that Japan's real (after inflation) GNP (gross national product) growth may fall off to 4 per cent this year, while West Germany may only register 3.5 per cent. "This is significantly lower than other forecasts," he said.

"I see a sharp decline in our trade balance — in fact, a $5 billion swing in constant dollars. That's one-third of the administration's planned stimulus going out the window to foreign countries," he said. "It will also pull down industrial production and hurt employment."

"Importantly, this also will affect industrial pricing policies. It will be harder for U.S. companies to raise prices."

Those phenomena, in turn, touch on one of Kelly's main

AMC Offers Cash Rebates On Hornets

DETROIT — American Motors said it is expanding its cash rebate program to include new 1976 and 1977 Hornet wagons in addition to the rebates currently offered on Pacer sedans and wagons.

Eugene V. Amoroso, vice president-marketing group, said that response to the price reduction on the Gremlin to $2,995 in early November, and the continuing Pacer rebate program has demonstrated the strong appeal of cost savings to small car buyers.

"Sales of the Gremlin and Pacer have increased as a direct result of the lower-priced Gremlin and the Pacer rebates, and we believe cash bonuses on the Hornet wagon — our most popular compact — will generate additional sales activity," Amoroso said.

Cash rebates of $253 are being offered on all retail orders for AMC Hornet wagons placed through Feb. 10. Hornet wagons purchased from dealer inventories will be rebated through March 10, 1977. Suggested retail price on the wagon is $3,699.

ITT Contract

NEW YORK — International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. announced its Argentine subsidiary, Compania Standard Electric Argentina, S.A., recently signed an $87 million contract with the Argentine Telecommunications Administration.

The contract calls for the supply and installation of 117,800 lines of Pentacenta switching equipment and approximately 213,000 telephone subsets, and other material and services.

Triple Oil Mergers Clears Court Hurdle

LOS ANGELES — (BW) — Motions for a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction seeking to enjoin the merger of Mission Corp. and Skelly Oil Co. into the Getty Oil Co. have been denied by Judge Malcolm M. Lucas of the U.S. District Court for the central district of California.

The suit was brought by Evmar Oil Corp. for itself, persons similarly situated and on behalf of Skelly Oil Co. on Dec. 29. Lucas scheduled a status hearing for March 21 to determine a trial date.

CBT Raises Margin For GNMA Futures

CHICAGO — (BW) — Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade have approved increases in both regular margin requirements and variable-limit margin requirements for GNMA mortgage interest rate futures contracts, effective immediately.

New regular minimum initial margin for speculative trades will be $1,250 per contract and new regular minimum margin for hedging trades will be $1,000 per contract. Both kinds of accounts will be required to be maintained to a minimum $1,000 per contract under usual conditions.

When three or more delivery months of a commodity, or all the delivery months in a "crop year" if there are less than three open. Close up or down limit for three days in a row. CBT regulations allow for price limits to be increased 50 per cent from their previous levels.

these: that truculent industrial prices will prove to be a drag on profit margins. "I think profits in the aggregate will be up 10 per cent — but profit margins (profits as a per cent of sales) will be declining."

Overall, he looks for real growth of 4.5 per cent this year, with inflation of 4.8 per cent — a forecast which actually falls within the consensus of economists.

This relative softness will lead to a continuing declines of long-term interest rates. He sees AAA-rated industrials dropping from an average 7.9 per cent rate in fourth-quarter 1976 to 7.5 at year-end 1977.

"There still are ample opportunities for making money (bonds, interest-sensitive and secondary stocks)," he said. "It's just that this is the kind of year in which you can't pitch darts at the tables and pick any 10 stocks."

COCA-COLA LEGALIZED IN PORTUGAL

ATLANTA (AP) — After keeping America's most famous soft drink on ice for many years, Portugal will allow a Coca-Cola bottling plant to be built there, the soft drink firm said Thursday.

The Portuguese government has authorized the introduction of Coca-Cola and the Atlanta-based company has granted a contract for a local firm to produce and distribute the beverage, Coca-Cola Co. said.

Coke has never been bottled in Portugal in the beverage's 91-year history.

It was opposed by the long-time dictatorship overthrown in 1974 because, the government claimed, the drink's caffeine content was a threat to the nation's health.

The Portuguese got around the edict by smuggling Coke from neighboring Spain. A large bottle that sold for the equivalent of $1 in Spain cost twice that much in Portuguese towns near the border.

8,000 Sq. Ft. Restaurant Is Opened

The $1 million 8,000 square foot Houlihan's Old Place restaurant has been completed and opened in Newport Beach.

The restaurant is owned and operated by Gilbert-Robinson Inc., based in Kansas City, Mo. The 50-year-old firm operates 24 unit restaurants at the Kansas City International Airport as well as specialty restaurants across the nation.

They include: Annie's Santa Fe, Sam Wilson's Meat Market, Plaza Three, Fred P. Ott's and Capt'n Jeremiah Tuttle's and are to be found in St. Louis, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, Houston and San Diego.

Newport Beach architects, Robert Altevors and Company designed the "Victorian" building which uses stained-glass windows, brick, rough-sawn cedar siding and a shingle roof.

Many of the restaurant's appointments came from collections found in Europe and the United States. They include heavily carved bannisters, bar mirrors, and a massive bar.

R.H. Wade and Associates, Van Nuys was the general contractor.

For example, normal daily price limits on GNMA are 24-32ths of a point up or 24-32ths of a point down from the previous day's settlement price. When these moves are posted at the close of the market three days in a row, the daily limit increases to 36-32ths of a point.

Variable limit margins go into effect with variable limits to assure that the margin account is maintained to a high level of protection commensurate with the greater amount of price change possible when variable limits are in effect.

Dow Chemical Delays Planned Bay Area Plant

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. — (BW) — Plans for a proposed $500 million petrochemical project in California by the Dow Chemical Co. have been indefinitely delayed.

More than two years of effort and over $4 million in direct expenditures by Dow for preparation of required environmental studies have been invested in this project.

"While our studies indicate that West Coast demand for our products remains strong, our supply of capital has its limits," said R.I. Brubaker, general manager of Dow Chemical U.S.A.'s western division.

"Dow has to act now to properly locate and develop the facilities necessary to meet those demands in the future."

"We are entirely confident that our project is environmentally sound. We recognize that many efforts have been made by Governor Brown and others to stream-line California licensing procedures."

"However, the permitting process for new facilities has proved to be so involved and expensive that for the time being at least it is impractical to continue with this project."

Unions Slighted By Carter?

By LOU SCHNEIDER NEW YORK (NANA) — The Chinese calendar shows that 1977 is the year of the Snake.

To the Chinese, the snake is a sign of economic prosperity, wealth and good fortune.

But the snake is also a sign of vindictiveness.

And on the political unions front, the signs are clear, as previously disclosed here, that all's not well. This because President Carter turned thumbs down on "real" union people in his administration executive list.

Says the AFL-CIO Executive Council: Carter's election-year romance with big labor has turned sour.

What happened about his talks with United Auto Worker President Woodcock and what about United Steel Worker President Abel, and who is heading the drive to force "Mr. American Labor."

AFL-CIO President George Meany, into retirement?

Trustworthy union sources say the "Meany situation" will not fade. This despite the fact that AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland has been hand-picked to fill the shoes of Meany when he steps out this year.

AFL-CIO Presidential-designate Kirkland has already made it clear that organized labor will make a strong effort in the 95th Congress for a top-to-bottom revision of the Taft-Hartley Act.

And the rousing battle for the United Steelworker presidency is also stirring up a group that will call for a breakaway from the I.W. Abel no-strike contract written three years ago.

What union observers note is a rise of a new generation of "activist" union leaders. These people are expected to push hard for goals that are "beyond" the bargaining table. Corporate managements aren't talking, but are disturbed.

Labor writers suggest that Carter's "thundering silence" in not picking working-union people to join his top-level offices "should have as much influence in the Carter administration as their predecessors had in shaping New Deal policies."

In other words, soft spoken Jimmy Carter may have misled the labor boat.

Bolivia Tin Faces Crunch — Too Costly For Market

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Officials here are far from elated over rising world tin prices, even though the metal is this country's main source of foreign revenue.

And Bolivian dissatisfaction with tin prices has erupted into disputes with the United States and other consumer countries in the International Tin Council (ITC).

In the first weeks of January, the price of tin soared over $4 a pound on the London metals market. A year earlier, the price hovered between $2.80 and $2.90.

A couple of pennies a pound makes a million-dollar difference in Bolivia's annual export income. The impoverished South American country sells about 30,000 tons of tin abroad yearly as the world's No. 2 exporter, after Malaysia.

But President Hugo Banzer, an army general, told The Associated Press in an interview: "We do not consider the current price high, because the extraction of tin in Bolivia is very expensive, very costly. The production price is not the same as in other countries."

Tin extraction in Malaysia is accomplished mostly by relatively cheap dredging processes, while in Bolivia it is by hard-rock mining.

And "the deeper you dig the more costly it gets," said an economist here.

Bolivia's main tin lodes are in "the same old mines which have been working for the past 50 years," the economist said, adding he believes Comibol, the government company that has operated Bolivia's biggest mines since 1962, is not a model of efficiency.

Comibol says its average cost of producing tin is about $3.50 a pound, including export levies. Some smaller, privately run mines have lower costs.

Tin brings in more than half of Bolivia's mineral revenues, and mineral sales account for 60 per cent of all the country's exports. The United States bought 40 per cent of Bolivia's mineral exports in 1975 for $125 million.

Last year, the United States became a member of the Tin Council, an organization of seven producing countries and more than 20 consuming countries. It is the first international mineral market group that the U.S. government has joined.

With U.S. support, a fifth world tin agreement was drawn up. Its goal is to regulate supplies and prices of the shiny metal that forms the thin veneer on steel cans and blends with copper in bronze.

The tin agreement went into effect provisionally last July, but Bolivia, because of disagreements on pricing and other policies, has refused to ratify it. If the ratification does not come by next June, the agreement will be voided.

The dispute essentially is a duel between the United States and Bolivia because the Bolivians are the most militant proponents of higher prices and the United States is the consuming country with the largest bloc of votes.

Hugo Uriona, president of the Bolivian government mining bank, said a breakdown of the tin agreement might lead to the formation of a price-setting cartel by tin-producing countries.

"That is what the consuming countries don't want," Uriona said. "This period is decisive."

Current tin prices are up mainly because demand has outstripped supply, according to Uriona and other experts. They predict that the prices will hold until the U.S. General Services Administration receives authorization from Congress to sell from its strategic tin stockpiles. Such sales are not expected before March.

"It is certain that the price will go down the moment the GSA makes the decision to sell reserves," Uriona said.

A diplomat predicted privately, "At that time there will be a lot of screaming and shouting, saying the United States is trying to hurt small countries."

A key element in the fifth tin agreement is the ITC's buffer stock. When prices are low, the council buys up tin for the stock, with the goal of reducing supply and pushing prices up.

When prices are high, sales are made from the buffer stock. But the stock currently is empty and unable to influence prices.

The ITC decides on minimum prices, below which it will buy tin, and maximum prices, above which it will sell. Since 1972, these minimum and maximum prices have been expressed in ringgits per pikul.

A pikul is a Malaysian measure of weight equal to 133.3 pounds. A ringgit — the Malaysian dollar — is worth about $2.50.

Bolivia's ultimate objective is the creation of a minimum-maximum range that would be set automatically according to an index of inflation, costs and other variables.

Bolivia also wants to change the ITC voting rules to eliminate what it calls veto power by the big consuming countries. A two-thirds majority is required to carry most decisions.

Of the 1,000 exporting country votes, Malaysia has 426,

SDG&E Shows Upturn From Low '75 Profit

SAN DIEGO (BW) — San Diego Gas & Electric Co. (SDG&E) Friday reported annual earnings that show a recovery from 1975, the worst year in the company's history.

Net income for 1976 hit $50.4 million, which left $38.5 million, or $2.14 a common share, after meeting preferred dividend requirements. In 1975, net income was $25.7 million, with $15.9 million, or 97 cents a share for common.

Robert E. Morris, president said the company was not able to recover rising fuel costs in 1975, and that broke the normal pattern of earnings growth. In 1974, SDG&E earned $2.09 a common share.

Common stock earnings for the final three months of 1976 were lower than the like period a year earlier, reflecting the greater number of shares outstanding and flat energy sales due to mild weather. The company earned 36 cents per share in the 1976 fourth quarter on common stock earnings of $6.9 million. Comparable 1975 results were 57 cents a share on earnings of $9.7 million.

Electric sales for the entire year rose 4 per cent, while gas sales were off 12 per cent. Weather 44 per cent warmer than the year before and customer conservation restricted the year-to-year gain in energy sales.

Hewlett Packard Raises Dividend

PALO ALTO — (BW) — Hewlett-Packard Co. directors increased the semiannual cash dividend on the company's stock from 15 cents a share to 20 cents a share. The increase will apply to HP's next regular dividend, which is payable April 15 to stockholders of record March 23.

Bolivia 179, Indonesia 138 and Thailand 126. The other exporters are Australia, Nigeria and Zaire each with less than 100 votes.

The consuming countries also have a total of 1,000 votes. The United States has 259 of them, Japan is second with 165 and West Germany is third with 75.

Market Chains Face Counts Of Gyps In Meat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fifteen major supermarket chains are being accused in a federal lawsuit of conspiring to buy meat cheap and selling it at artificially high prices to consumers.

The suit, filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court by 57 cattle-raisers from Western and Midwestern states, asks unspecified triple damages on behalf of "all producers and ranchers in the United States" who raise and sell cattle.

Plaintiffs are from Wyoming, South and North Dakota, Colorado and California.

Defendants include the National Association of Food Chains, and American Stores Co.; Allied Supermarkets; Arden-Mayfair; Big Bear Stores Co.; Colonial Stores; First National Stores; Food Fair Stores; Grand Union Co.; Jewel Companies; Lucky Stores; National Tea Co.; Ralph's Grocery Co.; Stop and Shop; Supermarkets General Corp.; and Winn Dixie Stores.

Named as co-conspirators, but not defendants, are Safeway Stores and the Kroger Co.

The suit was filed by the law firm of former San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto.

Wholesale Food Prices Steady

NEW YORK — The Wholesale Food Price Index, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., held steady on January 18 at $15.02, the same as a week ago. However, the index topped by 20.9 per cent the $12.42 of the like 1976 date.

Eight increases counterbalanced nine declines to keep the index at a steady level. Cocoa, egg and potato prices rose substantially, followed by less weighty advances in flour, rye, hams, lard and sugar.

Decreasing sharply, on the other hand, were the wholesale costs of beef, bellies, coffee, steers and hogs, along with slight price dips in wheat, corn, oat and cottonseed oil quotations.

The Dun & Bradstreet Wholesale Food Price Index represents the sum total of the cost per pound of 31 raw foodstuffs and meat in general use. It is not a cost of living index. Its chief function is to show the general trend of food prices at the wholesale level.

Chief Named For Mattel Circus Park

HAWTHORNE — (BW) — Mattel Inc. announced the appointment of William E. Ketchum as president and chief operating officer of the company's family entertainment subsidiary, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus World Inc. near Orlando, Fla.

Ketchum has been general manager of the Circus World theme park since May 1976. Previously he was with Economic Research Associates, a Los Angeles-based market research and management consulting firm specializing in recreation and real estate.

'Super Bear' Gives His View Of 1977

By DONALD C. BAUDER Copley News Service Since so many Wall Street seers are bullish these days, anybody who is nonbullish becomes known as a raging bear.

Take, for instance, Francis H.M. Kelly, research director for Blyth Eastman Dillon. The other day, I heard him described as "Super Bear."

Kelly simply indicates that two major categories of common stocks — basic industry (steels, chemicals, papers, etc.) and growth (multinationals, et al) — have seen their big runs.

The other categories, however, are still in ascendancy, said Kelly in an interview: the interest-sensitive stocks (utilities, telecommunications, savings and loans) and secondary and tertiary issues (long-neglected, smaller- and medium-sized companies).

Moreover, bonds and other

Scleroderma: A Mysterious Disease That Is Turning A Women To Stone

By DON WILSON
Knight News Wire

WATSONVILLE, Calif. - A 32-year-old housewife is "slowly turning to stone" from a disease for which there is no known cure.

She has formed a foundation aimed both at finding a cause and cure and helping its victims get over the depressing emotional reaction which sets in after the disease is diagnosed.

"I really was hit hard," says Diane Williams, "when I found out what was wrong with me. I couldn't move. I couldn't even get off the couch without help."

What had affected Williams, she says, is "scleroderma," which means "hard skin."

It is a disease related to rheumatic fever and involves a substance called collagen, the material which makes up the basis of cartilage, bone, skin and connective tissue. A person with the disease finds his or her hands, feet or mouth developing a rigidity that pulls fingers or lips back so tightly that the fingers are curled into the palms of the hands, and a person's mouth can't open far enough for a dentist to fix a tooth, for instance.

DIAGNOSIS DIFFICULT

Because the symptoms are often seen in arthritic or cancer victims, Williams said, the affliction often isn't diagnosed as scleroderma.

But there are some doctors, notably Dr. Denny Tuffanelli in San Francisco, she said, who are doing research and have acquired considerable skill in diagnosis of the disease.

But so far, she said, nobody knows how it is caused or how to cure it.

So, with the aid of friends and Dr. Vernon Atkinson of Santa Cruz, Williams formed a Monterey Bay Scleroderma Foundation. Atkinson is president of the board of directors.

"We already have raised $6,100," Atkinson said, "for use in research."

The wife of a city fire inspector and mother of three children, Williams apparently has conquered her own emotions. She goes about her housework almost normally.

HANDS DON'T WORK

"There are some things," she said, "that I simply can't do anymore, now that my hands don't work."

But she's able to do most things around the house, still goes shopping, and is getting increasingly involved in the work of the foundation.

"About all I can do," she said, "is show that a person with scleroderma can still function, physically and emotionally."

"And hope that someday is found soon to ward off the disease, so other people won't get it."

Communications Breakdowns Cause Marriage Problems

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

When was the last time you were talking away on the phone and suddenly realized the line had gone dead?

Such communications hang-ups happen in marriage, too. Dr. Joe Venema, Ph.D., clinical psychologist and clinical adjunct professor, School of Psychology, Fuller Theological Seminary, considers this one of the major barriers to a good marriage.

If your spouse thinks you aren't listening, Venema said in an interview, "You don't care about me. I couldn't be important to you if my feelings and concerns aren't."

Lack of caring may not be the major problem, however. Often a couple can improve such "bad connections" by developing better listening techniques. Dr. Venema shared a few suggestions which may help unjam the lines of communication:

1. There's more to listening than meets the ear. It involves paying attention to the whole person. How your spouse sits, the set of his jaw and what he does with his hands may tell you even more about how he feels than the words he says. "Body language" is very important.

2. Anything important enough to distract your eyes or attention needs to be temporarily laid aside. You need to really "attend" to the other person.

3. Listening also requires putting aside your own agenda for a while. How can you give someone else your full attention when you're planning a rebuttal?

4. Listen for feelings as well as content, Dr. Venema urges. Feelings are very central in a marriage. Can you help each other verbally identify or "label" how you feel?

5. An active, involved listener does a lot of talking. He uses words to "mirror back" what he thinks the other is communicating. This permits correction of errors: "Is what I heard really what my partner meant?"

It also sends a message back to the speaker: "This person is really trying to hear what I'm saying." Further sharing is encouraged.

"Listening to somebody means getting inside of their experiences," Dr. Venema added. "It means checking out how they feel about an issue, instead of projecting your experience onto them. The goal of empathy is to understand and value the other person's feelings and opinions as well as you know your own."

Such communication builds trust between people, Dr. Venema says. "I trust you to care as much about how I feel as about how you feel."

Dr. Venema believes listening alone is not enough to close the communications gap. "We also need to send clear messages."

"When we get married, we discover there's a lot of ourselves we've long ago learned to hide," he continued. "Some of us hide our feelings of sadness. When we're hurting, we withdraw. Our partner wonders, 'What did I do?'"

Dr. Venema hastens to add that sometimes secrets in marriage are OK. "In marriage we work toward deeper sharing. We also don't try to argue each other out of our feelings. We respect and accept them... and work from there."

Pre-Operative Study Of Sex-Change Candidates Evaluate Motives, Future

BY DARRELL SIFFORD
Knight News Wire

Since 1970, surgeons have performed 27 sex-change operations at Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia. 26 of which turned men into women.

Surgery on a man takes about 4 1-2 hours and costs $2,500. More than 20 men are now on the waiting list.

For every person who has surgery, 20 have asked about the sex-change operation. Many drop out when told they will have to be evaluated by a psychiatrist who will determine if they are suitable candidates.

What does the psychiatrist look for? Dr. James H. Gilfoil is one of the psychiatrists who make these evaluations. He is 30, married, the father of two children.

He talks about his evaluation of sex-change candidates:

"Our philosophy is to be very cautious. Obviously this is not the kind of surgery you can redo. It's irrevocable. What I'm looking for is the ideal candidate, a man who's been extremely feminine for as long as he can remember."

"These people are transsexuals. They have the bodies of men but psychologically they want to be women. Many of them come for the interview dressed as women. They've probably undergone electrolysis - their facial body hair is gone - and they've perhaps been taking estrogen, a female hormone that has a castrating effect on men."

"I'm interested in how feminine they are in appearance, manner and dress. How do I feel about them? Do I call them 'Miss' or what? What feelings are stirred up in me? Do I feel I'm in the room with a woman?"

"From the patient I want to know how much he enjoys feminine things and feminine interests."

"The red flags are if he has some masculine aspects about him - his way of walking, crossing his legs, lighting his cigaret. Is his makeup garish, kind of out of whack?"

"Some of them come in with real psychological problems. But others are just anxious or upset. In that respect they're no different from other patients, some of whom are fairly together while others are crazy as bedbugs."

"I see in many of them a real sense of hope, that they're finally on the right track, that they have a real chance to feel better about themselves."

"Most of them don't feel good about themselves. The problems they've had in life are incredible. A lot of the people who want the surgery are on welfare. That says something about how tough it is to be a transsexual."

QUESTION: Dr. Gilfoil, is there a common pattern you find in the backgrounds of male transsexuals?

ANSWER: In general we find that this is the youngest boy in the family. He has great physical beauty. He seems to have a close and special relationship with his mother very early in life. During his first two or three years he's with her literally day and night.

The relationship is nonconflictual. Mother never manifests any aggression toward the boy.

The father is distant or absent. He could be overseas in the military or perhaps working two jobs. The boy identifies closely with the mother and by 18 or 24 months feels feminine. He knows he's a boy but he feels feminine.

He has no model to learn masculinity from. If he has brothers, they're usually distant like the father. If he has sisters, they're often influential. They may have a lot to do with dressing him in girls' clothing. He's normally fairly slight of build - like a girl.

So the boy goes to school and comes in contact with other boys for the first time. And the problems he has are incredible. He's taunted by the other boys because he wants to play with girls. He's more comfortable with girls. This is the core of his identity - being female.

Q. How does he try to cope at school?
A. He's apt to adopt a fake masculinity, a facade that will help him get along in school with less hassling. How he dresses will depend on his mother, but usually he'll try to appear as much like a boy as he can. But in fantasy he'll go back to the feminine world to find relief from his torment.

He's likely to suffer from anxiety, loneliness, depression. He's a miserable kid.

Q. Is there psychological scarring that remains after the sex-change operation?

A. Surprisingly, there's little scarring from the taunting and disapproval. After surgery these people feel less anxious and depressed, their relationships are improved and they do better work at their jobs.

But they do seem doomed to certain other problems later in life.

There seems to be some defect in the sense of identification. Even though they feel better about themselves, there's a feeling that something's missing. Many of them seem to have difficulty in forming deep, meaningful relationships. I'm talking about marriage.

Q. Does the transsexual, while a man, engage in homosexual relationships with other men?

A. He doesn't consider it homosexual. These transsexuals are homosexual as we would define it legally, but they don't think so. To them their interest in a man is heterosexual - because they consider themselves women.

This is what sets them apart from transvestites and homosexuals. The transvestite enjoys dressing as a woman and is sexually excited by it. The homosexual may dress as a woman - as a way to make fun of women. But both know they're men. Occasionally they'll go through periods when they feel as if they want to be women. And some of them come in to inquire about sex-change surgery. You have to be careful because they aren't good candidates - since basically they think of themselves as men.

Q. What would you say to a mother who's worried that her relationship with her infant son is too close, that it could turn him into a transsexual?

A. Well, if she's concerned about it, then she probably has nothing to worry about. But basically she should show appreciation of her son's masculinity. My boy is only six months old, but my wife already calls him "Big Boy." That is what I'm talking about.

If the father is frequently absent, a mother should encourage her son to play with his brothers. Or she should take him to a playground so he can be with other boys. He should be dressed like a boy. His haircut should be a boy's. It's important that he have a clean-cut sense of sex.

Recipe Contest Winners Give Low-Cal Fish Ideas

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Cash and calorie-saving versions of the French scallop dish, "Coquilles St. Jacques," brought prizes to two Slim Gourmet readers. Winners of this month's "Reader Recipe Contest" are Mrs. Frederick Wilson of Wakefield, R.I. for her "Thin Man's Coquilles," and Lee Nelke of West Acton, Mass. for her "Poor Man's Mock Coquilles."

Both have won copies of my new "Slim Gourmet Cookbook" for their inventive ideas.

Mrs. Wilson adapted her recipe from one learned years ago in a gourmet cooking class in New York City. Only 5 feet 2, Mrs. Wilson writes that three years ago, she weighed 140 pounds and wore a size 16. Then she began to cut down on fattening ingredients. Today she weighs 107 pounds and wears a size 10 or 12.

In its original form, her prize-winning recipe calls for butter, heavy cream and mushrooms sauteed in lots more butter.

COQUILLES ST. JACQUES

1 pound small scallops, fresh or defrosted
2 cups dry white wine
1 tablespoon dry onion flakes
2 tablespoons diet margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 jumbo or 2 small egg yolks
one-half cup skim milk
3-ounce can drained mushroom pieces
one-half cup grated Gruyere cheese (2 ounces)
salt, white pepper, nutmeg

Combine scallops, wine and onion in a heavy non-stick skillet over medium heat. Poach gently in the wine five minutes.

Remove scallops with a slotted spoon and place in four baking shells or a shallow ovenproof dish.

Boil wine in the skillet until reduced to about one cup. Pour into a saucepan and set aside over very low heat.

Melt the margarine in the same skillet over low heat. Gradually blend in the flour. Add the warm wine slowly. Cook and stir until thickened.

In a small bowl, beat egg yolks with milk. Gradually beat in some of the hot wine sauce. Return the hot wine and egg sauce to the skillet over very, very low heat. Add the mushrooms. Cook and stir over very low heat until thickened, but do not boil. Season to taste with salt, pepper, nutmeg.

Spoon the sauce over the scallops and top with grated cheese.

Bake in a preheated 450 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes until top is lightly browned and bubbly.

Serves four, 205 calories each.

LEE'S "PAUVRE COQUILLES"
"Have you tried to buy scallops lately," writes co-winner Lee Nelke, who teaches gourmet cooking classes at the Acton-Boxborough Adult School. "I use firm white fish. So for a mere pittance, you can prepare Coquilles St. Jacques for a fraction of the cost."

To make mock scallops, substitute one pound fresh, firm white fish fillets, preferably cusk, haddock or turbot. Rinse under cold water. Then gently cut the fish into 1-inch scallop-size cubes.

Use in the foregoing recipe.

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

Will Abutilon Grow Happily Inside Home?

By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Dear Mother Earth: I recently received a lovely plant as a gift. There were no instructions and no identification. I was completely stumped as to how to care for it. After many inquiries, I learned it is a flowering maple. What does it need to live indoors? Please pass on to your readers that when they give a plant as a gift they should identify it and give some simple instructions for its care. Otherwise, it's like Russian roulette. Thanks for all the help. - J.V. Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear J.V.: When houseplants are purchased there ought to be a "name tag" for identification, so that when we seek information on their care we will have some place intelligent to come from, rather than, "Well, I have this plant, and it's green, and it has leaves. . . . It's up to the buyer to ask: What is this? Where will it do best? What about food, water, and so forth?"

Your plant, flowering maple or Abutilon, is a beautiful indoor plant that will flower - in the brightest indoor sunlight. It likes to be slightly pot-bound and needs frequent pinching back for shaping. The leaves are reminiscent of a sugar maple, but they are not related to the maple tree. Their relative is the hollyhock. The blooms can be white, yellow, pink or red, shaped like bells. Enjoy and happy growing!

(Now available, the Mother Earth Plantasia album of warm earth music for plants. Send checks or money orders for $5.50 including postage and handling, to Western International Premiums, in care of The Register, P.O. Box 80817, Los Angeles, Calif. 90080. ## Polly's Pointers

Try these time-savers to tackle cleaning

By Polly Cramer

Cleaning and everyday jobs are not easy by anyone's standards but with different and perhaps unusual ways to do them, such jobs can be almost fun. Our readers have always come up with many such pointers.

DEAR POLLY — When taking ashes out of the fireplace, dampen a folded newspaper on one side and turn face down over the bucket or scuttle. Simply lift a corner of the paper as you put in each shovelful of ashes. The damp paper catches any flying dust. Also, the cardboard that comes in a shirt from the laundry makes a more satisfactory "picker upper" than any shovel or dustpan.

DEAR POLLY — When you want to rearrange the furniture, lift one end of a piece at a time and put a child's roller skate under each end. If moving over a bare floor, it is worthwhile to glue a bit of felt on the skate wheels.

One big housekeeping worry for mothers is the black marks that children's shoes often make on the floor. Usually a pencil eraser will remove them without hurting the wax job or scrubbing so hard.

DEAR POLLY — If paper is stuck to a varnished table top, do not try to scrape it off with a knife. Pour on olive oil, a few drops at a time, and rub with a soft cloth. Repeat until all the paper comes off.

DEAR POLLY — When covering chairs with plastic material, I tie a man's folded handkerchief over my dry iron with the temperature set at "wool". I use this to warm the plastic just enough so it stretches easily around the corners. This is a bit harder than making pleats at the corners but looks so much better it is well worth the trouble.

DEAR POLLY — If you have trouble reaching those cobwebs in a high stair well, tie an old towel on one end of a broomstick. With no trouble at all clean the whole wall free of webs. No stretching at all.

DEAR POLLY — This is for those who scrub floors on their hands and knees. My husband took a scrap of lumber about twelve inches square and put four rollers on the bottom. I glued a piece of foam rubber on the top and then covered that with a scrap of cloth to finish my "scooter". My knees are really saved as I scoot over the floor while cleaning it.

DEAR POLLY — The shampoo we use comes in a plastic tube and it was always difficult getting the last bit out. I had the happy thought of filling a seemingly empty tube with water to then squirt on my hair. I was surprised that this makes enough for about three more shampoos. We used to toss away such a tube but now keep them until there are no more suds. — MRS. J.P.

DEAR POLLY — I have found the best way to dust wrought iron furniture is to spray a clean paint brush with furniture polish and then dust. The brush gets into all the grooves. — MRS. S.J.V.

DEAR POLLY — I painted a metal lunch box a favorite color, added a decal and have a great container for sewing notions, hobby equipment or small handy tools. — M.B.S.

DEAR POLLY — If you want to paint stairs and must use them meanwhile paint every other step and let them dry thoroughly and then paint the remaining steps.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of The Register, P.O. Box 11626, Santa Ana 92711.

VISIONS OF SUGAR PLUMS — Dining and dancing to the music of the 'Notables' will be featured Saturday at the 12th annual Sugar Plum Ball sponsored by the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce. The event, which is being held to raise funds for the chamber's community service projects, will begin at 8 p.m. in the Crystal Ballroom of the Grand Hotel, Anaheim. The theme of this year's event is 'Winter Fantasy.' Door prizes will be offered. Reservations may be made through Wednesday by contacting the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce offices. Dressed up for the gala event night on the town are Tom Wallace, publicity co-chairman and Ruby Rhea, general chairman.

English Queens Inspire Capucci's New Collection

By DANIELA PETROFF

AP Fashion Writer
ROME (AP) — Capucci in his new collection of spring and summer fashions goes back through the centuries to two English queens who gave their names to fashion, Elizabeth I and Victoria.

The magician of the surprise effect unveiled his latest collection at Rome's three-day fashion last week. Mila Schon and Lancetti shared the spotlight.

Capucci transported Elizabethan collars into boleros with a stiff wide collar in the back, tapering down to the bottom curve.

He turned the 19th-century sidesaddle outfit into an elegant evening ensemble in black crepe, worn with a delicate white georgette blouse and a high lace Victorian collar.

Then he hurled his audience into a futuristic era where geometric layers of stiff, brightly colored fabric were used as collars and sleeves, on boleros and dresses alike.

Capucci also played with the apron, using it for a double face effect in both daytime and evening wear. A skirt was untied in the front and tied again at the back to reveal a new pattern underneath.

Mila Schon's raincoat in bottle green is cut like a trench coat but with a wider belt and looser bottom to make it special. And her T-shirt is a striped silk knit to make it just a little more special.

But it was in her blouse look that she really excelled in practical femininity. Mantled in white silk for daytime, worn with a wide brown leather belt with skirts and pants, she changed it into fine georgette and lace for evening, with either a loose tie neck or a high grandmother collar.

Using the same fabric and design, she extended it into a floor-length evening dress.

Pino Lancetti's collection was a canvas of color ranging from the steppes of the Hungarian plains to the shores of Spanish Marbella.

Peasant blouses with heart and floral embroidery were worn over black skirts reaching just below the knee, and the gaudy red, yellow and green called to mind a warm night around the gypsy campfire.

Members of three women's GOP organizations have announced program plans and speakers for upcoming meeting.

Orange

"The Problems of Implementing Current Legislation" will be the topic of the Orange Republican Women Federated meeting at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in Lee's Village Chinese Restaurant, 2940 E. Chapman Ave., Orange.

Michael Capizzi, Orange County assistant district attorney, will be guest speaker. Mrs. Harry St. George is program chairman.

Newport Harbor

Newport Harbor Republican

Wide-tiered ruffled skirts in red and black polka dots on a white background and their shoulderless black blouses with ample three-quarter sleeves, were a call to castanets and flamenco.

Lancetti also paid tribute to 19th-century French Romanticism in a series of floral prints, loosely draped so the body would not interfere with the beauty of the fabric.

The body was exalted in seethrough peasant blouses in white and black chiffon and in his hot pants jump suit. Peeking through a femininely flounced skirt open at the front, the suit is made of black frilled lace with a spaghetti-strapped bodice and short bloomer pants.

GOP Women Slate Meets

Women will hold a community meeting and installation of officers at 10 a.m. Thursday in the Corona del Mar home of Mrs. Edwin F. Steen Jr. Coffee will be served before the meeting begins.

Thomas F. Riley, chairman of the Orange County Board of Supervisors, will speak to members and guests of the club. The meeting is open to the public and further information may be obtained from Mrs. Steen.

Huntington Beach

Harriett Wieder, mayor of Huntington Beach, will speak on "The Women's Crusade for a Sensible Economy" at the 11:30 a.m. Wednesday meeting of Huntington Beach Republican Women's Club Federated in Murdy Park Center, Huntington Beach. Mrs. Lawrence Lundring, Huntington Beach, may be contacted for additional information.

Ivy Baker Priest

Installation of officers for 1977 will be held by the Ivy Baker Priest Forum, Republican Women Federated, at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Carl H. Lykke of Santa Ana.

The new slate includes Mmes. Lykke, president; Douglas Moran, Gerald Schultz and Ronald Russell, vice presidents; John DeYulia, secretary and Donald Manahan, treasurer.

Organization chairmen are Mmes. Charles Health, chaplain; George Daws, historian; Gilbert Moore, parliamentary; A.A. Famalaro, Americanism; James Roy, citizens-by-choice; Hamilton Dutcher, campaign; Peter Vogel, conventions; Billy Waldron, hospitality; Joseph Scherer, legislation and Leo Miceli, telephone. Mrs. Lykke may be contacted for reservations.

Costa Mesa

The Costa Mesa Federated Republican Women's installation luncheon will be held Saturday in the Rowdew Inn, 1400 S. Bristol St., Costa Mesa. Social hour will be from 11:30 a.m. to noon, followed by lunch. Mary Smallwood, Costa Mesa city councilwoman, will be the speaker.

Officers to be installed are Marguerite Beene, president; Juanita Cordeiro, Mina Avis, Marty Wilson, vice presidents; Mary Benton, recording secretary; and Suzanne Bodenheiser, treasurer.

The luncheon is open to members, guests and all interested Republican women. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Ray John of Newport Beach.

SICK CHILDREN

Comfort May Be Best Medicine

By SUSAN KIRVIN
Copley News Service
LOS ANGELES — When your child is sick you're apt to feel just as miserable as he or she.

Parents often feel helpless watching their little ones suffer with a fever, runny nose, stuffy head cold, flu bug, virus or one of several childhood diseases.

But you can relieve some of your child's misery by administering a little tender loving care. Comforting your youngster while he's ill may be the best medicine you can prescribe.

Dr. Barbara Adler, a pediatrician, offers parents some tips to follow when caring for a sick youngster.

If your child has a fever, watch him closely. Often a fever indicates a virus or infection is present in the body. If the fever persists more than 24 hours or the child is unusually listless, difficult to arouse, has uncontrollable diarrhea, vomiting or respiratory difficulties, consult a physician.

Take your child's temperature. A rectal rather than oral temperature reading is prescribed.

Never give your child medicine unless it's prescribed by a doctor. Children's aspirin and other medications should be used sparingly and according to directions on the bottle.

It's perfectly safe for a sick child to take a bath provided he stays out of drafts.

Loss of appetite often accompanies illness and even the biggest eater sometimes prefers to skip meals when he's not feeling his best.

Usually an ill child will tell you what he feels up to eating. Liquids generally are preferred over solid food the first few days.

Clear liquids like soup, tea, soft drinks, gelatin and juices are wholeheartedly recommended. Hold off serving milk and other dairy products to youngsters with fevers, the flu or colds.

They can cause diarrhea or nausea.

If you suspect your child has measles or any other contagious childhood diseases, try to separate him from his siblings.

This may be difficult since the infectious period may already have begun before any obvious signs of a disease are apparent.

Keep an ill child's dishes and eating utensils separate from the rest of the family's.

You can protect your child against infectious childhood diseases by having him immunized. Except for chicken pox, vaccines today can guard your child against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, polio, German measles, regular measles and mumps.

The 10-day measles peak during the winter and spring months.

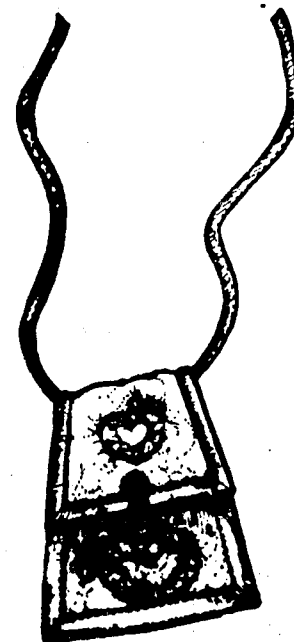

Dr. Adler suggests parents whose children were immunized prior to 1970 should check with their doctor to make sure their child's vaccination is up-to-date.

WEDDINGS

Erven - Hubbard

The Rev. Michael Samsvick heard the nuptial promises of Miss Kimberly Sue Erven and John Stephen Hubbard Friday, Jan. 21, in Calvary Church, of Santa Ana.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Erven of Orange, hosted a reception in the church social hall before the newlyweds left for a honeymoon in Big Bear.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hubbard of Garden Grove are parents of the bridegroom.

The former Miss Erven was attired in a gown of nylon chiffon and venise lace with pearl appliques. A lace and pearl crown held her fingertip-length veil, and her flowers were red and pink roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Attendants were Miss Sue Kelso, maid of honor; Ronald Hubbard, best man; Penny Davis, Jennifer Erven, Cindy Hubbard and Lisa Berkley, bridesmaids; Tony Shriver, Vince Lagrange, Dan McCloud and Kirk Hubbard, ushers; and Stacy Worsham and Michelle Murray, flower girls.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard will be residents of Fountain Valley.

Roliver - Kane

Suzanne Ellen Roliver and Patrick Francis Kane were united in marriage by the Rev. Robert Glass in Grace Assembly Church, Syracuse, N.Y.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Garcia of Huntington Beach and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Teresa Kane of Syracuse and the late Francis Kane.

Attending the couple were the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Colapalo.

Immediately following the ceremony a dinner was held for the newlyweds in Stereo's Landmark Restaurant owned by another aunt and uncle of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Van Stereo.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Kane are making their home in Solway, N.Y.

Schoonover - Hilton

The Little Church of the West, Las Vegas, Nev., was setting for the marriage of Janna Maria Schoonover of Tustin and artist John W. Hilton of Twenty-nine Palms.

Mrs. M. Bart of Zoutmanstr, Holland, and Mrs. Blanch Hilton of Hemet are mothers of the couple.

Clarke-Smith

Polyester organza and cluny lace were fashioned into the gown worn Saturday, Jan. 22, by Miss Janis M. Clarke for her wedding to Craig E. Smith in Holy Family Cathedral, Orange. The Rev. L.L. Kerkulberg heard the nuptial promises of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Clarke of Orange and the son of the Arthur Smiths of Napa, formerly of Orange.

The flounced wedding gown ended in a chapel train and was worn with a floor-length veil edged in matching lace and confined by a headpiece embellished with pink satin ribbon. The bride's bouquet was made of white carnations and pink roses.

Honor attendants were Donna Clarke and Tim Boyd. Also in the wedding party were Catherine Clarke and Wendy DeWitt, bridesmaids; Dennis Smith, Ken Admire and Douglas Clarke, ushers; and Mary-Kate and Sharon Clarke, junior bridesmaids.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in the Fullerton Elks Lodge before the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon in Hawaii. They will make their first home in Orange.

CREATED FOR GARBO

Strip False Lashes Developed In '34

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) - One day in 1934, Greta Garbo marched into the makeup department at MGM - she was making "Ninotchka" at the time - and said, "I want no more individual false eyelashes."

Then she left and it was up to Evelyn Marshall, her makeup artist, to deal with the situation.

"I went home hysterical thinking how can I make her wispy lashes look good? In those days we were using individual lashes made of real hair. You'd pick one up with a pair of tweezers and attach it to the real lash with spirit gum. The spirit gum was making Garbo's lashes break."

Well, if she needed hair to start with, Ms. Marshall had a headful, so she pulled three strands of her own, dabbed some spirit gum on them so they formed a "cord," and pinned it to the arm of an overstuffed chair.

"Then I looped other pieces of my own hair around this cord using spirit gum to hold them there. I put wave set on them and curled them overnight in a metal curler. Then I carried them to the studio that way, uncurled them and cut off what I needed for Garbo."

She did that each day, creating new batches of lashes as needed and it was not only satisfactory, she says, "it was the first time anyone had made a strip of lashes you could put on the eyelid like a piece of adhesive tape that could be peeled off." Garbo was happy, MGM was happy, but when Ms. Marshall's two-year contract expired, "I refused to sign again. When you're doing make-up for a movie company, initially it's interesting but when you have to repeat the same make-up for weeks or months in production . . . It's like one too many peanut butter sandwiches."

So she went into business for herself, first as a free-lance makeup artist in advertising, finally as the head of Evelyn Marshall Cosmetics, which you may not have heard of.

"I usually sell one fine specialty store in a city," says the blonde, fit, 61-year-old entrepreneur, "but I don't advertise. If I did, I'd have to charge more than I do. My false eyelashes, which are made of real hair, have been $10 since they went on the market in 1963, even though the cost of making them has increased."

She makes seven styles for upper lashes varying in thickness and length, and available in black, brown and black-brown.

"Liza Minnelli and Cher wear the Spiders," she said, indicating long, wispy lashes.

She used to make them all by hand herself, "but now I have a lot of Oriental women who do this piece work for me at home. I examine all the lashes to make sure they're tied evenly and that there are no 'jumps' in them where hairs have broken off."

CLOSE LOOK - Attract attention to the eyes while detracting from imperfect features, with natural-looking false eyelashes. ("Evening Wisps" by Evelyn Marshall.)

Then they're given a permanent, sterilized and the customer gets a pair of lashes she can color with mascara and clean with soap and water. "And they won't lose their curl."

For most of her natural resources, Ms. Marshall looks to the heads of Europe. "We get our blonde hair from Scandinavia because they have a very high protein diet there and the hair is strong. Also, they don't expose themselves to the sun - you can't use hair that's bleached or dyed."

The brown shades "come from the poorer sections of Spain," a country whose religious customs once enabled her to beat inflation.

"Hair was shooting up. It was about $120 a pound. I had a friend in Spain who wrote and said why don't you buy hair from the Koreans at $20 a pound and send it to me."

So she did and he, armed with the Korean hair, ambled into the small country churches where the people left locks of hair on the altars.

He'd go over to the priest and say if you let me switch this hair for the Spanish hair on the altar, I'll give you $60 a pound for the poor box.

"The priest would say yes, the poor got help and I got a trunkful of Spanish hair."

Swedish or not, the false eyelashes you buy, she says, "should match your hair color as closely as possible so they look like you grew them. And don't forget that anything you see sitting in a box will look twice as heavy on."

That's why "we mix hair shades. Our eyelashes are never all one solid shade because normal hair isn't. Even in solid black there are variations."

Listen to the advice of the salesgirl, if she'll talk to you, and be aware, finally, of the service false eyelashes can perform.

"You can attract attention into the eyes without screaming makeup and falseness," she says, "and at the same time, you can detract from not so good features."

FREE CO-OP FORMED

Women Find Answer To Babysitting Problem

By CRAIG STOCK
Knight News Wire

For a dollar a year, you can hire a babysitter whenever you need one.

And at night, the sitter can come to your home, so your child's sleeping pattern won't be disrupted. And you'll be comforted to know that the sitter is a responsible adult, with children of her own.

Take the word of Janice Goudy and Connie Duvall of Wichita, Kan. - it's great. It's a baby-sitting cooperative.

"It really gave me a new lease on life," said Goudy, who founded the babysitting exchange with 13 other women about two years ago. "I've been able to get out and do things that otherwise I just couldn't do. It frees you. Those of us who are in it just wouldn't trade it for anything."

"It's worked extremely well for me," Duvall said. "What could be nicer than having a responsible parent arrive at your house and care for your child?"

Goudy got together with other women at Pine Valley Christian Church and formed the cooperative in 1974. Its organization is based on an Ann Arbor, Mich., co-op and another in Aspen, Colo., where one of the founders had lived.

Members pay $1 a year toward clerical costs of the group, but they pay nothing for the babysitting.

The free babysitting works like this:

A member who needs a sitter telephones the member designated as secretary (each member takes a two-week turn as secretary once a year). The member (called a "gadder," or one who gads about) tells the secretary when the sitter is needed and any special information about the children - illnesses, special diet and so on.

The secretary calls other members of the cooperative until she finds one who agrees to babysit. The sitter then calls the gadder to work out arrangements. After the sitter has finished the job, she calls the secretary to report the number of points she has earned.

The point system works like this:

A sitter earns two points for each hour of sitting. On Friday and Saturday nights, each hour is worth three points. After midnight, a sitter earns four points an hour. If the sitter makes lunch, she gets a point. If she makes dinner, she earns two points.

So, if a sitter worked for you on a Thursday night from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m., she would have earned 13 points. Then, when it came that sitter's time to be a gadder, she would have a "bank" of points to apply toward the "cost" of the sitting.

ting. The number of points isn't multiplied by the number of children in a family, so a one-child family "pays" the same in points for a sitter as a three-child family.

Husbands share in the sitting duties, both women said, and the families involved in the cooperative get to know each other well, easing worries about letting a "stranger" see the unwashed dishes.

Not just anyone can join.

The group's by-laws require that new members be sponsored by an existing member. This has prevented problems with families that use, but don't pay back, sitting points.

WSU Women's Caucus Plans Program On Legal Internships

The Certified Legal Internship Program, by which law students can receive practical legal training with a public service agency while earning academic credit, will be discussed at the Thursday meeting of the Women's Caucus of Western State University College of Law of Orange County (WSU).

The meeting, which will be held at the Red Onion in Fullerton, will begin with a no-host cocktail reception at 4 p.m. The program will begin at 5 p.m. and will be followed by dinner.

Guest speakers will be Richard Padgham, county district deputy attorney, John O'Connell, WSU dean of students, and Joanne Harrold of the county Public Defender's Office.

Tickets may be purchased at the Women's Caucus Bookstore or the Women's Caucus Office at the college.

Library 'Friends' Slate Installation, Speaker

Support groups for two Orange County libraries have announced agendas for Wednesday meetings.

Capistrano Bay

Capistrano Bay Area Friends of the Library will hold its installation of officers at 7:30 p.m. in the All-Purpose Room of San Clemente Community Clubhouse.

Sophia Spar Laff will assume the duties of president assisted by Karen Lochmiller, Kathleen Mansfield and Julia Wilcox, vice presidents; Anne Manning, secretary; and Jackie Seaman, treasurer.

Also scheduled is a slide program on Europe to be presented by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Laff of San Clemente, who recently returned from a trip to Switzerland, Austria, France and Luxembourg.

The affair is open to the public.

Tustin

Pau Wallach, restaurant author and columnist for "Westways" magazine, will be guest speaker at the 7 p.m. meeting of the Friends of the Tustin Library in the library's community room, Centennial Avenue and Main St.

Wallach will conduct a question-answer period about Southern California restaurants. Mrs. Charles Fisher is program chairwoman. The event is open to the public, and the library may be contacted for additional information.

Life's Problems Topic Of Speech

"Problems Experienced in Daily Life" will be the topic of the Saddleback Charter Chapter, American Business Women's Association, at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Revere House, 900 W. First St., Tustin.

L.D. Newcomer of the American Institute of Awareness, Orange, will be guest speaker.

Spanish Official Nabbed

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The president of Spain's top military court was kidnapped today and riot police battled left-wing demonstrators in downtown Madrid for the second straight day.

Four armed men grabbed Lt. Gen. Emilio Villacampa Quilis, president of the Supreme Court of Military Justice, as he left his downtown apartment to go to his office and drove him off in his army car, news reports said.

An official army statement gave no indication of the probable identity of the kidnapers of the 64-year-old general, but there were reports and allegations accusing both leftists and rightists of the abduction.

Hundreds of left-wing protesters demanding amnesty for political prisoners clashed with police at the Madrid University campus and on the central Gran Via, temporarily blocking traffic on the busy avenue.

At the campus, police fired rubber bullets and tear gas to disperse the crowds and struck fleeing demonstrators with riot sticks. The violence in both locations ended by afternoon.

There were no immediate reports of serious injuries.

Police broke up similar attempts to stage pro-amnesty protests Sunday. (See page A5).

Government leaders gathered at an emergency meeting today to discuss the Villacampa kidnapping.

The news agency Europa Press said it was believed the general was abducted by GRAPO, the leftist group that kidnapped an adviser to King Juan Carlos, Antonio Maria de Oriol, six weeks ago. But leftist political leaders accused ultra-rightists of the kidnapping to provoke an army crackdown on the leftists.

Oriol's kidnapers have been demanding the release of 15 political prisoners, and Europa Press said their last note threatened new attacks unless their demand was met.

Boy, 13, Killed As 'Homemade' Bomb Explodes

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy was killed and his brother injured Sunday when a homemade bomb they found while searching for aluminum cans exploded, police said.

Sgt. Billie Givens identified the dead boy as Daniel Corbett. His brother, John, 11, was hospitalized at the Fort Carson hospital for treatment of shrapnel wounds. He was listed in satisfactory condition.

Givens said the two boys were gathering aluminum cans in an industrial part of the city when they came across the two "homemade bombs," one on the ground next to a large trash box and the other on top of it. Givens said one of the two canisters exploded when the boys checked it, killing one youth and knocking his brother to the ground.

Givens said the second bomb did not explode. He said local police and a squad of ordinance experts from the nearby Army base disarmed the explosive.

Givens said police were investigating.

Many Eastern Schools, Plants Remain Closed

By The Associated Press
Many Kentucky schools are still closed. Florida and Georgia growers are counting crop losses and laying off workers, and Ohio's governor declared an energy emergency as the impact of one of the coldest winters on record is outlasting the subzero temperatures.

A General Motors assembly plant in Doraville, Ga., was closed until further notice because of a propane gas shortage, a company spokesman said Sunday. The shutdown laid off 4,500 workers.

In Ohio, Gov. James A. Rhodes met Sunday with fuel industry spokesmen and union, business and government officials and then declared an energy emergency, but not an energy crisis as some groups had recommended.

Rhodes' action asks residential natural gas users to observe 65-degree temperature limits. The Ohio general assembly scheduled a special session for Tuesday to consider any legislation Rhodes may believe is necessary.

In Florida, agriculture authorities were trying to calculate the damage from the state's worst freeze in 15 years, which some predicted at well over $120 million. "Celery, lettuce and peppers were wiped out," said Frank Pope, chairman of the Florida Emergency Board. "They were ready to harvest. The growers can still replant but a lot of workers will be off for a while."

He said the tomato loss alone would probably hit $43 million. Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, taking into consideration that more than 100,000 farm workers may be out of jobs, on Saturday declared a general state of disaster, opening the way for farm workers to get the unemployment compensation they normally could not receive.

In neighboring Georgia, Gene Dyson, president of the Georgia Business and Industry Association, said 50,000 workers have been laid off there. He said the figure could rise to 150,000 to 200,000 if cold weather and natural gas shortages continued through the next week or two.

Officials have said it could be a month before gas supplies are sufficient to reopen such plants closed due to energy shortages.

Although temperatures warmed in some areas over the weekend, numerous schools remained closed today.

Plumber Rescues 2 Children; 5 Killed

JACKSON CENTER, Ohio (AP) — Five children died early Sunday when fire destroyed their house. Two other children survived because a passing plumber had a ladder on his truck, fire officials said.

Plumber Marvin Rostorfer said he was en route to a trouble call when Janet Cowart, 32, stopped him. "She said her children were trapped in the house. Fire was coming out all over the place," Rostorfer said.

"Neighbors said two kids were standing at one of the upstairs windows," he said. "We tried to get them to jump, but the girl apparently had passed out. The boy was pretty close to going under."

Then Rostorfer remembered the ladder on his truck. "I went up and got the girl out, but she slipped from my hands and fell," he said. "The boy got out on his own okay."

Ruth Smith, 14, was injured

when she fell about 15 feet to the ground. She was in the intensive care unit of a Sidney hospital.

Russell Smith, 11, was held at the hospital for observation. "By the time I got them out, the smoke was too heavy for me to get to the others," the plumber said.

Firemen recovered the bodies of Betty Smith, 16; Brenda Smith, 13; Julie Smith, 10; David Cowart, 7, and Carrie Cowart, 4, Shelby County deputies said.

Mrs. Cowart was in a downstairs bedroom when a water heater in the basement caught fire. She escaped by breaking a bathroom window, but her children were trapped upstairs. She was the mother of all seven.

Jackson Center Fire Chief Don Bailey said the house, a multiple-family dwelling converted into a one-family house, was totally engulfed when his department arrived.

Carter Urges Abolition Of All Nuclear Testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is calling for a halt to all nuclear testing, "instantly and completely," as part of a broader program to curb the spread of nuclear weapons and ultimately ban them from the earth.

In his first interview as President, conducted Sunday for publication today, Carter acknowledged that he did not know whether the Soviet Union would agree to his proposal for a quick halt that would stop even underground testing. But, he said, "They have sent an encouraging message back."

The fledgling President, meeting in his Oval Office with four reporters for The Associated Press and United Press International, also expressed optimism that there will be "fairly rapid ratification" of a new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviets.

And he said his National Security Council is in agreement on the need to reduce overseas sales of American-made weapons, but that he does not anticipate "a moratorium" on such sales.

On strategic arms talks, Carter hinted that he might be willing to bypass for later consideration a longstanding East-West debate over how to deal with the U.S. cruise missile and Soviet backfire bomber in any new strategic arms pact. He declared: "I would not let those two items stand in the way of some agreement."

Asserting that he "very deeply" meant what he said in his inaugural address about ultimately eliminating all nuclear weapons everywhere, Carter, in his most detailed national security-foreign policy statement to date, envisioned a three-step effort aiming toward that end.

First, he said, the two superpowers would have to "put firm limits on ourselves" as the objective of a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT).

Then the United States and the Soviet Union would go a step further and actually reduce their own stockpiles of atomic weapons which would, he said, "demonstrate to the world we are sincere."

From that point he would seek "reductions including all nations, even those who have a relatively small inventory now."

Nutty Present Alarms Mayor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When Mayor George Moscone found a box inside a paper bag on his front steps, he quickly called the police bomb squad.

Officers gingerly placed the package into a special bomb truck Sunday and took it to a disposal center for examination.

The contents? Assorted nuts, a gift to the mayor from an unidentified source. The mayor said he wasn't hungry.

"I would like to proceed quickly and aggressively with a comprehensive test ban treaty," he said. "I am in favor of eliminating the testing of all nuclear devices, instantly and completely." He said this included underground testing as well.

And, the President said, the United States will use "every means available to us" to keep nuclear arms from spreading to countries that do not have them now.

Carter's apparent optimism about prospects for negotiations with the Soviets was matched by an expression of confidence that a Middle East peace conference is "very likely this year."

Asked if he would approve Palestinian representation at such a meeting, the President said the matter has not been decided but that Palestinian participation "would probably be as part of one of the Arab delegations."

He expressed no surprise at the reaction both for and against his blanket pardon Friday of Vietnam-era draft evaders who were not guilty of violent acts. Carter said: "It is something that should have been done. I was very

Report Claims NATO Forces 'In Shambles'

WASHINGTON (AP) — NATO's armed forces are in such disarray and poor condition that they possibly could not withstand an attack by the Warsaw Pact nations of Eastern Europe, says a new Senate report.

In an unusually grim report to the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., said Soviet forces in Eastern Europe have the capability to launch, with little warning, a "potentially devastating" attack in central Europe.

"The significance of a Pact capability to launch such an attack from virtually a standing start cannot be exaggerated," said the report, released as the Armed Services Committee prepared to open annual hearings on U.S. military posture and weapons needs.

The head of a French think tank, meanwhile, said in an interview that the debate in the United States about the possibility of the Soviet Union having achieved military superiority is a false one and U.S. forces are still "clearly dominant."

The statement came from Gen. George Buis, who retired in 1972 as director of the French armed forces' Center for Superior Military Studies. He is now president of the Foundation for National Defense Studies, a three-year-old organization partly financed by the French government.

Buis said recent comments by American military and political leaders that the favorable balance of power was slipping away from the United States were part of "an old operation that we've seen before."

"The facts don't back up the statements of alarm," he said. "They happen, though, every year when they're ab-

MONDALE SAYS

U.S. May Boost Aid To NATO

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale told the North Atlantic Alliance today that President Carter is considering increases in the U.S. contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization despite his plans to cut the Pentagon budget.

He indicated, however, that the United States expects European allies to increase their own spending for the alliance.

Mondale, in a speech to the North Atlantic Council, said the new President is determined to reduce waste and inefficiency in U.S. military spending.

"His new budget and these efficiencies will not result in any decrease in planned investments in NATO defense, and these plans involve some growth," Mondale said.

He said Carter told him he is prepared to consider increasing the U.S. investment in NATO's defense.

"We look to America's allies to join us in improving NATO's defense forces to the limit of individual abilities," he added.

The speech, a highlight of the first stop on Mondale's 10-day tour of America's leading allies, was made behind closed doors, but copies were made available later. NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns and nine ambassadors from other NATO countries spoke after Mondale.

The vice president's day started with a promise to Belgian Premier Leon Tindemans that the European Common Market would have its own separate representative at the summit economic conference of leading industrial non-Communist nations this spring.

Mondale and Tindemans met over breakfast. The vice president told reporters afterward the Belgian gave him

'TOOTS' SHOR
Began In Speakeasys

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernard "Toots" Shor, a saloon-keeper who served strong drinks and good stories to celebrities, has died at age 73. Shor died shortly before midnight Sunday of an undisclosed illness. He had been hospitalized since Dec. 13 at New York University Medical Center.

At the time of his death, Shor was running two mid-Manhattan saloons.

He always said he ran his watering holes for his pals and didn't care that people he didn't like — he called them "crumb bums" — found him somewhat abrupt.

An acquaintance once said, "He's exactly the kind of guy he'd throw out of his place."

Despite his disregard for most accepted rules of good customer relations, Shor attracted a wide and loyal following, including such avowed partisans as writer Ernest Hemingway, baseball great Joe DiMaggio, boxing heavyweight Jack Dempsey — who had his own bar — and the late actor Paul Douglas.

Called "Toots" for as long as he could remember, he was born in Philadelphia on May 6, 1903. His mother died when he was 15, his father five years later.

Shor said his first legitimate job was selling shirts — "I was a hell of a good salesman" — after an apprenticeship in Philadelphia's pool halls.

In his 20's he took a job in a Prohibition-era speakeasy where he met and was fascinated by high-living celebrities and show people.

During this period, Shor met and married a diminutive chorus girl, Marian Volk, whom he always called "Husky." They had three daughters and a son.

Shor was a host at various bars and nightspots through the 1930s. In 1940, he opened his own place on West 51st Street in Manhattan, reportedly with considerable financial help from friends.

That establishment was sold for a reported $1.5 million in 1958 to make way for a luxury hotel.

One of Shor's personality traits was a winning self-effacement. For example, he refused to be called a "restaurateur." "I'm just a creepy saloonkeeper," he in-

NEWS BRIEFS

Six Women Killed In Apartment Fire

HULL, Canada (AP) - Six women were killed and 20 others were injured Sunday by a fire in an apartment complex for elderly persons, authorities in this Quebec community reported.

Police said the blaze broke out at about 4 p.m. in one of 16 units on the second floor of an eight-story building. The second floor is rented by the Quebec government as a home for the elderly.

About 75 other residents were evacuated. The bodies of four of the victims were found in an apartment where the fire apparently started, police said, and the two other bodies were found in an adjoining unit.

The fire was confined to only a few units and was under control within 40 minutes, fire officials said.

An investigation is under way to determine the cause of the blaze.

Names of the victims were not released.

Legion Wants Carter Ousted

HUDSON, Wis. (AP) - Delegates to a state American Legion convention recommended Sunday that President Carter be ousted from the Legion because of his pardon for Vietnam war draft evaders.

Delegates, voting unanimously, adopted a resolution which said Carter should be dismissed from Post No. 2 in Americus, Ga., and should never be allowed membership in the Legion again.

National commander William J. Rogers of Kennebunk, Maine, addressed the convention Saturday, saying Carter's controversial pardon is socially divisive.

About 400 persons attended the three-day convention.

Terrorist Courier Arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Jacques Rogiers, self-proclaimed courier for the terrorist New World Liberation Front, was arrested Sunday on charges of threatening public officials.

A spokesman said the district attorney's office will ask that bail be set at $100,000 on four counts of threatening public officials and one count of threatening for extortion.

The charges mentioned communiques delivered by Rogiers for the NWLF on Dec. 11, 1975; Jan. 9, 1976; Dec. 1, 1976, and Jan. 19, 1977.

The most recent communique claimed credit for a series of bomb blasts at a Sausalito substation of Pacific Gas & Electric Co. The blasts caused no damage.

Broken Pipe Spills Diesel Fuel

BURL, Idaho (AP) - A Chevron Oil Co. crew spent Sunday repairing a break in a Salt Lake City-to-Boise pipeline near here that spilled an undetermined amount of diesel fuel into the Snake River.

Chuck Eckhart, acting manager of the Chevron pipeline, said he did not know how much oil was spilled. He said the break occurred Saturday afternoon when a farmer ruptured the pipeline with a bulldozer while digging a water retention dam.

Eckhart said the oil flowed a mile and a half through irrigation ditches into the river and then downstream.

Chevron crews were able to close the valves 20 minutes after the break, he said.

Abandoned Log Freighter Sinks

HONOLULU (AP) - The abandoned Panamanian freighter Crown Pearl sank in the mid-Pacific before dawn Sunday while another ship was trying to tow it here for salvage, the Coast Guard said.

The Crown Pearl, with a cargo of logs bound for Japan from Tacoma, Wash., was abandoned Jan. 15 by its 25-man crew after it began taking on water. The crew was rescued by another ship.

The Liberian bulk carrier Asia Loyalty put a line on the drifting freighter 856 miles northwest of Honolulu Friday night and had towed it more than 100 miles towards Honolulu when it sank, the Coast Guard said.

The Asia Loyalty said it picked up two of its crewmen it had placed aboard the Crown Pearl and resumed its voyage to Panama, a spokesman said.

Beirut Christians Go On Strike

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) - The Christian half of Beirut went on strike today to protest the entry of Syrian peacekeeping troops in force into their sector, apparently to round up weapons still held by fighters in the Lebanese civil war, reports said.

Travelers arriving from the Lebanese capital said Syrian troops and tanks set up roadblocks and were stopping vehicles in the Christian Ashrafiyeh district.

A deadline for the surrender of all heavy weapons expired 12 days ago, but officials estimated more than half of them were not turned in. Since then, the Syrians and President Elias Sarkis have been discussing confiscation of all weapons.

The Voice of Lebanon, the radio station of the Christian Phalange party, said shops, schools, universities, restaurants and places of entertainment in East Beirut were on strike.

Mother, 5 Children Die In Fire

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) - While a man was out chopping firewood with one of his sons, fire leveled their primitive mountain cabin and killed his wife and his five other children.

The bodies of the victims were found Sunday in the smoldering ruins of the two-story cabin, located at an old mining site 25 miles from here.

The victims were identified by Josephine County sheriff's deputies as Joyce Fay Strickland, 34, and her children Randall, 11; Tamatha, 9; Stephen, 6; Connie Sue, 3; and Matthew Gregory, 1.

"We feel they were upstairs in the bedroom" when the fire broke out, said Deputy Frank Taus.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. The flames had completely engulfed the cabin at 11:48 a.m. when the fire was spotted by a sheriff's deputy on patrol. By the time firefighters arrived the all-wood structure had been destroyed.

The father, Lonnie Strickland, 39, told deputies he and one son, Christopher, 9, had left early Sunday morning to cut firewood.

Police Identify Slain Woman

ORANGE - The body of a 20-year-old woman found slain early Friday morning has been identified by police as Laura Anne Stoughton of 11341 Seacrest Circle, Garden Grove.

The body was found at approximately noon by a cyclist in a remote area of northeast Orange-Villa Park. Police estimated that her death by multiple gunshot wounds to the head occurred between 4 and 6 p.m. Friday.

Police say they have suspects and an arrest is expected soon, but called on the community for eyewitness reports.

The victim was employed at the El Torito Restaurant, Newport Beach, and was last seen by friends at approximately 1:30 a.m. Friday leaving the Registry Hotel, Costa Mesa, apparently enroute to her home in Garden Grove, police said.

Israeli Premiership Race Widens

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - The race for the Israeli premiership widened today as former foreign minister Abba Eban announced his candidacy in national elections May 17.

Eban's challenge came two weeks after another member of the ruling Labor party, Defense Minister Shimon Peres, declared he would contend for the premiership now held by Yitzhak Rabin.

Also running for the top job are Menahem Begin, leader of the rightwing Likud bloc and Prof. Yigael Yadin, heading a new centrist movement of academicians, ex-army chiefs and politicians who have dropped out of traditional parties.

CARTERS WITH BAPTIST REV. CHARLES TRENTHAM
The President Will Teach Sunday School In D.C.

Carters Join DC Baptist Church

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, his wife, daughter Amy and three other members of his family worshipped at the First Baptist Church on Sunday, then walked slowly up the center aisle and asked to become members.

Amy will be baptized in the church and Carter will teach occasional Sunday school classes - his first one week after next.

"What an historic moment this is," Pastor Charles A. Trentham told the congregation, his arms spread in welcome.

"President and Mrs. Carter - Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter - Chip, Annette and Caron ... all you who join the pastor in recommending them to the membership committee raise your hand."

A flurry of hands went up in the congregation.

"Mr. President, next to the privilege of serving the Lord, I count this the highest privilege of my career," the Rev. Mr. Trentham declared.

Carter told reporters his older children had visited several churches in Washington over the past few weeks. "This is their preference, and it's very close to the White House," he said.

"Amy will become a member here. She'll be baptized in this church," Carter added. He said church leaders would question her about her understanding of the faith first.

The first family, joined by son Chip and his wife, Caron, left the White House shortly after 9 a.m. They arrived at the church about 9:30 and were joined by son Jeff and his wife, Annette.

Jeff, who worshipped with the family, did not join the others in walking up the aisle to seek membership.

The First Couple's first stop was at a Sunday school class of about 70 persons. The teacher, Fred Gregg, executive vice president of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., later said Carter had agreed to teach the class about once a month or every five to six weeks beginning Sunday after next.

"He's a good Sunday school teacher," Gregg said.

The Carters chatted with other members of the congregation before the service began, then took their seats in the eighth pew of the church, under stained glass windows, a vaulted ceiling and walnut balconies.

Two candles on the light pine altar were lit. And as Carter put his arm around Rosalynn the congregation heard readings from the Old and New Testaments.

Amy's Tardy On First Day At New School

WASHINGTON (AP) - Escorted by the Secret Service, Amy Carter was late for school on her first day today because of Washington traffic, but she made an excited entry to a special welcome from her classmates.

Rosalynn Carter went to school with her 9-year-old daughter to get her launched and somewhat sheepishly explained to a gathering of reporters that "we miscalculated how long it took to get here."

The school bell had rung twice and it was about 9:12 a.m. when the sleek, black White House sedan drove up in front of Thaddeus Stevens Elementary School, five blocks from the White House. Police and Secret Service agents had roped off the entrance to keep back a crowd of about 50, made up mainly of reporters and a few passersby who stopped to watch.

Wearing a blue and red cap, blue denim jeans and a blue jacket, Amy carried a canvas bag with "Snoopy" written on it and bounded up the stairs with her mother. She paused to turn and wave at those below.

Mrs. Carter said Amy was "really excited" about her first day as a fourth-grader at Stevens. In fact she was so excited she turned down a chance to go bowling with her father Sunday night at the White House so she could get her school materials together, Mrs. Carter related.

The 23 other classmates in the combined fourth-fifth grade class welcomed Amy and said "good morning Mrs. Carter," as they arrived at the class, according to press secretary Mary Hoyt. They had put up a "Welcome Amy" sign and a special mobile with a blue and purple feathered bird as a welcome.

Amy will eat hot lunch in school daily, at a cost of $1.75 a week, Mrs. Hoyt said. She has enrolled in an after-school Spanish class that runs from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m., Mrs. Hoyt said.

Mrs. Carter saw her daughter into the classroom and left about 10 minutes later. She does not intend to accompany Amy every day.

But the Secret Service agents stayed. They will keep guard outside the classroom door and escort Amy during her school hours.

Pentagon Asks New Standby Draft System

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Defense Department is recommending that President Carter create new standby draft machinery, including revival of an annual lottery for young men, to determine the callup order in case of a national emergency mobilization.

The recommendation was sent to the White House in the final days of the Ford administration for consideration by Carter's National Security Council.

A year ago, then-President Gerald R. Ford reduced the Selective Service System to a small Washington planning staff and ended registration of 18-year-olds. He also halted the annual lottery, which determined the callup order based on birth dates.

The lottery had been continued for contingency purposes after the end of the draft in 1973.

In a confidential document, the Defense Department said the nation needs a new standby "wartime draft system," which could produce 650,000 trained men within six months after mobilization.

Rhodesian Whites Refuse New Talks With Blacks

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) - Britain's latest Rhodesian peace effort foundered today as the white minority government firmly rejected new proposals for a return to a Geneva conference with black leaders.

The British chairman of the deadlocked Geneva conference, Ivor Richard, said he saw no purpose in calling the conference together again. He blamed the collapse of the negotiations on Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and said he felt "sad and apprehensive" about the future of Britain's rebel colony in southern Africa.

Meanwhile, security chiefs reported the deaths of eight black nationalist guerrillas, a black government militiaman, four black civilians shot by government troops as curfew breakers and five other black civilians killed by guerrillas in the last three days.

Richard met with Smith for 50 minutes to discuss the new British proposal, which reportedly called for a black-dominated government under British control in the period of transition to independent, black-majority rule.

"What he offered us was unconditional surrender," a source close to the Rhodesian government said. "It was asking Smith to commit political suicide."

The source said Smith had "no option" but to turn down the proposal, which had been presented to him Friday and studied over the weekend by his cabinet and other advisers. He made clear that Smith will negotiate only on the basis of the proposals made to him by then-Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger last summer.

The Kissinger plan, which the black nationalists rejected, called for a two-year transition period, a coalition government of blacks and whites but with the whites retaining a veto, and white control of the police and armed forces.

The new plan reportedly called for a supreme council of 20 blacks and 10 whites, with only five of the whites to be from Smith's white Rhodesian Front party. The council and a security council would be under the control of the British, who would also hire and fire top police and military officers.

Carter Urges A-Testing Halt

grateful to be the one to do it."

Asked about the likely result of a Pentagon study he has ordered of the status of deserters and others whose weapons were not covered by the pardon, Carter said there might be a bloc upgrading of less-than-honorable discharges given to alcoholics, mental incompetents and some others whose violation of military rules related only to their personal lives, not their military conduct.

Saying he would let most other cases be handled under existing Defense Department procedures, Carter said: "I don't have any inclination to upgrade those who received a bad conduct discharge or a dishonorable discharge. They have been tried in a military court. They have been convicted of a crime."

"Within the next week or two," he said, "I will make my first report to the American people on what we have already achieved and the time schedule for additional proposals."

He predicted that a comprehensive welfare overhaul plan will be ready by May 1 and promised a comprehensive energy proposal within 90 days. In addition, he said he will be proposing "very shortly" legislation authorizing a reorganization of the federal bureaucracy.

Scuffling at reports that he has gone too far to accommodate Congress in recent weeks, Carter acknowledged "I want to get along with Congress" and said he is "not searching for ways to demonstrate that I am obstinate in dealing with the Congress."

However, he said that "on something where I am committed because of conviction or because of a commitment to the American people, I will be very strong and very aggressive and very adamant about pursuing my position."

He expressed confidence that clashes with Congress can be minimized by consulting its leaders in "initial stages of proposed change." But, Carter said, "I am the leader of our country, elected as President. I have got my promises to fulfill and I intend to fulfill them."

He defended his "economic stimulus" plan, which could cost as much as $30 billion over two years, and indicated there could be room for some give-and-take with Congress, particularly if economic circumstances should change in the next few months.

But he said if Congress tried to drastically alter what he is proposing "it would delay the beneficial impact of the economic stimulus package and hurt our country."

Some senators and House members have said they want to expand the jobs program Carter favors, but the President contended, "even if substantial amounts of additional money were appropriated for those programs, it would be very difficult to administer them effectively."

Carter disclosed that at his first National Security Council meeting Saturday, members were unanimous in embracing "the necessity for reducing arms sales or having very tight restraints on future commitments" to deliver weapons to other countries.

"I have asked," he said, "that all approvals of arms sales, for a change, be submitted to me directly before the recommendations go to Congress."

The President said Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who is on a globe-circling trip this week, will be asking allies who are heavy arms exporters to join the United States in curbing the arms traffic.

Also, Carter said, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will be visiting the Middle East in March and will ask leaders there "to hold down their own purchases of arms from us and other countries."

3 Boys Drown Playing On Ice

IVA, S.C. (AP) - Three boys who were playing on thin ice on Lake Secession drowned Sunday, according to the Anderson County coroner.

Coroner Wilton Mack identified the boys as Jonathan Gaines, 6; Bertram Adams, 10; and Charles Eric Belton, 11, all of Iva.

He said the boys were apparently playing 60 feet from shore, when the ice broke and they fell into 14 to 20 feet of water.

A fourth boy summoned help after spotting their bicycles and then their caps floating on the water. Their bodies were pulled from the lake one hour later, Mack said.

Thailand's Tax Official Slain

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - Gunmen killed the chief of Thailand's personal income tax division today.

The victim, Mrs. Linchong Posayanond, 42, was shot while riding in her car near her office by two gunmen on a motorcycle. Police said they did not know a motive for the crime.

Mrs. Posayanond, mother of four children, was the wife of the director general of the excise department. She had her own job in the revenue department.

A spokesman for the Times said Davy was on vacation in Europe and unavailable for comment.

The Czech television program included film purporting to show a meeting in February 1976 between Prague theater director Otto Ornest and a person identified as a Western diplomat. The film showed a bag changing hands during the rendezvous.

Ornest, who translated the Broadway musical "My Fair

Lady" into Czech, was one of four dissidents arrested Jan. 17. They were charged with "serious criminal activities directed against the foundations of the republic."

The official CTK news agency said at the time that an investigation of the four "so far revealed that they maintained contacts with foreign enemy forces and emigre circles for a long time and handed over to them materials damaging to the interests of Czechoslovakia."

It also said that "These materials were exploited against the interests of Czechoslovakia in emigre centers and also in communications media abroad and in various publications that were secretly sent back to our republic. For this activity, those detained used also the workers of some "diplomatic missions" in Czechoslovakia.

Ornest was the only one of the four arrested who was not a signer of the recent "Charter 77" human rights manifesto. It calls on the government to observe provisions in the Helsinki agreement of 1975.

Czechoslovakia was among 35 European and North American nations that signed the Helsinki accord on security and cooperation in Europe.

Rival Plans Bog Down Energy Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders are ready to work with the Carter administration in forging a new Cabinet-level Department of Energy but efforts are already bogging down in a welter of rival plans.

The concept of a new department to coordinate the nation's energy policy, urged by both Carter and former president Gerald Ford, has wide bipartisan backing in Congress. But the main problem is deciding which programs to include and which to leave out when the new superagency is formed.

At the heart of the controversy is whether to lodge programs that push energy production under the same roof with those that regulate energy.

At the same time, administration officials are hoping to introduce in Congress this week emergency legislation authorizing the government to allocate natural gas supplies among pipelines, a move that would permit surplus gas to be shifted to states with acute shortages of the fuel.

Action on energy reorganization is mandated by the act Congress passed last year extending the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) through the end of 1977. The act requires the legislation to be submitted by April 15.

The Carter administration has said it will send Congress a plan for reorganizing energy agencies early next month. Staff members of government operations committees in both houses have already done some initial spade-work with the administration in drafting the legislation. But they are awaiting word from White House energy aide James R. Schlesinger on specifics. "He's the man who will be calling the major shots for the administration," said one Senate staffer.

Congressional committee aides said one major obstacle is deciding whether the new department should include the Federal Power Commission (FPC) and those parts of the FEA that engage in price regulation. Another, they said, is dealing with the Interior Department's current jurisdiction over energy production on federal lands.

Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., of the Senate Government Operations Committee and others have expressed distaste for combining agencies that regulate energy with those that promote its development.

It was a similar built-in conflict that led Congress in 1975 to split the Atomic Energy Commission into two new agencies: the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC).

Yet energy reorganization plans unveiled by Carter during his campaign would foster the same type of conflict by combining some regulatory programs with those oriented toward energy production.

Carter proposed abolishing the FEA, FPC, ERDA and the Energy Resources Council and assigning their functions to the new department. Ford submitted a similar plan near the end of his administration.

A possible alternative favored by some staff members of the Senate Government Operations Committee is to create two new agencies. One would be the Cabinet-level Department of Energy and the other a new energy regulatory agency, which would include the FPC and the regulatory aspects of the FEA.

However, the proposal for two new agencies instead of one is certain to be controversial, and does not enjoy the support of many key members of Congress.

Possibly an even thornier issue is what to do about the energy management responsibilities of the Interior Department on federal land. About a third of all U.S. land is owned by the federal government. The Interior Department is responsible for issuing coal, gas and oil leases on these lands, as well as on the Outer Continental Shelf.

The plan Carter announced during his campaign would bring Interior's energy management programs into the new agency. Ford's plan would leave them where they are.

UC Forced Into Appealing Discrimination Suit—Saxon

BERKELEY (AP) — The University of California had to appeal a court decision striking down special minority admissions programs because it would have caused present UC programs to be dropped or revised and "would surely exert a chilling effect on...programs throughout the country," UC President David Saxon said Sunday.

Saxon said the decision, being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, would be a "crushing blow to the many minority students now working hard...in the hope that access to professional training is a realistic possibility despite handicapped educational backgrounds."

Last September, the California Supreme Court ruled that admissions programs giving preferential treatment to minorities at the expense of whites violate the equal protection guarantees of the U.S. Constitution.

The ruling came in a case of Allan Bakke, a white man who sued UC on grounds that he twice was denied admission on the basis of race to the Davis medical school which reserves 16 of its 100 places for minorities.

Minority organizations have opposed the UC appeal, contending the facts of the case are not strong. They contend that UC should await a better case rather than risk an adverse decision that would affect minorities nationally.

Several organizations — including the National Organization for Women, the National Conference of Black Lawyers and the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund — have urged the high court not to hear the appeal. The Supreme Court may decide as early as this week whether to take the case.

Saxon said in a statement that the university cannot await a "better" case.

"Had we not pursued the appeal, we would not minority groups six months or a year from now protest strongly about our inability to admit more minority students?" he asked.

"The hard facts are that the Bakke case does exist, though not through the university's instigation, and that its consequences will not go away while we wait for some ideal case."

Liquor Industry Probed On 'Giveaways'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government investigators are gradually boring into a system under which beer and liquor were illegally peddled with the help of millions of dollars worth of free television sets or bar equipment, preferential loans and credit and secret exchanges of envelopes stuffed with cash.

So far the investigators have implicated the nation's largest brewers, distillers and distributors, confronting them with the prospect of having to pay fines or shut down their operations for a week or more as punishment.

Officials suspended federal operating authority of Glenmore Distilleries of Louisville, D&K Distributing

Co. of Akron, Ohio, and Quality Import Co. of Albuquerque, N.M., last year for periods as short as three days and as long as 18 days.

Two divisions of Foremost-McKesson, the nation's largest wholesalers, are appealing in court administrative action lifting their federal permits for 10 days. The nation's largest distiller, Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc., is battling a proposed nine-day federal suspension.

Anheuser-Busch, Schlitz, Miller and Schenley have all either admitted making questionable payments or accepted government fines for giving "things of value" to induce sales.

First Death Penalty Hearing Low-Keyed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The battle to reimpose the death penalty in California was to formally begin today with what was intended to be a low-keyed scholarly examination of the issue.

There may be 20 or more formal debates or floor votes this year before the issue is resolved, with emotional horror stories and demonstrations on both sides. But that all lies ahead.

There was little drama intended in the opening hearing before the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee.

Witnesses were by invitation only, and were limited to two prosecutors and two public defenders, representing the pro and con sides at the county Superior Court and Appellate Court levels, and Prof. Anthony Amsterdam of Stanford, a death penalty foe who is regarded as an authority on constitutional law.

The purpose, said committee chairman Ken Maddy, is to "lay the groundwork, review the constitutional law and case law, determine where we are today, what are the options and limits of a new law."

"It's an emotional issue," said committee chairman Maddy. "I don't think anyone's stand or anyone's vote will be based solely on statistics, solely on logic."

"But I'm going to try to keep the extremists from grandstanding or having a playday. I don't think it serves any purpose to see these people come up here who want to parade their horror stories, on either side. We know the emotional arguments. They are part of the picture we will be evaluating and acting upon."

Six capital punishment bills have been introduced so far. Maddy said his committee will wait until all the major bills are ready for a vote before starting the process of amendments or committee votes. That will be mid-February to mid-March, Maddy said.

He said measures advocated by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. — who has promised to veto the death penalty — to impose life sentences without possibility of parole will be held in committee until the death penalty issue is resolved.

If the death penalty is blocked, then those bills would be sent to the floor, said Maddy, a Fresno Republican who supports the death penalty.

Also on the legislative calendar today was formal introduction of one of two rival bills aimed at preserving California's prime agricultural land with new state limits on development.

Elsewhere in the Capitol this week, legislative committees will hold fact-finding hearings, on such diverse subjects as DNA research, local tax assessment practices, medical research on prison inmates and policies of the California Highway Commission.

A survey by The Associated Press last week found California legislators favor the death penalty by a large majority, 68-24 in firm votes and 76-33 when "leaning" votes are added in a combined tally of the Senate and Assembly. But it is too close to call where it counts most, on Maddy's

Criminal Justice Committee.

To get to a floor vote, any death penalty bill needs five aye votes in that nine-member committee. Maddy describes the committee as "three, three and three — three of us in favor, three who oppose under any circumstance, and three who are open to arguments of both sides."

However, the three undecided appear to tilt against capital punishment. When the death penalty law which the California Supreme Court overturned last month was voted on in 1973, two of the three undecided members of the current Criminal Justice Committee voted no.

Frolickers On Ice Halt River Barges

CINCINNATI (AP) — Frolickers streaming onto the ice halted a towboat pushing a string of 12 barges up the frozen Ohio River on Sunday.

"People were strung out like a picket fence from the very young who could hardly walk to the old people," said Capt. W.A. Boudreaux, of Houma, La., aboard the City of Pittsburgh which was "bullying" its way through the ice. Boudreaux said he called Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., police through the marine operator when the strollers ignored his whistle and pleas over a loudspeaker to get off the ice.

"Well, what came up to my mind was they are more stupid than I am," he drawled afterward. Boudreaux said he shut down when he got within 50 feet of the walkers who "cussed us out for trying to run them off the ice."

The pedestrians delayed the barge, as well as a train on the river bank, for half an hour.

The 1,100-foot-long string of barges was the first since Monday to go up the river past Cincinnati. Boudreaux said he was delivering petroleum products, fuel and lubricants, to Pittsburgh, Pa., from Cairo, Ill.

He was followed by another tow carrying empty propane barges. Both were "bullying" their way through the ice.

Cincinnati police Sgt. Dan O'Malley said a Conrail train was stopped briefly on the tracks on the bank on the Ohio side of the river. He said the public landing was inundated with people and cars.

"If someone had fallen through the ice, we couldn't have got the emergency equipment through to save them," said O'Malley.

John Beatty, a salvage operator and owner of a float restaurant, tried to help talk people off the ice from aboard his large boat. "The darn fools wouldn't get out of the way," he shrugged. "One guy asked me to show my bill of sale for the river when I told him to get his kids off."

"I've never seen a barge tow stopped by pedestrians," Beatty said.

Beatty, who has been breaking up ice around local marinas since Tuesday, said the ice varies in thickness from one to 14 inches. He also said the ice underneath has a mushy quality probably from heated water dumped into the river from industries.

"I think when this goes it will go fast," he said.

Boudreaux said his tow was cracking the river ice from shore to shore.

Camel Walked Mile Too Far

MALIBU (AP) — Motorists might see a few deer, but an unfortunate camel is something different.

Sheriff's deputies said the dromedary apparently fell from a cliff over the weekend while walking on the Moon Ranch where he was kept by owner Louis B. Marvin III.

They said the animal died following his fall onto Topanga Canyon Boulevard about three miles north of Pacific Coast Highway.

109 Law Enforcement Officers Killed During 1976, FBI Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminals killed 109 local, state and federal law enforcement officers last year, 20 fewer than in 1975, the FBI reported Sunday.

Ninety-three of the officers were shot to death and handguns were used in 65 of those incidents, the report said. In 13 of the handgun cases, the officers were slain with their own weapons.

FBI said 56 of the officers were killed in Southern states, 24 in North Central states, 14 in the Northeast, 10 in the West and four in Puerto Rico. One Drug Enforcement Administration agent was killed in Bogota, Colombia.

Twenty-six officers were killed while attempting to make arrests for crimes other than robbery and burglary, 15 were slain in connection with robberies and eight in connection with burglaries, the report said.

Nineteen were killed while handling disturbance calls, 13 were slain in ambushes, 11 while investigating suspicious persons, 10 while making traffic stops, four while confronting mentally deranged persons, and three while handling prisoners, the FBI said.

Bus Goes Over Cliff; 22 Die

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A Turkish bus ran off the road and plunged into a 20 foot ravine in the southern Yugoslav state of Macedonia early Sunday, killing 22 passengers, the official news agency Tanjug reported.

The bus was traveling from Istanbul to Skopje, capital of Macedonia.

Study Says Teenager's Friends Influence Serious Delinquency

WASHINGTON (AP) — A teenager's friends have more influence than his parents in determining whether he will become involved in serious juvenile delinquency, researchers said in report issued Sunday.

But parents will exert a stronger influence in determining the child's involvement in less serious forms of delinquency, such as truancy from school and running away from home, the researchers suggested.

The findings were developed by the Institute for Juvenile Research, a branch of the Illinois Department of Mental Health. The institute is in the last year of a six-year project financed with $1.9 million from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

LEAA issued a preliminary report and promised a more complete analysis in September.

During the project, researchers questioned 3,180 youths between 14 and 18 years of age and 1,970 of their parents. Those interviewed were in 40

Illinois counties.

The researchers concluded that "peer group pressure is the single most important factor in dictating the presence or absence of juvenile delinquent behavior," LEAA said.

In most cases, "kids reporting delinquency are nearly as likely to be white as black, just about as likely to be a girl as a boy, as likely to live anywhere in the state as in highly urbanized Chicago, and just as likely to come from an intact home as from a broken home," added Joseph Puntill, co-director of the project.

retailers and wholesalers and $231,000 on various government officials, according to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

In testimony and affidavits provided the Treasury Department's alcohol agency, retailers told how McKesson Wine and Spirits Co. and Pacific Crown Distributors would reward purchases of Old Crow with free wine or cash.

The payments were "given in a secret manner in envelopes, often to employees of the owners of the retail establishment and possibly without the knowledge of the owners," the Treasury records show. One recipient said he received just over $5,000 in a single payment.

Carter Urged To Retain FBI's Kelley

A panel of the International Association of Police Chiefs has called on President Jimmy Carter to retain CLARENCE M. KELLEY as FBI director. Los Angeles police chief ED DAVIS, association president, said about 25 members of the group's executive committee voted unanimously to forward an official statement of the request to the President and the attorney general's office. "My concern is the lack of stability that could be created within law enforcement if a President and attorney general change FBI directors arbitrarily every four or eight years," Davis said. "Mr. Kelley has demonstrated his integrity and his administrative ability and we fully support him as well as the office he holds."

Members of the opera world trooped to Baltimore over the weekend to pay homage to diva ROSA PONSELLE, who celebrated her 80th birthday. The event was marked by a surprise party for about 100 persons at Miss Ponselle's home. "I didn't realize his greatness at the time; I was so young," she said.

Hungarian media have had problems convincing protocol-conscious Hungarians that U.S. PRESIDENT CARTER prefers the name Jimmy to the more formal James. A cable sent to Carter on the occasion of his accession to the presidency by the Hungarian president and prime minister was duly addressed to Mr. James Earl Carter.

SIR HAROLD WILSON, former Labor prime minister, says he believes many of Britain's economic problems are a result of what he called unfair terms of the World War II U.S. Lend Lease program. The program provided Britain with badly needed military supplies to fight Hitler's Germany. Noting that the jet engine is a British invention, Wilson said: "If we had got 100 pounds ($170 dollars) for every jet engine that was built, we would have had a terrifically favorable balance of payments. But we gave so many of our inventions like that away after the war to pay off our debts under Lend Lease. The jet engine was the best of these inventions."

'Immortal' Hounded By Friends Of Fox

LONDON (AP) — The village churchyard grave of John Peel, immortalized as England's greatest foxhunter in the ballad "Do you ken John Peel," was desecrated Sunday, apparently by opponents of the chase.

Police said the grave in Caldbeck village in Cumbria county had been opened and the headstone torn down and broken. The stuffed head of a fox had been thrown into the grave, along with a note reading, "John Peel — go blow on your horn until your face turns blue."

"The bones of Peel, a farmer

and huntsman who once chased a fox for 70 miles, were not disturbed, police added.

Peel was born in Caldbeck in 1776 and died in 1854. The village lies to the north of the scenic Lake District in north-west England where Peel hunted.

His great-great grandson, 76-year-old John Peel, treasurer of the Ullswater Foxhounds, said, "I am distressed and very angry. What good is it going to do anybody to dig up an old man's grave? I am sure that most of the people who oppose foxhunting wouldn't condone this sort of thing."

The Press Association news agency said it got an anonymous telephone message at 3 a.m. about the attack. The male caller said, "Something has got to be done to help foxes today, and this man killed hundreds of them."

The Rev. Colin Reid, rector of St. Kentigern's where Peel is buried, said the grave is a tourist attraction and will be restored.

"Do you ken John Peel" means "Do you see John Peel." The rousing, cheerful song about the man who hunted "in his coat so gay ... at the break of day ... with his horse and his hounds in the morning" is sung in schools and by glee clubs throughout Britain and the United States. It was written by Peel's friend John Woodcock Graves the night before a hunt.

Solon Tells Of 'Indiscretion' In Korean Influence Buying

WASHINGTON (AP) — As many as 40 or 50 members of Congress may be involved in the South Korean influence-buying scandal, Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker said Sunday.

The Tennessee Republican said that not all of those involved are Democrats, and added that most are members of the House of Representatives.

Appearing on NBC's "Meet The Press," Baker said there are some proper activities for Korean agents in assessing the mood of Americans, but there is ample proof that there was "at least broad indiscretion" in efforts to influence Congress.

He said that these activities are being investigated and there possibly will be prosecution in some cases.

Korean influence-buying on Capitol Hill is being investigated by a congressional committee and also by the Justice Department.

Several members of Congress have been named as having received gifts, campaign money or other contributions from Korean representatives.

Baker declined to be more specific about the members who may be involved.

Baker also said that the Republican party is forming its own economic program and intends to present it as an alternative to Carter's plans.

Baker was particularly critical of the proposed one-time tax rebate. This was tried before, he said, and most of it went to pay bills or into savings accounts, which he said did not boost the economy.

Baker also said he would favor a fundamental change in the role of House and Senate members.

Currently, he said, Congress is an elected bureaucracy. If this is to be the case, pay should be increased and limits placed on outside income and activities. He predicted that such limits will be approved.

"It ain't the way it ought to be, in my view, but I think that's the way it's going to have to be."

As an alternative, he suggested that Congress meet from January to May and September to November, setting policy and trusting the President to administer it.

Right now, Baker said, Congress doesn't trust the President, the President doesn't trust Congress and the Court doesn't trust either.

He also suggested a national debate on the possible necessity for compulsory government service and mentioned the possibility of draft-type government service.

The debate ought to be this year, Baker said, discussing the possibility of some form of national government service training for 18-year-olds or 19-year-olds. This would not necessarily be military training, he said.

'Last Man' Drinks Prize Wine In Toast To Buddies Of WWI

WALLHALLA, S.C. (AP) — Harry Fayonsky, who outlived 12 fellow World War I veterans to win a bottle of 1937 California Tokay wine, has tasted his prize and pronounced it: "Not too bad."

Fayonsky, 79-year-old survivor of Wallhalla's "Last Man's Club" sipped the wine from a shot glass Friday as friends and relatives of departed club members looked on and laughed a little.

The club was formed in 1937 by the late Sam Pitchford. It had 13 members, all veterans who made a habit of defying bad luck, by meeting on the 13th day of the month, paying 13 cents dues per month and keeping a black cat as mascot.

The dues were used to pay for wreaths at the funerals of deceased club members.

Fayonsky, who coincidentally was the keeper of the wine, said on Friday that he never thought he would be the one to claim it. The bottle of slightly cloudy, acidic Tokay became his last week on the death of his good friend, Benjamin Todd.

"In a way I feel good, and in a way I feel badly," Fayonsky said in an interview. "I just cannot be too happy about this because of the memories of my good friends who have gone on."

Fayonsky said he had waited more than a week to open the wine out of respect for Todd. He read a toast which he had written to those who gathered for the opening of the prize:

"Following the wishes of my departed friends, I will now open this bottle of wine. With sorrow and thanks, I toast my 12 lifelong friends whom I'll never forget."

The club's meetings had fallen off after age began to catch up with the survivors.

Relieves Tormenting Rectal Pain And Itch, Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

... Due to inflammation. Gives prompt, temporary relief from such burning itch and pain in many cases.

The burning itch and pain caused by infection and inflammation in hemorrhoidal tissues can cause much suffering. But there is an exclusive formulation that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from this itch and pain so that the sufferer is more comfortable again. It also actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation and infection.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center reported similar successful results in many cases. This is the same medication you can buy at any drug counter under the name Preparation H.

Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed surface area and it doesn't sting or smart. In fact, it has very soothing qualities which make it especially helpful during the night when itching becomes more intense.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Madrid Police Battle Protesters

MADRID, Spain (AP) - Riot police swinging truncheons and firing rubber bullets battled thousands of Communist-led demonstrators in the heart of Madrid on Sunday. Authorities said one student was shot dead by unknown gunmen and an undetermined number of police and protesters were injured.

The demonstrators, estimated at 8,000 by the government, were demanding amnesty for Spain's political prisoners.

As they were driven from street to street in downtown Madrid, the demonstrators, in groups of 50 to 500, hurled stones and firebombs at pursuing policemen, government officials said.

They carried banners of the illegal Spanish Communist party and the flag of the old Spanish Republic toppled by the late right-wing dictator Gen. Francisco Franco.

A 19-year-old demonstrator, Antonio Ruiz Garcia, was shot dead by two unidentified men on a street near the central Gran Via avenue, officials said.

They said police had begun an investigation to identify and capture the killers.

The government of Premier Adolfo Suarez, which had refused a permit for the demonstration, says it is holding 171 political prisoners, but the leftist opposition puts the number at between 200 and 250. Most are Communists or separatists from the northern Basque region and are charged with political terrorism.

Well-informed sources said over the weekend that the Suarez regime, embarked on a political reform program without the support of the Spanish left, is considering releasing almost all remaining political prisoners. This would be accomplished by widening an amnesty granted by King Juan Carlos last July, they said.

The sources said the release would begin about Feb. 15 and would be completed by April 10, when the Basques celebrated their national holiday.

Leftist opponents of the reform program have demanded that they be given a voice in developing the program and that the Communist party be legalized.

Wealthy Swindler Jailed

By LEE STROBEL
Chicago Tribune

A glib Miami man with a guaranteed annual income of $100,000 has been sentenced to four years in prison for swindling Exchange National Bank of Chicago out of nearly $1 million.

Robert J. Ferguson, 49, nicknamed "the counterfeit millionaire" by federal prosecutors, was sentenced to two consecutive terms of two years each and was ordered to pay restitution.

Ferguson, who comes from a family of multimillionaires, was convicted last month of using counterfeit stock certificates and a phony will to get $978,634 in the form of loans, drafts, and letters of credit from the bank between 1972 and 1975.

Documents show that Ferguson, who receives his annual income from several family trusts, is fond of buying yachts, airplanes, foreign sports cars, and houses with swimming pools and tennis courts.

"Not content with the comfortable life his trust income could provide, Ferguson has lived the life of a millionaire by defrauding others," Suzanne Conlon, an assistant U.S. attorney told Judge Prentice H. Marshall of the District Court at the sentencing hearing.

"The only work he has seriously engaged in over the past several years is defrauding banks," she said.

Marshall said Ferguson blatantly defrauded the bank "for no reason other than personal comfort and ego. There are no mitigating circumstances — none."

Marshall also fined Ferguson $23,000 and sentenced him to five years probation after he completes his prison term. Despite objections from Ferguson's attorney, Raymond Smith, Marshall ordered deputies to lock up Ferguson immediately.

"I can't honestly stand before you and say there's any excuse for this," Ferguson told Marshall before sentencing.

Ferguson pleaded guilty to two charges of submitting false financial statements to the bank and then was found guilty by Marshall of numerous mail and wire fraud charges.

As part of the scheme, Ferguson produced bogus stock certificates and a phony will to convince the bank he owned $2.7 million in a family company and was to receive $2.4 million on the death of his uncle.

Among other claims, he told the banks he owned millions of dollars worth of Danish ships and claimed he received $480,000 in annual income from the fleet.

"I think he's relieved he was caught," Smith said.

Economy Overhaul Proposed By Sadat

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat called Sunday for drastic changes in Egypt's economic structure in the wake of bloody riots last week that left at least 77 persons dead.

Sadat asked the government to find other means for balancing the budget deficit instead of the food price increases that sparked the rioting, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said.

At the same time, the agency reported, Sadat said there should be no reduction in military expenditures.

The Egyptian leader's remarks came at the end of two days of consultations with his top political and military advisers.

visers.

During the disorders in Cairo, Alexandria and other cities, rioters ransacked nightclubs and shops and attacked police stations.

Sadat later suspended the price hikes.

The news agency said Sadat conceded that the angry reaction to the price increases was understandable because the hikes represented a heavy burden on the poor. But he also accused unnamed elements of exploiting the masses to resort to force, according to the agency.

An earlier statement by the Interior Ministry said Egypt's outlawed Communist party was an agitator in the disturbances.

Excess Freedom 'Unhealthy' For Lebanon Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — (Censored) A footnote from Premier Salim el Hoss on press freedom: too much freedom is unhealthy for the Lebanese press.

"Unbridled freedom is a luxury that we cannot afford to grant the press under existing conditions. The press was partly responsible for Lebanon's tragedy. And I don't think the press will ever be the same again," Hoss declared in a televised interview Saturday night.

He accused Lebanese organs of disturbing Lebanon's relations with Arab and foreign powers and undermining stability at home.

"Censorship was deemed inevitable. It can be therapeutic. It might be tough at the present, but this was necessitated by the grim conditions we are living in," he said.

Hoss also put part of the blame on loose prewar economic and political conditions. But he insisted the press cannot be given a clean bill of health.

He conceded a new charter might serve as a better guide for the country's press, and censorship might be relaxed if future security conditions permit this.

But he categorically ruled out chances of a return to prewar conditions when the press was "used as a platform for slandering and undermining the country's vital interests."

Some newspapers were funded by other Arab nations to reflect certain policy trends. These made Lebanon a free but turbulent stage where bitter inter-Arab propaganda was fought.

Seven dailies and one weekly were closed briefly for "security reasons" after the 19-month civil war. They reopened earlier this month when their publishers pledged to abide by censorship.

But several English-language publications have shifted to London, Paris and Nicosia to escape censors' thick red pencils. The publisher of an Arabic-language magazine is said to be planning to operate from a base in Paris and distribute in Arab countries.

At the peak of their freedom, Lebanese publishers issued more than 40 daily newspapers and weekly magazines. They employed more than 15,000 persons. Now, 17 newspapers and magazines are publishing. Many reporters and printing workers are out of jobs.

Let Us Help With:

Crisis Intervention — When a problem is so big or complex that you are unable to see alternatives, talking with a professional may help.

Marital Discord — A counselor helps establish a starting point and guidance for husband and wife.

Adolescent Problems — The years 14 through 18 are trying for the young person as well as his parents, learning to communicate is one of the basic steps a counselor can help bring about.

Single Parent Problems — The single parent may often feel ignored in a couple-oriented society. Trying to be two people, mother and father, can be too difficult for one person to handle.

Geriatric Problems — Sometimes a senior citizen parent needs tender loving care away from the family, specialized nursing care, or a place to live with others near his or her own age, and the children who make these decisions must learn how to cope with their feelings of guilt.

Alcohol and Drug Problems — More and more people are becoming dependent on alcohol and other drugs. Specialized medical care and a treatment program are needed.

Individual Psychiatric Problems — Sometimes we feel that our world is caving in on us. Tension, anxiety, and fear may keep us from coping effectively with everyday life. Psychiatric help may be your first step toward healthy living.

Carter May Spend $5 Billion On Jobs

NEW YORK (AP) — The economic recovery package being prepared by the Carter administration will contain about $5 billion in jobs and training programs, F. Ray Marshall, the labor secretary-designate, said Sunday.

Marshall also declared on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" program that the dimensions of the jobs program that he put forward was accepted by President Carter.

He said the package still was being worked out and he could not say that a tax-cut envisioned in it would be the $11 billion that has been mentioned.

As now anticipated, the program would increase government employment from approximately 310,000 jobs now to about 725,000 by the end of 1978. In job training, Marshall expected the numbers to increase from the current 655,000 to more than one million.

Marshall said he wanted "to correct one impression. ... Many people think President Carter did not give me all that I asked for in terms of public service employment and training programs in that recovery package."

"The contrary is the case, and when I was reported as having said I was disappointed, what I meant was that when we studied carefully how much we could reasonably manage in terms of public service employment and training slots, it was a good bit less than I had hoped it would be when we started out."

He said he believes creating jobs rather than cutting taxes is the best way to reduce unemployment, but the size of the jobs program settled on was as big as could be managed effectively and produce results.

He said the entire recovery package was designed "not to overstimulate the economy but stimulate it enough to get consumer and business confidence that we are going to proceed in a sound and orderly fashion."

He said he favored apprenticeship training as the best vehicle for bringing unemployed and unprepared young persons into the job market.

Increasing productivity also should have a high priority, he said. As for immediate increases, he said, "The outlook is not as bright as I'd like it to be, but certainly we cannot predict the future from the slow growth during this quarter that we've just gone through."

He said he did not believe unions were unreasonably resisting apprenticeship programs.

"Organized labor strongly supports apprenticeship programs," he declared. "They know it is meaningful training. ... An apprentice-training journeyman is less likely to be unemployed, more likely to be upgraded faster, learn the trade faster and be more productive."

Resistance comes, he said, when unions believe they will be forced to take 100 apprentices in situations where there is room for only 10 or if they think standards are being lowered or if their members are heavily unemployed already.

"What we need is to expand in areas where apprenticeship is not now commonly used ... and not concentrate on those that are relatively saturated now," he said.

Demos Divided In Contest To Succeed Young

ATLANTA (AP) — Fragmentation of a coalition that helped make Andrew Young the first black congressman from the Deep South since Reconstruction could return his seat in Congress to a white Republican.

When Young defeated conservative Republican Rep. Fletcher Thompson in 1972 with the support of the poor — both black and white — and progressives — both Democratic and Republican — he called the era one of "new politics in the South beyond racism."

But several leaders of the coalition that elected Young are among the 10 Democrats and two Republicans competing to represent Georgia's 5th District, which includes Atlanta and its northern suburbs, after Young's expected confirmation as U.N. ambassador.

The candidacy of several blacks and liberals may split the vote and throw the election to Republican Paul D. Coverdell, state Senate minority leader, many political observers say.

Among Democrats running for the post are the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; Marjorie C. Thurman, state Democratic chairman, and John Lewis, former head of Atlanta's Voter Education Project.

The field may thin out after Gov. George Busbee sets a date for a special election after Young is confirmed, but it now also includes J.E. "Billy" McKinney, a black state legislator, and Wyche Fowler, president of the Atlanta City Council.

"It's a full field of Democrats, and that can only help the Republicans," said Mrs. Thurman.

She also said that Atlanta's black leaders are "overly concerned with color rather than representation" and that insistence on a black successor to Young may result in Coverdell's election.

"It would be a tragedy for not only black people, but for the city of Atlanta if we lose this particular seat in the House," said Abernathy. "We only have 17 blacks in the House and if we lose this, that would make it 16 out of 435."

Republicans see the election as a chance to regain a congressional seat which they feel was stolen from them by a reapportionment plan sponsored by Democrats.

A predominantly white, and largely conservative, area was cut out of the 5th District when it was redrawn in 1970.

The racial composition of the district is now about 40 per cent black and 60 per cent white, Mrs. Thurman said.

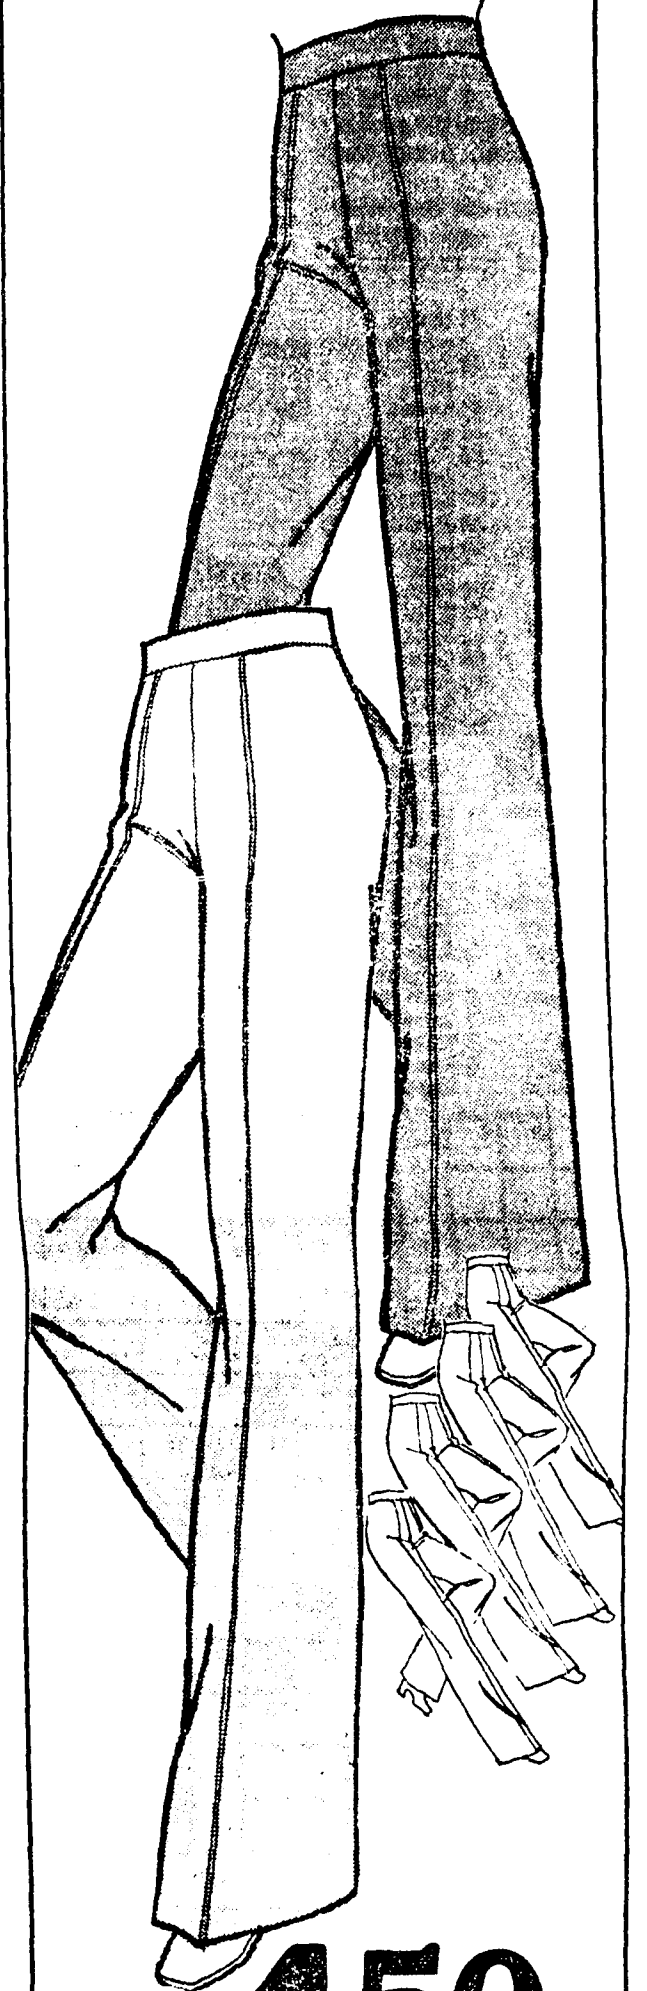

Young has made no public endorsement of any candidate.

"He has too many friends running in the race," Mrs. Thurman said.

Success Of Gandhi's Iron Rule Debated

By MYRON L. BELKIND
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — When Prime Minister Indira Gandhi assumed emergency powers on the morning of June 26, 1975, opponents charged she was laying the foundation for dictatorship. But she called the measures "shock therapy" to save India and its 610 million people.

News Analysis

Pointing mainly now to economic improvements she says her therapy worked and it is time to start dismantling the emergency powers and hold elections. The opponents contend the improvements could have come without emergency powers under which civil liberties were suspended and political opponents went to jail. They also maintain that Indian democracy has been harmed.

has been for a long time," she said.

"Our people have shaken off the sense of defeatism and gloom. There is a new pride in being Indian. Indeed, it can be said that in the year just completed, the nation has rediscovered its sense of purpose and its potential strength."

The strength cited by Mrs. Gandhi is derided primarily from the economy, which was stagnant before the emergency but which showed significant improvement in the past year while more developed countries saw their economic problems worsen.

To back up Mrs. Gandhi's contention, government officials cite a record grain crop of 118 million tons last year, a record buffer food stock of 68 million tons, record foreign exchange reserves of $3 billion, a 60 per cent jump in industrial production, a 33 per cent increase in exports and a money-saving 10 per cent drop in imports.

The government also boasts of having considerably reduced work stoppages through a ban on strikes, and it also claims to have virtually wiped out black-marketeering and smuggling through the large-scale arrests of persons accused of economic crimes.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Gandhi's critics argue that the improvement in the economy could have been carried out even before the emergency — without suspending civil liberties, jailing political opponents and imposing news censorship — if she had exhibited stronger leadership during her first nine years in office.

Her opponents also say that the main reason for the improvement in the economy was the record grain harvest which they contend was brought about primarily by good rains, not any new government policies.

But critics and supporters alike give Mrs. Gandhi's government credit for using the emergency to implement a family planning program that has achieved results for the first time since independence. In the past this had been considered too politically risky in a country where social customs have stressed large families.

The main emphasis has been on sterilization and the government announced last week that seven million persons were sterilized in the first seven months of the 1976-77 fiscal year, against a target of 4.3 million for the entire year.

But the government has been hurt by scattered riots in areas where local authorities have been blamed for adopting compulsion to achieve large numbers of sterilizations.

Mrs. Gandhi complained in a speech last week that "unimaginative and ham-handed methods are sometimes adopted to achieve targets."

To opposition leaders, many of whom spent the emergency in jail, discussions about improvement of the economy are off the mark.

They say that the country should judge Mrs. Gandhi for what she has done to alter the political system through various measures that will remain law even after the emergency is lifted.

They cite the constitutional amendment adopted by Parliament last November to increase the powers of the executive branch and reduce some of the powers of the judiciary. They also cite a press bill that they claim amounts to permanent censorship by barring publication of items the government considers objectionable.

"But the greatest damage from the emergency is the creation of an atmosphere of fear which pervades everywhere, even in the ruling Congress party," says an 80-year-old former prime minister, Morarji Desai, a prominent opposition politician.

Desai said he thought that private businessmen and industrialists, for example, would be reluctant to contribute to the opposition campaign for fear that they would be victimized after the election in Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party is returned to leadership.

For Mrs. Gandhi, the election campaign could have some risks, although it has the best organization and the opposition has been unable to carry out normal activities for the past 19 months, some experts say.

The main risk is that her own party has developed serious rivalries in the past year, between its left and right wings, and between the old guard generation that helped fight for independence and the youth wing led by Mrs. Gandhi's 30-year-old son, Sanjay.

Gandhi Critic Calls Election 'A Sham'

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Ailing opposition leader Jayaprakash Narayan said Sunday that India's first post-emergency election in March will be "nothing less than a choice between democracy and dictatorship" and voters should oust Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party from power.

Narayan led the national protest movement that provoked Mrs. Gandhi to declare in 1975 the national emergency that she recently lifted. In a press statement, he expressed doubt whether the first general election since 1971 would be free and fair, as pledged by Mrs. Gandhi.

"The opposition parties have been given hardly any time to reorganize their shattered party cadre, raise funds and make the extensive arrangements required to fight elections in this vast land with the biggest electorate in the world," Narayan said.

Narayan, who spent the first five months of the 19-month emergency in jail, said the opposition parties are hampered by what he described as the slow pace in the release of political workers still in detention and government control of the only radio and television network.

"I have fears this election will just be a sham," he told reporters a day after arriving here from his native Bihar state to map campaign strategy with other opposition leaders.

"All that has happened since June 26, 1975, shows that the choice is nothing less than between democracy and a fascist type of dictatorship," he said. Mrs. Gandhi declared emergency rule on that date, following her conviction on charges of corrupt campaign practices.

"The ruling Congress party, which has been guilty of murdering democracy, of putting thousands of innocent citizens behind the bars and of other undemocratic acts should never be elected to power again," Narayan continued.

"This is my advice to the Indian people."

Narayan said that his failing kidneys, which require him to walk with a cane and take treatments three times a week, would limit his own role in the campaign.

Narayan's statement was read at a news conference he attended along with leaders of the Janta, the newly-merged four major non-Communist parties. The Janta, which stands for people, is headed by former Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai.

Announcing the decision to hold elections, Mrs. Gandhi promised last week that her government would permit "legitimate" political activity during the campaign.

Following her pledge, the government ordered the release of political prisoners, lifted press censorship and ended its ban on public rallies.

About 600 persons have been released in the past three days, according to reports received here, but opposition leaders estimated there were still nearly 10,000 rank-and-file workers in jail around the country. The government has never disclosed how many persons were detained during the emergency.

Health News ... INSOMNIACS CAN SLEEP SOUNDLY

"IF I COULD ONLY SLEEP!"

This statement is sufficient most of the time to stamp a case of "Insomnia" and with it the train of other symptoms that follow. According to Dr. Carl E. Remelin, D.C., of the Remelin Chiropractic Office, insomnia is basically a condition which prevents the nervous system from relaxing.

"While severe pressures on nerves can produce insomnia," says Dr. Remelin, D.C., "usually the condition is one of long standing. What generally happens," he states, "is that a person starts building to a severe case of insomnia. First there are occasional restlessness, sleepless nights. Then the problem begins to compound itself. A person begins to be worn out during the day thus finding his work harder and harder to accomplish. This in itself exerts further nerve pressure and sleep becomes more difficult, insomnia more prevalent."

"Of course," adds Dr. Remelin, D.C., "the general health is affected by the lack of sleep, tense daytime activity, etc. An insomniac has a brutal path ahead of him unless he has the original cause of his troubles corrected."

Dr. Remelin, D.C. does not advocate sleep producing drugs in most cases. "After all," he says, "they are generally habit forming and addiction brings a tolerance as often as not." In other words, persons who take sleeping tablets are usually only avoiding the inevitable.

"It's really a heartening experience to aid the person who suffers from severe and repeated attacks of insomnia. Their lives always seem to change dramatically, once their vitality has been restored through proper sleep," the Doctor relates.

"We look to the basic cause of the nervous tension that produces sleeplessness," says Dr. Remelin, D.C. "And correcting the cause of the nervousness, not only is sleep a desirable end, but also the sufferer finds his wakefulness a pleasure. Vim and vigor during the day is generally as important as rest during the night."

Dr. Remelin, D.C. urges insomniacs, both those suffering from current acute cases, and others who through nervous tension and other symptoms are building to real problems, to visit him at his Chiropractic office.

Note: Dr. Remelin maintains Chiropractic offices at 1555 W. Katella, Anaheim. (Telephone 535-7268.) (C) ARS 1976

Even Lambasted Officials Attend Rites For 'Capitol Muckraker'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Capitol picketer Robert Simpson was given a warm farewell Sunday by some of the same people — including Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. — he used to lambast in his placards.

The memorial services were in the same church where he once waved a sign which cursed Unitarians.

Simpson, who proclaimed himself "muckraker-in-chief at the capitol," died Thursday at age 96. He had been admitted to the hospital the previous Sunday after accidentally scalding himself in a bathtub.

Among the estimated 150 persons attending the services at the First Unitarian Universalist Church were a four-member honor guard from the state police force, which had arrested Simpson more than 300 times, by his count, until the anti-picketing law was repealed.

Simpson began waving his salty placards about 10 years ago in protest against a six-month forced stay in a mental hospital. He was freed when a jury found him to be sane.

Warning Issued By U.S. On Using Mistletoe Tea

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department list of possible substitutes for coffee boiled into controversy over the weekend with the inclusion of mistletoe tea.

Despite the pleasant Christmas-season associations of the plant, experts said the plant is poisonous, particularly the berries.

But the question of danger from tea brewed from mistletoe leaves remained a question. Some experts said it was also dangerous, while others said no harmful effects had been noted from commercially prepared mistletoe tea.

Mistletoe was included in the list of coffee substitutes suggested by the Agriculture Department and reported over the weekend by The Associated Press.

This report led at least one television network to switch signals and begin warning consumers not to drink mistletoe tea.

NBC reported that "The Poison Control Center in New York advises us there have been deaths from eating mistletoe and deaths from drinking mistletoe tea. Mistletoe tea and berries are poisonous. NBC News regrets passing on this misinformation. We repeat: mistletoe is poisonous."

According to the Agriculture Department and the Food and Drug Administration the real problem is the berries — the possibility that someone might eat them or use them to make homebrew tea.

All commercial mistletoe teas are made from the leaves, and the USDA and FDA officials say they know of no complaints about commercially sold mistletoe tea.

A USDA official cautioned against persons using either the berries or leaves to make homebrew tea in view of the poison possibility.

American mistletoe is cited by health food reference books as a treatment for cholera and St. Vitus Dance. But the New York City Health Department's Poison Control Center lists it as a poison.

"The berries are deadly poison," said a spokesman for the center. "There seems to be some dispute on the leaves themselves. There are varying opinions but there have been deaths from eating the berries and from making tea from the berries."

The spokesman said, however, that he was not aware of any documented case of a fatality resulting from tea made from mistletoe leaves.

Jack Walden, a spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration, said he knew of no complaints from sales of commercial mistletoe tea and said that if there have been no reports of deleterious effects from a product, "we have every reason to believe it's safe."

James Duke, an herbologist with the Agriculture Department, added:

"Mistletoe has killed people when eaten in quantities. But caffeine (an ingredient in coffee) is poisonous, too, when eaten in quantity."

Other, less controversial, USDA suggestions as coffee substitutes included brewed flaxseed, bearberry, rose hips, horehound, rosemary, gentian root, yarrow and watercress.

Set your thermostat at 68° instead of 72° and save! If you're in the habit of keeping your thermostat at 72° you're wasting money.

Because with a slight flick of the wrist to the left, you can move the needle to 68°. And move your heating costs about 28% lower.

There are other ways to lower heating costs, too.

Properly insulate your attic. With proper insulation you can reduce heating costs substantially. You'll also save on air conditioning costs. Based on today's prices, properly insulating an attic in a typical house runs between $200 and $300.

And what better place to invest your money than in your own home? It's a sensible long-term investment. So call an insulation contractor.

Some more ways to lower heating costs and save energy. Lower your heat setting or turn it off when you're away from home. However, in areas where freezing may occur, a 40° thermostat setting is advisable.

Weather-strip your doors and windows. Close your draperies and curtains to keep heat in. Keep the fireplace damper closed as well as vents in rooms not being used. Make sure your filters are clean. Maybe they even need replacing.

Dirty return-air grilles and warm air ducts can cost you, too. And if you have electric radiant heating it will be worth your while when you are home to turn off thermostats in rooms not being used.

Rhodesians Promise Scorched Earth

By JOHN EDLIN

BINDURA, Rhodesia (AP)

Farmer Ian Ross stretched an arm towards his tobacco barns and said, "We'll blow the whole bloody lot up with dynamite if we don't get our way."

A few yards away, Ivor Richard, the British chairman of deadlocked Geneva talks on Rhodesia's future, was sipping tea in between puffs on a cigar.

Richard, who has been touring southern African capitals in an effort to revive the Geneva conference, encountered a mood of defiance as he met for lunch with Ross and other farmers from this district about 70 miles away from Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital.

The British envoy's mission is to get Prime Minister Ian Smith, head of Rhodesia's white minority government, and black nationalist leaders back at the conference to arrange a peaceful transition to black majority rule. The talks ended at Christmas time with no agreement on an interim biracial government.

Richard talked with the Rhodesian farmers over a lunch of prawns imported from Mozambique, where most of the black guerrillas fighting against Smith's regime are based.

What the farmers were seeking, Ross told reporters, was assurances about their own future and guarantees for their children also. They didn't get any.

Instead, Richard told the farmers they were to blame for denying the vote for so long to Rhodesia's 6.4 million blacks, who outnumber the nation's whites 20 to 1.

Following the luncheon, Richard said, "We had differences but there was no hostility. There was an exchange of views."

Several farmers among the 45 attending the lunch said they told Richard that his mission was impossible — that he couldn't hope to gain white support for a black government unacceptable to the whites.

"We can hold on to this country for years," said Ross, who recently was injured in a land mine explosion while on patrol as a police reservist in southeastern Rhodesia.

"But if you hand over to the terrors (a term for black terrorists) then we'll take the scorched earth policy. We'll destroy everything and leave it to the blacks as it was before we came here and built the cities and the roads and everything else," Ross said.

Geoff Perleman, another farmer who spoke to Richard, said: "Look, The Brits (British) don't think we're prepared to fight it out. But we're not chicken. We'll fight for our rights as long as we figure they're not being guaranteed from outside."

"And if the big crunch comes — and we have to leave — then we'll be leaving as refugees like those from Angola and the Congo, with nothing. All we've got is here in the land."

Before the lunch, one farmer, Basil Kearns, said,

"I've got a revolver under here. And I've got a bullet with Richard's name on it."

Another farmer recounted later that when the luncheon began, feeling against Richard was running so strong that as the tables were being set one farmer remarked, "Make sure he's well away from anyone else. We'd hate to shoot the bloke next to him by mistake."

The meeting apparently helped to tone down somewhat the farmers' harsh attitude towards Richard.

Peter Denton said later, "We're no wiser than we were, but we did have a good lunch."

Referring to Richard, Denton said, "He'll never change but, then, if he hasn't got anything for us to change for why should we change? We're just ordinary farmers who want to make sure our future is okay."

Jets To Turkey Deal Ironed Out

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — American and Turkish defense representatives have reached final agreement on the sale of 40 F4 Phantom jets to Turkey, an authoritative Turkish military source said Sunday.

The source said the Phantom order would have a total bill of $464 million, including spare parts. Of this, $123 million is to be paid from a $250 million military sales credit extended to Turkey under the 1976 and 1977 U.S. foreign aid bills, he said.

The rest is supposed to come from a U.S. military aid package totaling $1 billion promised over the next four years under a new defense cooperation pact signed last March.

In return for this aid, Turkey has pledged to reactivate two dozen American military installations on its soil which were shut down in reprisal against an American arms embargo. The embargo was imposed because of Turkey's 1974 invasion of Cyprus.

However, the aid package still must be ratified by the U.S. Congress.

Serves mainly to upset comfortable habits you're falling into, stirs you up for a year-long scramble to get out of your current level of development into another. Projects undertaken now either last for short periods, bridging gaps to greater responsibility, or must be reorganized frequently. Be ready to move on short notice. Relationships are tenuous, not easy to confirm or intensify. Today's natives are unconventional, inventive, intrigued by new ideas.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: People merely mark time; hasty reactions won't help. Allow for delay in appointments, travel. Collect useless clutter, find profitable disposal for it.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Expect a combination of impatience and poor cooperation. Ignore irritations: save wear and tear on your nervous system, insure survival of future goodwill.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Everybody has a different theory about your money, how it should be spent. Look to see what they're doing or did lately with theirs, judge accordingly.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Errors, misunderstandings are the main crop of pilot projects, fliers. A long lane lacks a convenient turn. The problem is staying out of it to begin with.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Wade through petty rivalry of people you aren't too familiar with. Old friends know how to get to you. You're at their mercy mo-

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Unrealistic estimates upset judgment, make calculated risks too much so. Never mind other's urging. Whims stay with you long after you tire of them.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Your organizational drive blows everyone's tolerance. Any theory with you at its center is abandoned. Temperament has a field day, many a scapegoat, not just you.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You're better off if people cancel out while you still have freedom of movement. Take it lightly. They return on discovering what it's like elsewhere.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Use adequate but simple logic to defend your principles against distortive pressures. The more important your function, the tougher the resistance, dissent.

France's D'Estaing Huddles With Saudi Arabian Leaders

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing of France and King Khalid of Saudi Arabia talked for 40 minutes Sunday in the first formal session of the French president's state visit to the world's major exporter of oil.

The talks were attended by Crown Prince Fahd, who later met with Giscard d'Estaing for an hour on the subject of energy, a French spokesman said. He would not disclose whether any oil supply agreements were being arranged, but said the two leaders would continue their talks later.

The visit by the French president and several of his ministers to Saudi Arabia was attracting attention in the light of recent criticism in the West of France's decision to free Abu Daoud, suspected organizer of the Palestinian raid at the 1972 Munich Olympics, without waiting for West Germany's formal extradition request.

The subject of French arms sales to Saudi Arabia was not scheduled for discussion, nor was the suggested setting up of an Arab arms industry in Egypt, for which France has been mentioned as a provider of technical assistance and Saudi Arabia as a financier, the spokesman said.

Sunday activities included attendance by Giscard d'Estaing and the king at a horse race and a dinner in a tent in the desert.

The spokesman said Foreign

Minister Louis de Guiringaud would meet Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud el Faisal to discuss the Middle East problem, the situation in the Red Sea developing from the French pullout from Djibouti, and the Euro-Arab and North-South dialogues.

NEUROTHLIPSIA AND YOU

Symptoms and Their Meaning With . . .

Dr. A. N. Burpee, D.C.

The ratio of people suffering from neurothlipsia to those who know what it means is probably a thousand to one. It has become fashionable to call diseases by their proper medical term. To some it's a status symbol to have a problem with an exotic name. Unfortunately, it's sometimes misleading.

If you are nervous, irritable, suffer from frequent headaches, dizziness; experience pain in your neck, shoulders, arms, back and legs; or feel tightness in your chest, there's a good chance you have neurothlipsia. There's also a good chance you have a pinched nerve—essentially they are one and the same.

A pinched nerve, of course, is caused by a vertebral misalignment. Your spinal nerves that transmit the work directives from the spinal cord are protected by vertebrae. Often, falls, sprains, or faulty posture cause misalignment of these vertebrae and a pinched nerve results.

All in all, it's apparent that no matter how fancy the name of the ailment, it can become a painful, serious reminder that an individual serious reminder that an individual needs proper effective treatment and care.

Fortunately, modern chiropractic as practiced at Dr. Burpee's offices is known to be effective in the treatment of vertebral misalignment, thus relieving the painful effects of a pinched nerve. DO YOU HAVE A QUESTION? Call the Chiropractic Care and Information Bureau, 836-1190, and ask to speak to a Doctor of Chiropractic.

Treated daily at Burpee Chiropractic Offices are injuries resulting from home, work, auto or sports accidents, and spinal related health problems as headaches, neck, shoulder and arm pains, chest and stomach pains, and low back, hip and leg pains and sciatica. For an appointment to see if you can be helped by modern chiropractic care, CALL THE NUMBER IN YOUR AREA:

Pope Canonizes Spanish Nun

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI called Sunday for a "sincere brotherhood among all social classes" in Spain as he elevated to sainthood Rafaela Maria Porras y Ayllon, the Spanish-born founder of the Servants of the Sacred Heart.

Rafaela Maria's canonization in St. Peter's Basilica came 52 years after her death in Rome. It was the first ceremony of its kind this year. The canonization of Bishop John Neumann of Philadelphia, the first male saint from the United States, is scheduled on June 19.

In a speech in Spanish during the canonization mass the Pope expressed the hope that the new saint might help Spain to "achieve the graces the country seems more in need."

The new saint, beatified by Pope Pius XII in 1952, was born in 1850 in Pedro Abad, in the province of Cordoba. The youngest of 13 children of well-to-do parents, she made a vow of chastity at the age of 15 and with her sister Dolores dedicated her life to helping the needy.

Rafaela, who took the name of Maria of the Sacred Heart, and Dolores received official approval for their new congregation in 1886. Rafaela became the first superior general of the congregation and ran it for 66 years before turning over leadership to Dolores.

Rafaela then lived in her order's convent in Rome without any position of authority until her death in 1925.

Thirty cardinals, scores of prelates and about 60,000 other persons, many of them from Spain and Latin American countries where the congregation has houses and convents, attended the ceremony.

Even Burglar Protected By No-Knock Law

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patrolman Robert Freet thought he had a good arrest. He had seen two men enter a building and followed them to an upstairs apartment. The apartment door had been pried open. Inside, a man was removing jewelry from a dresser and placing it on a bed next to a screwdriver. He fit the description reported in another burglary Freet had investigated 10 days earlier.

Freet went through the open door and arrested Hector Solario and another man. But he didn't knock, and Solario's 1974 conviction has been reversed.

The 2nd District Court of Appeals, in a decision written last Dec. 3, ruled that a motion to suppress evidence had been improperly denied in Solario's original trial. Freet, it said, had violated Section 844 of the California Penal Code, known as the "Knock and Notice" statute, which requires an officer to identify himself and announce his intentions before entering a private residence.

Freet, still on the force, cannot comment on a pending case.

Section 844 originally was meant to protect homeowners against illegal search and seizure. But the appellate court held that Solario, who pleaded guilty in April 1975 to second degree burglary after the suppression motion was denied, also enjoyed those rights "vicariously."

Freet's seizure of the jewelry and screwdriver as evidence was unlawful, it held, even though it was the rights of the apartment's occupant, Jose Macias, not Solario's, that had been violated.

The state attorney general has appealed the reversal and the case is now before the California Supreme Court. The attorneys involved in the appeal decline comment, but the matter has drawn the attention of the California District Attorneys Association, which filed a friend of the court brief in support of the attorney general.

"The court of appeal in Solario has taken a useful and necessary rule of law (Section 844), and turned it into a needless and absurd limitation upon the reasonable and necessary actions of a police officer," said Barry Levy, who wrote the CDAA's friend of the court brief.

Finally, Vantage Longs.

The first long cigarette to bring good taste to low-tar smoking.

Like a lot of smokers you may like the idea of a longer cigarette. You may also want low tar.

But longer cigarettes usually have more tar. Well, Vantage just wouldn't go along with that.

So we worked. Until we could perfect a longer cigarette with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar. Not the lowest long cigarette you can find. But very possibly the lowest that you will enjoy.

New Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.

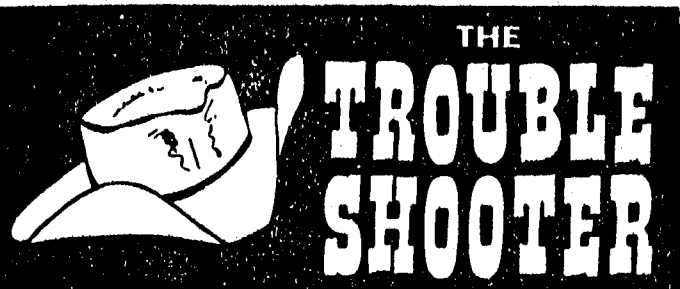

That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage Longs. Never before has there been a long cigarette quite like it.

Try a pack today and see if you go along with us.

U.S. CITIZENSHIP

Dear Trouble Shooter

Thanks to that big wave of your Stetson back in September, our citizenship class grew from just nine to 100 people. This group has called itself "The Trouble Shooter Gang," and, as such, had a good time, learned a lot and became prepared to get United States citizenship.

As this semester draws to a close, it's time to inform anybody else who is a "green card" carrying legal resident alien that the Alamos Adult Center on Dale (near Lampson) in Garden Grove is again willing to give all help in attaining U.S. citizenship. It doesn't cost a thing, and folks from anywhere are welcome. We meet one evening a week from 7 to about 9:45 p.m., Monday or Wednesday.

We've got the forms needed. We'll do the fingerprinting and we know how to get things going until the goal is reached and folks are registered to vote. (We haven't lost an applicant in more than 1,100 so far!)

For information, all folks need to do is call the Alamos Adult School office at 638-6361.

C.J.W.

Garden Grove
The Trouble Shooter hopes folks who know "green card" carrying legal resident aliens will tell them about your citizenship class, podnah.

He understands that your "Trouble Shooter Gang" has been a great group. They've supported Danny Davey's Indian projects with clothing, food and money, and have responded generously to other community needs.

Since the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization office in Los Angeles is extremely busy and the process takes some time, the sooner application forms are filled out, the sooner the processing is done. All legal aliens, of course, are required to report their current address at their nearest post office some time this month.

DANCE ROOM

Dear Trouble Shooter

We are five adult couples comprising a costumed folk dancing exhibition group. We do not charge for our exhibitions. We just enjoy performing for people and making them happy. We are available for worthy causes.

We need an uncarpeted room, approximately 25 by 30 ft. or larger, for rehearsals on Sunday or Monday evenings. Our rehearsals last about two hours.

We neither drink nor smoke and we respect property.

Do you suppose there is someone in the north, central or western area of Orange County who could share some space with us at no charge?

E.B.

Doesn't do any harm to ask, does it? Anyone who can help should give you a jingle at 544-6455.

COFFEE BREAK

Dear Trouble Shooter

Everybody knew the good old American ingenuity would come to our rescue in this coffee situation. Jerry Huggins' directions for "Hard Time Coffee" printed in a recent edition of The Register is really great!

We couldn't find the "malt-ing barley" he recommended, but found a big supply of "pearled barley" at Nutrition Village, 320 N. Euclid, Fullerton. They had reduced the price to 19 cents per lb.

We roasted it like Huggins recommended (400 degrees for about 45 minutes, got it quite dark in color, then simmered a tablespoon in three cups of water until it got quite rich looking. We didn't even grind it. It tastes wonderful. Without even adding the coffee to it, it was good.

Using half of the roasted barley and half coffee, you'd hardly know it wasn't all coffee.

We are going to gradually reduce the amount of coffee we use and go on straight roasted barley for our hot drink. We'll save a lot of money and it's better for our health.

(P.S. One pound of pearled barley, after it's roasted, fill a 1-lb. coffee can only half full, but it goes a lot further than you'd think.)

(You can boil the barley a second time and get more nice brown delicious beverage.)

H.M.
Buena Park

The Trouble Shooter reckons a lot of folks will be interested in your enthusiastic letter, Ma'am. Thank you for writing.

NURSING DATA

Dear Trouble Shooter

I have about 15 years of nursing journals (A.J.N. and R.N.). I think they might be of great interest to one of your readers.

I'll give them to someone who's willing to pick them up. Please ask those who are interested to write you a note and please forward the letters to me.

K.K.
Westminster

To speed things along, let's ask folks to write the words "Nursing Journals" on their outer envelope and to be sure to include a phone number where you can reach them.

BOAT SAFETY

Dear Trouble Shooter

Boats are easy to come by for anyone who has the money for the down payment. Accidents are easier for the novice skipper who hoists his new boat into the water and takes off.

If this person were aware that there is an organization that teaches basic boating, free of charge, I am sure he would avail himself of the opportunity of attending this class.

I am public relations officer for the SANTANA Power Squadron. My job is to make the public aware of the "when" and "where" of these classes. Our "bag" is boating for pleasure, power or sail, and we offer free boating classes, to the public, 12 years and older.

We do not make any money on these classes. On the contrary, we spend many thousands of dollars providing these classes.

We believe in safe boating, and we feel that by providing these classes taught by experienced skippers that new boat owners will learn what safe boating is.

Please tell your readers when our next classes begin.

D.B.H.
Orange

Happy to oblige!
Classes will begin Jan. 31 at El Dorado High School, 1651 N. Valencia, Placentia; Feb. 1 at Magnolia High School, 2430 W. Ball Rd., Anaheim; Feb. 2 at Ladera Vista Junior High School, 1700 E. Wilshire, Fullerton; Feb. 2 at Brea Olinda High School, 803 E. Birch, Brea.

All classes start at 7:30 p.m., are taught by experienced skippers, free of charge and are designed to teach boating skills essential for safety on the water. There are some 12 evening lecture sessions, followed by an examination. A certificate of completion is issued to those achieving a passing grade on the exam.

Classes deal with handling a boat under normal conditions, handling under adverse conditions, seamanship and common emergencies, "rules of the road," aids to navigation, compass and chart familiarization, running lights and equipment, boat trailering, river boating and mariner's compass and piloting.

VALUABLE BOOK?

Dear Trouble Shooter

In a recent edition of the Parade magazine supplement to The Register, there was a story that said a copy of "Gone With the Wind" printed in May 1936 was valued at $2,500. I have a copy printed in 1936 but can't find a month. Where can I write to find out if the book I have is a valuable one?

TONY DISCALA EASES HIS FISHING BOAT, 'EL SOLE,' OUT OF DANA POINT HARBOR

Lure Of The Sea Runs Strong Despite Diminishing Catches

By STAN WULFF
Register Staff Writer

DANA POINT — A cold wind swept from the hills out over the coastline, painting whitecaps on the choppy waves as "El Sole," an old fan-tail commercial fishing boat, chugged out of the harbor.

"There's a storm out there somewhere," said skipper Tony DiScala, 43, bearded and barrel-chested, eyeing the heaving swells and the blue-gray cloud front on the horizon.

Gripped by the waves, the 33-foot vessel built in 1919 in San Pedro pitched and rolled as it was pushed by its diesel engine towards the fishing nets a mile off shore.

DiScala was delighted. "Maybe we'll be lucky today," he said. "The change in weather makes the fish move about." Fishing hasn't been good this winter.

"It's been very frustrating," said DiScala. There are good and bad seasons and this had been a bad one. "You're truly at the mercy of the elements. In a way it's like farming, except you don't get subsidies from the government. The little, independent fisherman like me is out there all by himself. If you don't make money one year, you're on your own. It's a cold world."

It was indeed a chilly morning. The temperature was around 45 degrees.

Only minutes before, DiScala had been at a coffee shop sipping hot coffee and eating a hearty breakfast of sausage and eggs in the company of other commercial fishermen like Gene Stivers, Bob Lombard and house builder "Spanky" Auger who said he quit fishing because there wasn't enough money in it.

For DiScala, fishing has been his life and the only thing he says he knows enough about, to make a living.

Born in Connecticut of parents who immigrated from Italy, DiScala came with the family to California in 1942. From San Pedro his father sailed a fishing boat and that's where Tony learned the business.

From San Pedro he went to San Diego where he bought the old "El Sole" in 1964 for $6,500. "It's a good boat," he said. "It was owned successively by four San Pedro fishing families. They don't make boats like this anymore. The engine is so economical that my annual fuel bills runs to only $300. That's less than half what others pay."

"The 'El Sole' is today probably worth more as an antique. I wouldn't sell it for less than $15,000. But I'll probably keep it and retire on it some day," he said.

From San Diego he moved to Oceanside where he and his wife Dian operated a fish market. They have two children, Jennifer, 5, and Anthony, 6.

It was less than a year ago that they sold their market in Oceanside and moved to Dana Point where they opened the Dana Wharf Fish Market, only a few paces from the commercial fishing docks.

"The way it's going," said DiScala, "I'll probably make more money on the market than on fishing." His own daily catch is only part of the fresh fish offered at the market.

"Fishing is not what it used to be in the 50s when you could still make a lot of money."

For one, there are too many young and inexperienced fishermen out on the waters, he said. "There's a bunch of young, green guys who will make you dizzy with all the figures on how much money they're making, and then they can't pay for their own coffee."

There are also the dangers to the expensive nets ($200 each) posed by increasing numbers of whales that will either totally destroy a "gang" of three or four nets or simply carry them off, if caught in them. DiScala said he doesn't dare put out more than six nets during the migration of the whales.

Seals are becoming a problem, too, he said. They will steal the catch right out of the nets.

But mainly the cost of equipment and operation is cutting too deeply into the profits, he said.

Still, on a good day he will catch up to 200 pounds of halibut and sell it at 70 to 85 cents a pound. Bonita will sell for 17 cents and shark for 35 cents, he said. During the summer he catches sea bass and, during spring, barracuda.

"Today is not going to be a good day," he said, "but I hope it's going to be better than yesterday when I caught only nine halibut." He scanned the waves and spotted the flag marking his nets.

He maneuvered towards the flag and the cork buoy and throttled the engine. Through an ingenious arrangement of pulleys and rods he was able to operate the controls while standing on the aft deck and hauling up the nets and rolling them on drums mounted on deck.

Up from 60 feet deep came dripping red nylon nets, lead weights, and float. The nets slid over rollers mounted on the stern and then spun onto a drum.

Every so often, DiScala stopped the drum to untangle a sea animal from the net. There were spider crabs, small sharks, a two-foot angel shark, rays, cone shells, sticks and kelp.

DiScala kept up a running monologue replete with forceful expressions directed towards creatures that had been entangled in the web or had caused net damage.

Halibut also came up in the nets but they were few and far between. After the first nets, he had only a few halibut, a number of claws from crabs, and a small sole. He tossed one halibut back into the water because it was under the legal size.

"My father used to say that you can make enough in the last five minutes on the last net to make the day," he said.

DiScala moved on to the last net which was a combination of a year-old piece and a brand new piece that had been in the water only two days.

As the old piece wound onto the drum nothing of any use to him came up. But when the bright red piece cranked into view, there were three halibut in a row.

And as the net kept coming up, there was a wealth of crabs, rays, and, luckily, several more halibut. DiScala was excited. "Didn't I tell you what my father used to say? It also shows that having good, new nets is a must for a good catch. I really need twice as many good nets out as I have."

After three hours at sea the "El Sole" headed back to the dock and DiScala took his catch to the market. Tomorrow he would go out again and maybe his luck would be better.

Key To Problem Fits Family Car

DEAR ABBY: As many others have said, I never thought I'd be writing a letter to Dear Abby, but I must confess, I don't know where to turn.

Our 17-year-old son has become interested in a girl. We've always wanted him to have girlfriends, but this one might not be good for him. A week ago Saturday, on their first date, they went to a movie. (We let him use the family car.) He came home at 7:45 Sunday morning!

He said that after the movie, he went to her house to watch television and they both fell asleep. Last Saturday night he went out at 7 p.m. and came home at 4:30 Sunday morning.

Wouldn't you say that something is drastically wrong with a mother who would allow a 15-year-old girl to keep such hours?

Any advice his father and I give him causes nothing but back talk. We've always had a good relationship with our son until now. What do you suggest?

DEAR WORRIED: I suggest that his father have a man-to-man talk with the boy. Of course the girl's parents should place some restrictions on her with regard to the hours she keeps, but since they do not (or she ignores them), it's up to you to put some on your son. Tell him what time you want him home, and if he doesn't comply, the key to the situation is the one that fits the car.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of the following situation:

When friends just drop in, should the hostess excuse herself and put on a pot of coffee, or get a cold drink and serve it with a sandwich, cake, cookies or whatever she has on hand? Or should she ask her guests if they would like a hot drink, a cold one or a sandwich?

My husband and I are on opposite sides of this argument and need you to settle it for us.

MILLIE IN MARYLAND

DEAR MILLIE: The gracious hostess does not inquire. She acts. (P.S. Drop-in visitors should not expect a feed-in.)

DEAR ABBY: For the last 12 years I have gone to the same hairdresser once a week for a shampoo and set. It now costs $6 plus a dollar tip and the cost of parking.

Every Christmas I have given my hairdresser a lovely gift, carefully chosen—something I would like to receive myself.

It just occurred to me, Abby, that inasmuch as I tip my hairdresser every week, SHE (or the owner) should be giving ME a small present at Christmas in appreciation of my business.

Next year should I ask, "Which would you prefer, a tip every week or a nice Christmas present?"

I would appreciate your opinion and those of your readers and hairdressers.

DEAR TIRED: Don't ask. Those who perform personal services NEED tips, but feeling as you do, skip the Christmas gift.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

LOW BACK AND LARGE INTESTINE PROBLEMS

CASE NO. 1804

I heard Dr. Gary Couture speak at a health symposium and then attended a series of free lectures at his office. What I learned there made me aware of my abdominal bulge and lack of energy. A barium x-ray of my large intestine (colon) showed a prolapse, constriction, kinks, parasites, and a toxic distended condition. The constriction was so severe it could have necessitated colon surgery.

After 24 colon therapy (water and oxygen) treatments, the colon was restored to normal function. I might add I had a weight loss from 205 to 185 pounds.

I also had x-rays done on my spinal column and the x-rays indicated that I had a pinched nerve in the low back. Through a series of chiropractic adjustments, the side pain, the pain in my low back are gone, and my general health is phenomenal.

One word describes my experience - miraculous. I advise anybody who has a large intestine problem, or spinal problem, to have consultation and become a patient at the Couture chiropractic offices.

Reservoirs Cause Quakes-Geologists

MENLO PARK (AP) - The frequency of earthquakes around dams may be related to the height of water behind them, two government geologists say.

"There is no question about it - reservoirs trigger earthquakes," said Robert Mark, of the U.S. Geological Survey office here. "We felt this information in the report was of sufficient importance that it should be in the public domain. That's why we published it."

Mark and fellow researcher Desiree Stuart-Alexander said last week that they found that of 19 dams ranging from 150 meters to 230 meters in height, five have been shaken by earthquakes greater than 3.0 on the Richter Scale.

Some earthquake scientists have theorized that the weight of millions of tons of water exerts massive pressure on the fault, causing it to shift and creating an earthquake. Others have theorized that quakes are caused by water forcing its way into the pores of rocks, thus weakening rocks beneath reservoirs.

The USGS researchers told the San Francisco Examiner that they reported their findings late last year, but an official USGS announcement of the report was canceled by officials in Washington, D.C.

Included in the data was the Aug. 1, 1975, earthquake that heavily damaged Oroville, which sits just below the mammoth earthen Oroville Dam on the Feather River. That tremor registered 6.1 on the Richter Scale on a fault long considered inactive.

New data collected after the Oroville shock is prompting officials to have an Oakland consulting firm reevaluate the $847-million Auburn Dam project and the similarly priced New Melones Dam for earthquake safety.

Donald Alexander, project director for the Auburn Dam, said the Bureau of Reclamation is adding 30 per cent more concrete to the dam's foundation in anticipation of expected results of earthquake safety studies.

"The places you build high dams are also places where there are often earthquakes," Devine said.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Every year you clergymen and teachers might improve on this sketchy outline of my Bicentennial Address. For each new crop of children must be indoctrinated afresh, or liberty will vanish from America!

CASE K-612: On our Bicentennial July 4th, I was asked to speak at a union church service at 9 A.M. in a beautiful city park.

And I stressed a few points that clergymen and other speakers could easily improve upon for annual salutes to our great Republic and its brave founders.

So I mentioned that our Republic is unique in the history of all governments!

For in the famous Declaration of Independence we pay tribute to Deity as the source of our liberties, saying that we are "endowed by our Creator with certain unalienable rights."

Other governments pay allegiance to kings or dictators and look to them for such limited concessions as the despots wish to let their subjects enjoy.

But we salute God Almighty as the true source of our freedoms!

And that word "unalienable" means "not capable of being surrendered or transferred."

Which shows that our Founding Fathers believed God implanted such innate liberties in us, as He did the natural pacemaker in our hearts!

And I also explained why North America has far outdistanced South America in world leadership, invention, education, churches and agriculture!

For the Pilgrims, Puritans, Quakers and the Catholics who settled at Baltimore, made their perilous journeys in search of freedom to worship God.

They were thus seeking God, not "gold!"

Alas, the European explorers of Central and South America greedily sought gold and killed thousands of natives, often torturing them sadistically to find where they might loot the Indians' supply of that yellow metal.

There is thus a whole of a difference between "God" vs. "Gold" as a motivator of the two continents in our Western Hemisphere!

In seeking a new land, away from Europe's dictatorial despots, our pioneers thus asserted their determination to gain "independence" from temporal monarchs.

But meanwhile affirmed their "dependence" on Divine Providence.

And I concluded my 30-minute address by citing the remarks of a Confederate Captain, who came up to his Colonel after a big victory for the South, saying:

"Colonel, we certainly slaughtered the Yanks today, didn't we?"

The Colonel nodded.

"We're soon going to win the war, eh?" the Captain gleefully went on.

But the Colonel shook his head.

"Why, Colonel," the Captain added, incredulously, "this is the third battle we've won in a row!"

The Colonel looked at him gravely and replied:

"Captain, we have won these battles but we can't win the war, for when men sing like that, you can never defeat them."

And the Colonel pointed his arm toward the distant hills, whence came this familiar lyric from the "Battle Hymn Of The Republic":

"As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free."

Our famous Founding Fathers were acting upon that same invincible theme when they drafted the Declaration of Independence.

And the starving, half frozen boys at Valley Forge were doing likewise!

BACKGROUND SKETCHES OF CARTER'S CABINET

WASHINGTON (AP) - Here are thumbnail sketches of President Carter's Cabinet members and some remarks Carter made about them at their swearing-in ceremony Sunday:

Cyrus R. Vance - secretary of state; expected to end the center-stage shuttle diplomacy practiced by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger; served in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations as general counsel of the Defense Department, Army secretary and deputy defense secretary. "He got closest to the most unanimous recommendation of any," Carter said.

W. Michael Blumenthal - secretary of treasury; a former federal trade negotiator and deputy assistant secretary of state for economic affairs; resigned as president and chief executive officer of the Bendix Corp. to enter government service. "He's the one that's going to make sure we stay on a sound basis ... in economics and finance," Carter said.

Harold Brown - secretary of defense; a physicist who once headed the Air Force and was the Pentagon's research and development chief; pledged to maintain adequate defense while trying to trim between $5 billion and $7 billion in waste from the defense budget. Carter described him as a chief scientific adviser and quipped that the California Institute of Technology, which Brown headed, "is second only to Georgia Tech."

Cecil D. Andrus - secretary of interior; resigned as governor of Idaho to take the job; former chairman of the National Governors Conference; is expected to emphasize conservation and environmental protection and a balanced use of the nation's resources. "The only Cabinet member I never hesitated at all about," Carter said.

Bob Bergland - secretary of agriculture; a Minnesota farmer and Democratic member of Congress who has been active on the House Agriculture Committee as a political ally of Vice President Walter F. Mondale. Carter had promised to appoint a farmer and called Bergland

"a man who has worked hard all his life in manual labor and knows the concerns of the consumer."

Juanita M. Kreps - secretary of commerce; an economist, vice president of Duke University and a specialist on problems of the aged; expected to bring no major change to the department. "We have a very close, very tender relationship," Carter said.

Brock Adams - secretary of transportation; a Democratic member of Congress from Washington state since 1964; principal author of the Northeast Rail Bill aimed at revitalizing ailing railroads; will take part in negotiations with Great Britain and France over landing rights for the Concorde supersonic airliner. As chairman of the House Budget Committee, Adams was "instrumental for evolving a sound way of handling budgetary and appropriation questions," Carter said.

Patricia Roberts Harris - secretary of housing and urban development; a Washington attorney and former dean of the Howard University Law School; appointed U.S. ambassador to Luxembourg by President Johnson; expected to help implement Carter's plan to use housing to create jobs in such a way as to hold down inflation. "She's in the forefront of carrying out a proper role for minority groups and women," Carter said.

Thomas B. Lance - director of the Office of Management and Budget; president of a rural bank in north Georgia when Carter tapped him to be state transportation commissioner; pledged to sell $2.8 million worth of stock in the National Bank of Georgia to become budget director. Carter called him "one of the closest friends I have in the world."

James R. Schlesinger - Chief White House energy adviser; former defense secretary under President Gerald R. Ford; one-time head of the CIA; former head of the Atomic Energy Commission. "I hope we can form without much delay a new department of energy policy," Carter said. "At that time he will be head of that department."

Charles L. Schultz - chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; budget director under President Lyndon B. Johnson; with the Brookings Institution since 1968 where he and others served as a "shadow" economics council during the Nixon and Ford administrations. "My closest person in shaping basic economic policy," Carter said.

Zbigniew Brzezinski - national security adviser; chairman of Carter's newly reorganized National Security Council; former Columbia University professor who was Carter's chief foreign policy adviser during the campaign. "He has caused consternation for the typesetters of this country," Carter said. "He is a man whose name I can spell, and all of my staff are now learning how."

The Doctor Says

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My father's recurring gout has us concerned. After he is well, he takes half or none of his Benemid pills.

By taking the pills regularly would he build up an immunity? Do whirlpool foot baths help? Is it proper to raise the leg and rest it? What food or liquids should he avoid? Is cold water soaking helpful? When gout occurs, in addition to taking the pills, what steps can be taken to ease the pain and help speed up the reduction of the acid?

DEAR READER - You are right to be concerned about your father's mismanagement of his gout. Benemid is used to increase the elimination of urate, the salt of uric acid, by the kidneys. In this way Benemid decreases the amount of uric acid in the body and helps to prevent attacks of gout. It is not used to treat acute attacks at all and should not be started until the acute painful attack is over.

No, one does not develop an immunity to the pills. Whirlpools and other devices are not the primary treatment of gout. Anything that makes a person more comfortable with an acute attack will be appreciated but the most effective treatment for the acute attack is Colchicine, a medicine that has been used for this purpose for years.

There is medicine, allopurinol (Zyloprim) that prevents the overproduction of uric acid by the body cells. By prevention of the overproduction of uric acid the problems of gout can be controlled or prevented.

With the medicines available, the need for a strict diet to control the uric acid level is no longer so important. You do need to understand gout and how the medicines work. A person with gout should continue to take his medicine regularly to control the uric acid level. To help you I am sending you a copy of The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Will you please explain macular degeneration in the eye?

DEAR READER - The best way to think of the macula is that it is a pinpoint spot at the back of the eye where much of the image of what we see is focused. Although the entire retinal screen at the back of the eye may be used the portion called the macula is the main area of sight.

Damage or disease of the macula, even if the area is quite small, may have a marked effect on vision. The macula may degenerate in both eyes about the same time because of an inherited defect. In most cases it is secondary to some other disease or injury. A common cause is damage to the blood supply to that small area. The circulation cannot be restored and the area may be permanently damaged. The progressive damage though may be stopped if the underlying disease causing it can be corrected. That does not mean that any sight that has already been lost can then be restored.

Since there are many different causes for macular degeneration the treatment varies. It is such an important problem that anyone with such a disorder should be followed by an eye specialist.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "When was the forcing two-bid invented and who was responsible?"

Oswald: "The year was 1929 and there were three of us - Ted Lightner, Waldemar von Zedwitz and myself. Our three basic concepts were: It should include so many high cards that there would be a danger a non-forcing bid would be passed. It should be within one trick of game. There should be distinct alarm possibilities."

Jim: "Those are still valid. How about the bust response of two notrump?"

Oswald: "That was our idea also, but it wasn't as good as it might have been. Nevertheless it got into standard American bidding and is probably there to stay."

Jim: "If South opens today's hand with a forcing two bid, North responds two notrump. South raises to three, West opens the queen of hearts and if the defense doesn't block the suit they gather in five quick heart tricks."

Oswald: "That is why the correct opening bid with this South hand is three notrump. Nothing can hurt him and if a heart is opened he will have 10 top tricks."

Ask the Jacobys

A Minnesota reader sent us the hand in today's article. He asked if we would open it with a forcing two bid. This article answers his question. Avoid forcing two bids with notrump type hands if possible.

VITAMIN VILLAGE

ARE YOU COMPLETELY SATISFIED?

• We hear from people all the time (people we bump into at the bank, while buying clothes, at parties, etc.) that they are taking vitamins but are not feeling any better. They are attempting to consciously supplement their diet with various nutritional supplements, such as vitamins, minerals, proteins, individual items, special complexes and multiples, etc.

• Most of these people generally feel that they could do better with the nutritional program. They feel that they are either paying way too much and getting such low potencies that they don't notice that they are taking anything at all (as is common with the neighborhood distributor pyramid plan, selling scheme lines); or they feel like they are stumbling along from digestive to malnutrition, trying to save money or get a "good deal," but usually not being on the line and most of the time money invested.

• It is time to switch to VITAMIN VILLAGE. The Nutritional Supplement Specialists with experience since 1936. We formulate our own products so you can be sure that they are the best, and have them together to make up complete and properly balanced nutritional programs that can be custom tailored to fit your individual needs.

• Our employees are interested in natural nutrition and good health. They are familiar with all of the current periodicals and most of the best books by the prominent authors. They are trained in the field of natural nutrition, and they are eager to help you get the most out of the time and money you put into your nutritional program.

• Stop into a VITAMIN VILLAGE today. Your good health should be your top priority. We'll be glad to help you get it.

There's An Ugly Side To Stardom

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD - (NEA) - Consider stardom. For most people, looking at that grand institution from the outside, it seems the height of glamor. What could be better than the fame and fortune that go with being a big name in show business?

I spoke to Tony Orlando about the subject. Maybe it was because his CBS show was being cancelled, but he talked of the negative aspects of being a major star.

He became downright gloomy and talked in terms of the epitaph he has prepared, he says, for his tombstone.

"I read a book about tombstones," Orlando said, "and I've been giving a lot of thought to the problem. And I finally figured what I'd like to have on mine."

"The front of it would read: 'LIFE IS A SLOW DEATH.' And then, on the back, there would be these words: 'AH, BUT WHAT A WAY TO GO.'"

That philosophical dichotomy about stardom permeates Orlando's thinking on the subject. He recognizes the good and the bad in his situation, as one of today's most popular entertainers.

He likes being successful. He likes entertaining the public and watching them respond to his artistry. And he likes the material rewards that brings.

"I like money and what it can buy," he says. "I like driving fancy cars, wearing fancy clothes, living in style. It's a good feeling to make money."

"For the first time in years, I am now solvent. I don't owe anybody a penny. I've paid off all my debts. I've paid all my taxes. I bought a new house."

So, financially, stardom pleases him. But the good life is not all fancy cars and clothes.

"The public," he says, "has no idea of the work it takes to put on a variety show. I wish I had a dollar for every time I've gone on a plane and some woman has come up to me and said, 'You have it made - you only have to work one hour a week every Wednesday.'"

"They just don't understand that you have to be there (at CBS) at 8:30 every morning and don't get home until ten or so in the evening. And that's six days a week."

"I'm tired. I can understand why some performers quit, because the grind is just so tough."

He looked tired. The bounce that characterizes his on-screen personality was missing. He leaned back in his chair, propping his high-soled shoes up on his desk.

"I make a lot of money," he said, "but I have to pay a big price for that money. The big thing is the loss of anonymity."

"Say I take my six-year-old son to the beach. I'm immediately surrounded. Autographs. Pictures. Whatever. And Kenny keeps saying, 'But, Daddy, you promised to take me on the merry-go-round. When are we going on the merry-go-round. You promised.' By then it's four o'clock, and I've done nothing but sign autographs, and it's time to go home."

Orlando says he doesn't like to talk this way, to burst the public's shimmering bubble.

"That's another price a star has to pay for stardom," he says. "It's wrong to destroy the public's fantasy. They think being a star is the greatest thing there is. I am living their fantasy. It would be cruel to destroy that fantasy, to tell them of the ugly side of stardom."

In a way, Tony Orlando is living his own fantasy. He grew up, a New York slum kid, wanting stardom. His particular dream, however, wasn't so much for the money.

"Ever since I was a kid," he says, "I've wanted to entertain people, to bring them some laughs, some pleasure. Honestly, I'm not in the business for the money, although I like money."

"But it wasn't the money that drove me. As a matter of fact, when I first went on TV - July 3, 1974 - I was $800,000 in debt. That's proof that I wasn't in show business for the money."

It took him a long time, but he got what he wanted, the chance to entertain millions. It was a circuitous route. He sang, first, but was only moderately successful. Then, for eight years, he was out of performing, functioning as a music publisher and record producer.

In 1970, he teamed up with Dawn - Telma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent Wilson - and the chemistry was right and they made several hit records.

NOTES ON TV

Demond Moves In When Redd Goes

By GARY DEEB
Chicago Tribune

duties at WNBC-TV in New York.

HOLLYWOOD - Hot flashes, cool observations, and other tender tidbits from the place responsible for most of what we see on television:

-Demond Wilson, who has spent six seasons as second banana to Redd Foxx on "Sanford & Son," becomes the full-fledged star of the show next fall when Foxx leaves NBC to host a weekly comedy-variety hour on ABC.

The Friday night "Sanford" series obviously will need a new title, and chances are it'll be "The Sanford Arms," named after a semi-leahag hotel across the street from the Sanford junkyard.

A new supporting cast of characters will be introduced, probably led by a relative who will continue "the adversary relationship" that has been established between the characters played by Foxx and Wilson.

-Bill Small, senior vice president of CBS News who, to put it kindly, is not loved by most of his network news staff, isn't winning any more friends among his own employees.

The latest Small move to upset the CBS News rank-and-file was a phone call he placed to Barbara Walters, ABC News co-anchor and resident gossip.

Small apologized to Walters for a CBS Radio commentary by "60 Minutes" co-host Morley Safer in which Safer belted Babs for her ludicrous interview with Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter.

Safer was 100 per cent correct in his blast at Walters' brand of "peephole journalism." But instead of being proud of him for ignoring the traditional politeness among competitors, Small phoned Walters and expressed his personal regrets.

Small gained notoriety at CBS for browbeating employees who don't play by his peculiar rules. So far, there are no reports of specific reprisals against Safer.

-NBC's postmidnight "Tomorrow Show" will move back to Los Angeles on June 1, this column has learned.

The switch, still to be officially announced, confirms a tip in this column two months ago. As also first reported here, host Tom Snyder already has resigned his "NBC Update" anchor chores and soon leaves his newscasting

And when "Tomorrow" again begins originating from the West Coast, Snyder plans to put the show "on the road" for perhaps 10 weeks a year, including two or three weeks of programs from Chicago.

-The recent 3 1/2 hour NBC News documentary "Violence in America" is getting much criticism from people who believe the program used a "back door approach" to violence to draw big ratings.

The special registered a 32 per cent share of the audience, a remarkable figure for a news documentary, and cynics say the blood, guts, and mayhem may have been a major factor despite the "socially redeeming" message of the program - that violence is a serious national problem.

According to some observers, NBC may look at the hefty ratings and produce future documentaries on "Sex in America" and "Perversion in America" - all in the interest of the public welfare, naturally.

-This column has learned that CBS, producer Allen Landsburg, and screenwriter David Rintels have paid a relatively small out-of-court cash settlement to the ex-wife of TV-radio personality John Henry Faulk.

Lynne Faulk Gordon had sued for libel because of the way she was portrayed in "Fear on Trial," the CBS movie based on Faulk's blacklisting during the 1950s.

Now a Toronto TV talk show host, Lynne Faulk Gordon charges that she was depicted as a cowardly woman who failed to support her husband during his legal battle against the blacklists.

BRADY BUNCH CHANGES - That is, the same "Brady Bunch" who used to be on the situation comedy hasn't changed, with one exception, but there have been additions for their new variety hour, which debuted on ABC at 7 p.m. Sunday. This is the water ballet group which appears in the variety show, which will be seen at the same time about every five weeks.

Lear Faces Need To Revise

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Norman Lear, the sad-faced sitcom king, is a bit harried lately. He's been face-lifting "Mary Hartman" and "A Year at the Top," runs eight other shows and faces a possible Writers Guild strike affecting the entire TV industry on March 1.

But he sounded quite calm when asked why he:

- Recently began personally toiling again on the Hartman show, which some critics groused had become a daily downer of "Serious Social commentary with little of its old, wild, spaced-out humor."

- Got CBS' permission to yank his scheduled (for Jan. 19) "Top" comedy about aged performers who get instant youth from the devil in exchange for their souls and a year's show biz success.

"Top," with eight regulars, including Mickey Rooney, "just wasn't very good," candidly admitted Lear, who returned the show to his emporium for revamping and possibly a fresh start in September.

"It was just too complicated."

Lear, whose syndicated Hartman show got much praise when it began in early 1975, ran afoul of grumbles from critics and letter-writing fans who said it was getting boring. Ratings slumped briefly.

His diagnoses: "It was tak-

We were trying to tell too many things and consequently nothing was told. And we just did a bad job."

He still believes in the show's concept, but says its revamping will include a reduction in cast size, a move being discussed now.

"In simplifying it, we will lose some characters, but I don't know which ones yet," he said.

Halfback-Actor Keeps Busy

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) "I always said I would work as hard as I could until I was 30-years-old, then I'd start to slow down. Well, I've got seven months to go."

At 29-plus, O.J. Simpson maintains the pace you see in those car-rental commercials that have him racing through air terminals. He never seems to slow down, although he did admit to taking his family on a five-day jaunt to Puerto Vallarta recently.

Having just completed a season in pro football with the Buffalo Bills, Simpson joined the cast of Sir Lew Grade's space film "Capricorn One," taking time out for the Pro Bowl. He can also be seen in the movies "Cassandra Crossing" and "Killer Force."

For eight years he has been a TV sportscaster for ABC "and I hope I stay with them forever." His commercials are among the most successful in TV, and he turns up on variety shows and dramatic series. He is also active in a number of business enterprises, including racquetball gyms.

With it all he manages to preserve his sanity and his down-to-earth charm. At CBS Studio Center one day he left the "Capricorn One" set in his astronaut's uniform and devoured a lunch that included lasagna and chocolate cake. "Most people gain weight when they get older; I lose," he explained.

O.J. James Brolin and Sam Waterston play astronauts aboard Capricorn One, the first manned mission to Mars. In truth, the flight is a hoax managed by NASA chief Hal Holbrook and investigated by reporters Elliott Gould and Karen Black.

"Capricorn One" may constitute a transition film for Orenthal James Simpson, better known as "The Juice." Until now he has been appearing in secondary roles to stars like Lee Marvin and Richard Burton ("The Klansman") and Steve McQueen and Paul Newman ("The Towering Inferno").

"Now I'm looking for films that are tailored to me," said the athletic actor. "It's time that I became the leading man. I don't mean to say that I have paid my dues, but I certainly have watched and learned. Now it's time to see if I can carry a picture on my own."

Such a movie is now being prepared for him by producer Howard Koch ("The Odd Couple," "Plaza Suite"). Originally it was based on the John Garfield film "Body and Soul," but Simpson said the script has veered from that concept. He hopes to finish the project before he has to report to training camp this summer.

Is he prepared for the leap to stardom?

"I think so," said the ever-confident O.J. "I've worked hard on my acting, not with classes or lessons, but by observing and learning. On 'Cassandra Crossing' I became good friends with Lee Strasberg, and he advised me against taking lessons. What I do is natural, he told me."

"Still, I want to stretch myself as an actor, to express more emotion. I watched Strasberg in a scene in which he had to break down. To my amazement, he was able to do it again and again. I asked him about that, and he said it is simply a matter of finding keys within yourself, so you can summon up whatever mood you need to express. I'm trying to learn that."

He strives to be himself on TV despite the heckling of co-performer Howard Cosell.

McCracken: Crack Singer!

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — The opera "Le Prophete" has been revived twice in the last 50 years — in Zurich and Berlin — and made a third appearance at the Metropolitan Opera here Tuesday. Each time the person chosen to sing the title role has been a big man with a big voice, the American tenor James McCracken.

"It's an unusual role from the standpoint of stamina," says McCracken. "There's one scene where I do three arias in a row."

The Met, trying to shorten the evening, cuts out a couple of intermissions and runs the first three acts of this unusually long opera as one act, 95 minutes long.

McCracken could hang out a sign, "Have stamina, will travel." He says he wishes he had counted how many times — it's in the hundreds — he has sung the title role in Verdi's "Otello," the role for which he's best known. It, too, is a long, taxing role and there aren't many tenors who can or will sing it. Jon Vickers, for instance, will sing it — but never more than five times in one year.

Caruso had one of his great successes in "Le Prophete" at the Met before 1920 and Giovanni Martinelli, who was the great Otello of his day, sang "Le Prophete" the last time it was heard at the Met, 50 years ago, in 1927.

The opera was written by Giacomo Meyerbeer, whose name, before he embellished it, was Jacob Beer. "A man whose name is Beer can't be all bad," McCracken says.

The singer used to come off stage at the end of an opera, thirsty from the exertion, and drink quantities of beer. He has given that up in an attempt to keep his weight in the low 200s. But the word obviously still has fond associations.

McCracken's disposition is genial, his manner as down-to-earth as though he'd never left Gary, Ind. At 50, his hair is wavy white, his face youthful and his speaking voice light-textured, a surprise to one who has heard his clarion tones while singing.

The tenor's daughter, Ahna, a sophomore in political science at Yale, sums up the plot of "Le Prophete" as "the story of a Jesus Freak." It is based on a real 16th century person, Bockles Bockleson, who lived on the Holland-Germany border.

Beatty Ex Girlfriend Nets A Tax Bonanza

By SHIRLEY EDER
Knight News Wire

HOLLYWOOD — Warren Beatty's girlfriend — oops — I mean ex-girlfriend, Michelle Phillips, currently playing opposite Rudolf Nureyev in the movie "Valentino" and formerly a singer and composer with the Mamas and Papas, has come into a bonanza. She has just been informed by her business manager that she is to receive immediately a $175,000 tax rebate from three years ago. Maybe it's because of this new-found loot that she has had the courage to walk out (which she did this week) on marriage escape-artist Warren.

And some more news from Spitsville, U.S.A.: Cher and Gregg Allman have done it again: Cher has once more split from her husband, Gregg. I'm told it's for the same old reasons — Gregg's involvement with drugs.

SHIRLEBRITIES: Linda Ronstadt agreed to go with California's Gov. Jerry Brown to the Inauguration. And what's more, Jerry Brown went to the Inaugural rehearsals to watch Miss Ronstadt do her thing.

On Jan. 30, Elizabeth Taylor and her husband, John Warner, check into the Beverly Hills Hotel. On Feb. 2, the Richard Burtons arrive in Los Angeles. Because Liz will be staying at the Bev Hills, Richard decided to book a suite for himself and Susan at the nearby Wilshire. I guess they all assume it will look better to the neighbors if they don't take up residence at the same hotel at the same time. And besides, Elizabeth gets there first.

Elizabeth and Richard, you can bet, will get together at some point with their daughter, Liza Todd. Liza has just entered art school here in L.A. and is ensconced in her own apartment. Both Mama and Papa Richard are anxious to see what she is about. Liza's real father, Mike Todd, was killed in a plane crash a few months after she was born. She was a small child when her mother was married to Eddie Fisher, so the only real father figure in her life has been Burton, whom she adores and who adores her.

Joseph E. Levine, here in Hollywood to oversee the technical work on his "A Bridge Too Far," says he's looking for a male star for his next movie, "Magic." He says: "It's a great Bill Goldman script. Any actor will be delighted to do it. W.E.L.L. He had a meeting with and made a firm offer to Jack Nicholson to star in 'Magic.' And what happened? 'We never heard back from him,' said Joe. 'So we're looking.' Isn't it nice to be so much in demand that you don't even have to answer offers for work which could make you a million dollars or more?"

Henry Fonda is building up to feeling well again and is at home reading the many movie scripts which seem to be pouring in.

DIDYA KNOW DEPT.: Friday night Helen Reddy is to be beamed. Her midnight show at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas will be beamed by satellite to music journalists at a convention in Cannes, France. When it's midnight in Las Vegas, it's 5 a.m. in Cannes. So I hope all those music reporters aren't planning to review Helen. What critic could be in a receptive and happy mood at 5 o'clock in the morning?

Incidentally, this entire project has been co-ordinated by Jeff Wald, Helen's husband, and paid for by Capitol Records and EMI.

Cellist At Ambassador

Sills Recital Sold Out

PASADENA — Daniel Shafran, cellist, will perform at Ambassador Auditorium here Thursday, Jan. 27 at 8:30 p.m. His Ambassador appearance is part of his third U.S. tour — and the first in 11 years. He has also performed throughout Europe, South America, in Japan and Australia.

In Russia, Shafran is esteemed as one of that country's greatest artists.

Accompanying Shafran on this tour is the distinguished Soviet pianist Anton Ginzburg, first prize winner of the 1957 Smetana Competition and, since then, a busy soloist and ensemble performer.

Shafran and Ginzburg will perform Brahms' E minor Sonata, Schubert's Arpeggione Sonata and Shostakovich's Sonata for Viola transcribed for cello by Shafran. The latter, the composer's final work before his death, will be receiving its west coast premiere.

Beverly Sills' recital at Ambassador Auditorium on Sunday, Feb. 6 at 7:30 p.m. is sold out. The program for Miss Sills' recital includes arias from Handel's "Samson," Mozart's "Der Schauspielerdirektor" and "Exultate, jubilate," Thomas' "Mignon" and Rossini's "Il barbiere di Siviglia" and songs by Koechlin, Liszt, Delibes, Rossini and Bellini.

Cellist Daniel Shafran will perform at Ambassador Auditorium here Thursday, Jan. 27 at 8:30 p.m. His Ambassador appearance is part of his third U.S. tour — and the first in 11 years. He has also performed throughout Europe, South America, in Japan and Australia.

Accompanying Shafran on this tour is the distinguished Soviet pianist Anton Ginzburg, first prize winner of the 1957 Smetana Competition and, since then, a busy soloist and ensemble performer.

Shafran and Ginzburg will perform Brahms' E minor Sonata, Schubert's Arpeggione Sonata and Shostakovich's Sonata for Viola transcribed for cello by Shafran. The latter, the composer's final work before his death, will be receiving its west coast premiere.

BALLET CASTING

LOS ANGELES — Principal casting for the 23-performance Los Angeles engagement of the American Ballet Theater in the Music Center's Pavilion Feb. 7-27 is announced by directors Lucia Chase and Oliver Smith.

All casting is subject to change. Box office opens Monday. On opening night, Feb. 7, the company will dance "La Bayadere" with Gelsey Kirkland and Ivan Nagy; the West Coast before-New York premiere of "Voluntaries" with Cynthia Gregory, Charles Ward, Martine van Hamel, Clark Tippet and Richard Shafer; a pas de deux with Yoko Morishita (debut here) and Fernando Bujones; and "Push Comes to Shove" with Kirk Peterson, van Hamel, Marianna Tcherkassky and Tippet.

For Tuesday, Feb. 8, the bill will be the full-length "Swan Lake" with van Hamel and Tippet. The Tchaikovsky work repeats at the matinee and evening, Feb. 9, with Eleanor D'Antuono and Bujones at the matinee, and Gregory and Nagy in the evening.

On Feb. 11, "La Bayadere" repeats with Gregory and Ward; "Voluntaries" with Natalia Makarova, Tippet, Leslie Browne, Michael Owen and Shafer; a pas de deux by Kirkland and Nagy; and "Push Comes to Shove" with the same cast as above.

The same bill repeats at the matinee and evening, Feb. 12. At the matinee for "Bayadere," Tcherkassky and Nagy; for "Voluntaries," van Hamel, Tippet, Browne, Owen and Shafer; pas de deux, Kirkland and Ward; and the cast above for "Push Comes to Shove."

At the evening performance, the casts are respectively, Makarova and Nagy; Makarova, Tippet, Browne, Owen and Shafer; D'Antuono and Bujones; and the same cast as above for "Push."

Miss Morishita and Bujones conclude the first week with a performance of "Swan Lake" on Feb. 13.

On Monday, Feb. 14, ABT dances the West Coast premiere of "The Sleeping Beauty," supervised by Robert Helpmann after the 1949 Sadlers Wells triumph. The entire second week of the engagement is devoted to this new production, and for Feb. 14, the principals are Makarova, Nagy and Marcos Paredes; on Feb. 15, they are, at the matinee, van Hamel, Tippet and Paredes; and Gregory, Ward and Paredes that evening. For Feb. 16, D'Antuono, Bujones and Paredes; for Feb. 19, at the matinee, Gregory, Ward and Paredes; and that evening, Makarova, Nagy and Paredes. For Feb. 20, van Hamel, Tippet and Paredes.

Two premieres begin the third week of the run, Feb. 21: ABT's U.S. premiere of "The Firebird" with Makarova and Nagy, and the West Coast ABT premiere of "Le Sacre du Printemps" with Ferenc Barbay (debut here), van Hamel and Tippet. Also programmed is "Petrouchka" with Erik Bruhn, D'Antuono and Ted Kivitt.

For the matinee of Feb. 22, "Petrouchka" will be danced by Prinz, Karena Brock and Paredes. "The Leaves Are Fading" by Kristine Elliott and Ward, and "Billy the Kid" with Terry Orr and Tcherkassky. That evening, "Les Sylphides" will be danced by D'Antuono, Hilda Morales, Brock and Nagy; a pas de deux by Tcherkassky and Bujones; "Pillar of Fire" by Sallie Wilson, Gayle Young and Paredes, and "Le Sacre du Printemps" by Peterson, van Hamel and Tippet.

An all-Fokine festival bill will be danced at the matinee of Feb. 23 with Bruhn, D'Antuono and Young dancing in "Petrouchka," Tcherkassky, Elliott, Brock and Bujones in "Les Sylphides," and Gregory and Kivitt in "Firebird." That evening, "The Leaves Are Fading" will be danced by Elliott and Nagy; a pas de deux by van Hamel and Tippet, "Pillar of Fire" by Wilson, Young and Paredes, and "Le Sacre du Printemps" by Barbay, van Hamel and Tippet.

At the matinee of Feb. 26, "Billy the Kid" will be danced with Orr and Brock; "Jardin aux Lilas" by Morales, Prinz, Marie Johansson and Young; and "Firebird" by van Hamel and Tippet. That evening, "Les Sylphides" will be danced by Brock, Nanette Glushak, Menendez and Ward; a pas de deux by Makarova and Bujones, "Jardin aux Lilas" by Browne (debut in the role), George de la Pena, Glushak and Young; and "Firebird" by Makarova and Nagy.

The final performance of the season begins at 9 p.m. on Feb. 27, and it will contain "La Bayadere" with Makarova and Nagy; "Voluntaries" with Gregory Ward, van Hamel, Tippet and Shafer, and "Le Sacre du Printemps" with Barbay, Makarova and Tippet.

Performances begin promptly at 8:30 (except Feb. 27) and matinees at 2:30 p.m.

Take 100 teenagers, give them 25 vats of spaghetti and meatballs, then turn the mischievous kids loose in a spotless high school cafeteria. The result - a cafeteria that is no longer spotless and an epic food fight wilder than anything seen on screen since the pie-throwing days of Mack Sennett.

As the enthusiastic students bombarded each other with fistfuls of pasta and drenched the wall, floors, tables and windows with globs of tomato sauce, the cameras were rolling to record the slapstick shambles for Monarch Releasing Corporation's new comedy, "Revenge of the Cheerleaders."

A youthfully madcap farce opening throughout the country this Spring, "Revenge" is set in Aloha High, a permissive California school where the students are in charge, breaking the rules, ignoring their teachers, infuriating their parents...and having the time of their lives! At Aloha High there's dancing in the halls, chaos in the classrooms, boys in the girls' locker room, girls in the boys' locker room.

Bonded Larceny

Your next door neighbors are nice people, no doubt; but how long would you think so if the government decreed that, henceforth, a certain amount would be deducted from your family's monthly income and added to that of your neighbors?

Absurd? Well maybe. But before you discount the possibility entirely give a thought to a situation created by federal intervention in the New York City bond market. Here are the sordid details as reported in a recent edition of the Wall Street Journal:

Back in 1950, New York City built eight housing projects funded with $67 million worth of its Housing Authority bonds. The bonds, backed by the city's taxing power, were snapped up by buyers all across the country. Being tax exempt and with that kind of a guarantee, they were considered excellent buys.

Then, along came the Big Apple's recently disclosed financial difficulties. Having spent in excess of its income for years, New York City was exposed to the world as tottering on the brink of bankruptcy. And that, pointed out the Wall Street Journal, caused the New York City Housing Authority bonds, "to trade at a very depressed price of about 30 cents on the dollar."

In other words, potential buyers, doubting the city's ability to stand behind its guarantee of the bonds, were no longer so eagerly buying. And holders of the bonds, caught with investments steadily falling in trading value, couldn't unload them except at a loss.

Or so nearly everyone surmised.

The exceptions being Stoeber, Glass and Company, a New York bond firm, and Mudge, Rose Guthrie and Alexander a Wall Street law firm prominent in bond matters. The staffs of these two firms thought they recalled that the eight housing projects concerned had been made a part of a federal subsidy program several years ago. And, as it turned out, they were right.

The projects were converted to a federally subsidized status between 1968 and 1972. And, in a letter Joseph Burs- teon, HUD assistant general counsel, confirmed that the Federal government was, indeed, "obligated to pay to the New York City Housing Authority annual contributions in amounts sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the bonds when due."

In other words, the bonds were not only backed by the now near defunct New York City government, but by the taxing power of the Federal government, as well.

Which, of course, put a different face on the bond matter and their value to potential buyers. Just how different was pointed up by the Journal when it concluded: "Obviously, U.S. backing would result in an immediate price jump on the city's bonds that would create millions of dollars in paper profit to their holders."

So, if your neighbor happens to be holding any of those New York City bonds, and you are a federal taxpayer (who isn't?), your neighbor does, indeed, have his hand in your pocket. His gain, your loss — by courtesy of the Federal government.

India's Atomic Plan

The government of the United States and India are heading toward a showdown over disposal of spent fuel from nuclear power plants. This could be a test of whether proliferation in nuclear weapons technology can be curbed.

The U.S. is refusing to supply more enriched uranium for an Indian power reactor unless the Indians return all of the spent fuel from uranium we have supplied previously. In reprocessing its own fuel elements to obtain plutonium for an explosive device tested in 1974, India went back on a commitment not to use imported nuclear materials for weapons purposes.

The United States has guarded its own nuclear reprocessing technology to avoid the kind of proliferation in weapons which the case of India represents. However, until recently we have failed to play a role in discouraging other countries from developing their own technology or acquiring it from other sources. Pressure from the United States may keep France and West Germany from exporting reprocessing facilities.

India is complaining that failure of the United States to deliver enriched uranium could mean a heavy financial loss on a nuclear power plant waiting to use it. Perhaps that — a consequence the Indians should have considered when they first decided on a secret program to develop atomic explosives.

Illiterate Graduates

As a veteran of 13 years in schools, about to make my move out into the world of jobs and responsibilities, I personally think I can handle it, but then, I can read.

One of the requirements for graduation is a reading level of 8th grade or a class in remedial reading. I find this totally ridiculous. A reading level of 8th grade isn't going to get you anywhere in school or in the job market.

For example, taking a pre-employment exam at one of the larger department stores. I was asked a question by a fellow test-taker, not an answer to a test question: she didn't understand the wording of the question! This person was a 19-year-old high school graduate. I also find that I am constantly asked questions in my school classes, not about the work, but by people who don't understand what is written in the books. They don't understand all those big words.

As for remedial reading classes, I have worked in one as a student aide for almost three years and a person could go through one and come out the same level he went in. Instead of an 18-year-old reading like a 14-year-old, why don't they read at their age level? Instead of using a system of under-achievement, why not bring students up to par?

It's time schools stopped letting students get by with a minimum and started expecting a maximum. You get what you deserve and I think the school system is going to start getting theirs — a generation of under-educated people. It's time for the school boards to open their eyes and see the truth which faces them everyday in the form of hundreds of illiterate and incomplete job applications. If this letter doesn't get printed, that's okay. Most of my contemporaries probably couldn't read it anyway and the people who should read it, the school boards, probably won't.

Kudos To Paramedics

On the evening of Dec. 28 my wife was stricken by an attack that was symptomatic of a heart attack. Her pulse was extremely rapid and irregular.

When the attack did not subside after a few minutes, I called the Laguna Hills Fire and Rescue Department for assistance. Within minutes a unit arrived and within seconds they diagnosed her condition, started treatment, linked communications with Mission Community Hospital and arranged for ambulance transportation.

I was awed by the professionalism of the entire unit. They were obviously well trained, confident, dedicated men. Thanks, in large part to their efforts, my wife's attack was stopped shortly after arriving at Mission Community, where another very professional team took over.

Although I do not have the names of the men that assisted, I hope that you will relay my sincere appreciation for their efforts and my heartfelt congratulations for an obviously proficient and dedicated department.

We, the citizens of Saddleback Valley, should be proud and grateful to be served by such a group of fine men.

Last Chance

The British Empire has followed the Roman Empire into self-destruction from within, and in pretty much the same way.

Exchequer Denis Healey has announced the final series of restraints, controls and sacrifice in order to qualify for a $4 billion loan from the International Monetary Fund. Inability to make repayment will be England's last chance for survival.

This glaring example of the failure of socialism and the welfare state should be adequate warning to the United States and others that state control of business and industry will not work under a democratic form of government.

Uncle Sam must change his course before it is too late. We are already following England's bad example and are well down the road to bankruptcy through inflation, deficit spending, no win wars, bad management, poor estimates and disastrous decisions. Who will make a loan to Uncle Sam when he goes broke?

Black Hat Boys

A condemnation procedure is going on against a woman, 81, in Costa Mesa. Costa Mesa apparently wants to make a super complex out of the area her property is on.

Progress is a necessary thing, of which Costa Mesa has done much in the last 20 years, to the point it has lost its beauty and charm!

Mrs. Ruth Swope and her deceased husband were among the first citizens of Costa Mesa. Why, at 81 years of age, and 61 years in Costa Mesa should she be deprived of her property?

Not only is she 81 years old, she is also raising a 12 year-old child who is her great, great, great niece. Much of what the child needs in support and care comes from the income Mrs. Swope receives from her property. Although Costa Mesa will pay her for this property, why must she and the child have to lose the only home they've known for most of their lives?

The Mayor of Costa Mesa and others on the city council owe her some loyalty. They were able to depend on her support to obtain their ambitions and positions, specifically, Mr. Racine and Mr. Pinkley.

Sick Headline

We feel your headline re G.M. Gilmore execution was tasteless, unnecessary, and as sick as the execution itself. Our eight year old son reads too. We are adults and are capable of reading further if sadism is attractive to us. But, mercy on our children!

We had subscribed to your paper wanting news, not sensationalism. This places you on our "garbage out" list.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

No Statehood For P R

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Former President Ford's surprise Puerto Rico statehood proposal is as dead as the proverbial dodo.

In fact, it died aborning. Neither the Carter administration nor congressional leaders intend to do anything about pressing the matter. Their attitude is succinctly summed up by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Interior Committee which handles statehood legislation:

"If Puerto Ricans want statehood, they'll ask for it. Until then, there is no occasion to do anything."

The likelihood of their doing anything in the foreseeable future is nil.

That is — other than seeking more large-scale grants which currently total some $200 million a year for welfare, education, housing and pensions.

Sixty per cent of Puerto Rican families now get food stamps.

Real significance of this massive aid is underscored by the fact that Puerto Rico, a self-governing commonwealth, is exempt from the U.S. income tax.

Puerto Ricans pay local taxes determined by their own legislature, but no U.S. taxes — although benefiting extensively from U.S. relief funds without contributing a cent to them.

Still Unsatisfied

But despite that, to hear Baltazar Corrado, new Resident Commissioner, indignantly tell it, Puerto Rico is being "discriminated against."

He's demanding inclusion in the supplemental security income (SSI) program.

Established in 1972 as part of the Social Security system, SSI replaced the old-age assistance program and aid to the blind and totally disabled. Puerto Rico was excluded from this legislation; instead, its aged, blind and disabled continued under the welfare provisions with an additional $24 million in income maintenance on a 50-50 matching basis.

Corrado vehemently wants that exception repealed on the intriguing ground that it is "discriminatory."

Just why he doesn't explain, unless the following is a justification:

"Puerto Rico faces a 20 per cent unemployment rate, and has been subjected to an unprecedented hike in the cost of living. It is just and appropriate that past injustices be rectified."

The first thing the insular politico did on taking his nonvoting seat in the House was to introduce a bill to include Puerto Rico in the SSI program. Co-sponsors of the measure are Reps. Philip Burton, San Francisco radical who came a cropper in his ambitious blitz for Democratic Floor Leader; Herman Badillo, born and educated in Puerto Rico and an all-but-announced candidate for mayor of New York; "Pete" Stark, Oakland, Calif., leftist who passes up few chances to promote himself personally and politically.

Needless to say that in Corrado's thunderous statement accompanying his bill there was no mention that Puerto Ricans pay no U.S. taxes, while U.S. taxpayers are providing them with around $200 million a year in welfare and other benefits.

Yes...But

However, Corrado did expound on statehood.

He's for it — but! Says the new Resident Commissioner:

"I am a statehooder with conditions, and a Puerto Rican without conditions. I will not give up Spanish for statehood. I am flatly against any attempt to impose statehood from outside. Any initiative for statehood should originate in Puerto Rico."

That's the whole story why former President Ford's sudden statehood proposal is as dead as a dodo.

Also why Corrado's haughty demand for SSI benefits is virtually certain to get nowhere. He himself seems to be doing his utmost to make sure of that by arguing that "while federal benefits have been increasing over the years, those in Puerto Rico have remained more or less the same."

Even Corrado concedes there is no likelihood of another plebiscite on statehood until at least 1980.

The last one, in 1967, went overwhelmingly against statehood — with 60 per cent opposed, 39 per cent for, and less than 1 per cent for independence.

The New Progressive Party, which carried the island last November, is nominally for statehood, but carefully doing nothing about it — least of all a plebiscite. Vaguely, 1980 is mentioned as a possible date, and left at that.

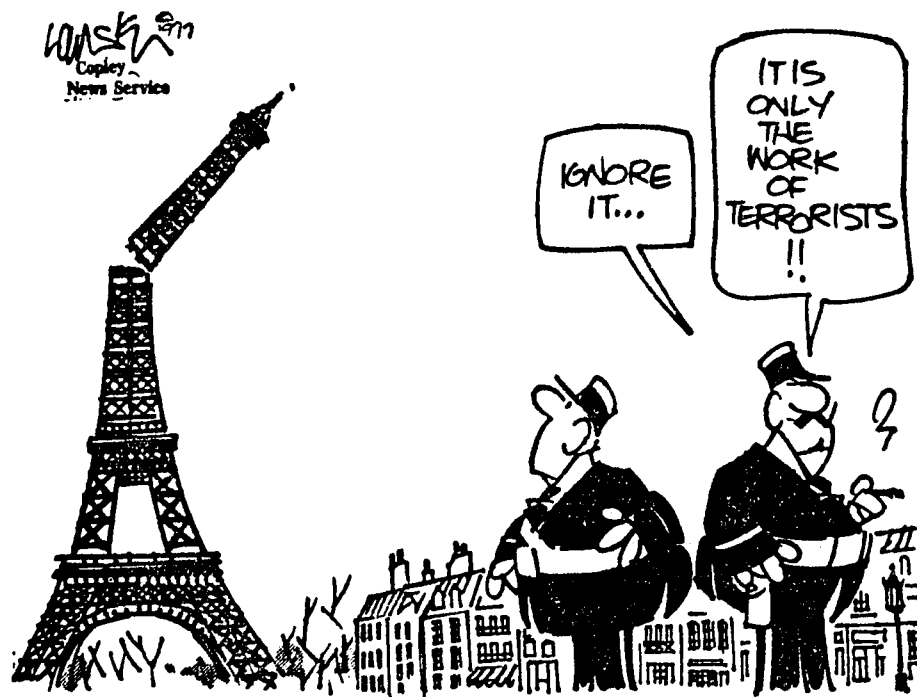

Getting Set

There will be far-reaching farm legislation this year, and the stage is already being set for that.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., chairman of the Subcommittee on Agriculture Legislation, is calling hearings on a measure to increase appreciably federal support payments. He contends that's necessary because of a $3.2 billion decline in such aid between 1972 and 1976.

"In 1972, support payments amounted to $3.7 billion," says the tall, forceful Alabamian. "Last year they sank to $14 million. This drastic drop demonstrates that the Department of Agriculture has done a pretty good job of achieving its goal of taking government out of farming. The economy of our country is dependent upon the success of our farmers, and Congress must do every thing necessary to assure that."

It's a safe bet it will if Allen has his way.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1977. There are 341 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1848, a gold nugget was found in California at a sawmill being built for John Sutter near Coloma in the Sierras. The discovery touched off the California gold rush.

On this date —

In 1830, the city of Venice was declared a free port.

In 1915, the British defeated the Germans in a World War I sea battle off Dogger Bank in the North Sea.

In 1924, Petrograd was renamed Leningrad in honor of the founder of the Soviet Union.

In 1945, in World War II, Soviet soldiers crossed the Oder River, reaching German soil for the first time.

In 1949, the U.S. Air Force organized Operation Haylift to try to save millions of cattle and sheep isolated by heavy snow on the Great Plains.

In 1965, Sir Winston Churchill died at his home in London at the age of 90.

Ten years ago: Premier Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam ran into a wild anti-war demonstration on a visit to New Zealand.

Five years ago: Israeli planes strafed inside Syria as students rioted in Cairo demanding immediate war with Israel.

One year ago: The United States and Spain signed a five-year Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation, increasing Spain's status in the Western defense community.

Today's birthday: U.S. Ambassador to West Germany Walter Stoessel Jr. is 57.

Thought for today: "We shape our buildings; thereafter they shape us." — Sir Winston Churchill.

By DAVID BRUDNOY

Nine hundred pages and untold hours of preparation by what passes for a School Department in Boston, and we learn conclusively what many have said all along: court-ordered "desegregation" has failed to improve the quality of education in the Boston public schools. And since every problem is soluble with ever larger infusions of money, the report's authors, educationalists all, insist that extra funds are required to cope with the problems brought about by Federal Judge W. Arthur Garrity's endless series of orders.

The report makes for gory reading: we have students carrying "portfolios of fear and racial prejudice," students who "do not talk across racial lines in the classroom, nearly half of Boston's school kids testing below national average in reading, two-thirds of the Negro children thus deficient and one-third of the white kids in the same boat. Add to the reading deficiencies similar, if not worse, deficiencies in math skills, throw in the 20,000 or so white pupils who have fled from the Boston public school system during the nearly three years of the Garrity reign of terror, add in millions upon millions of new tax dollars needed to pay for police guards and other accessories to the nonsense, all making up a bloated school budget for a greatly decreased school population, and you have:

Failure. Abysmal, manifest, certifiable failure.

Why did Judge Garrity undertake, in 1974, his massive campaign of social engineering? Because, the gentleman found, there had been a deliberate pattern of segregation in the schools fostered by School Committee policy over the last several years.

Let us grant part of that: wiser heads, or at least wiser ideas from those same elected heads, could have acted more cleverly to help ease Boston into integration. Let us acknowledge this one truth in the judge's decision: the "leaders" led poorly. But not necessarily evilly. Ignorance and resistance to change typify politicians, as they do everyone else now and again.

But from that initial finding has come years of additional misery, sponsored, however unintentionally, by Mr. Garrity as well as by those who have resolved never to succumb to his rulings, as well as by those who gloat because of those rulings and have determined to make white Boston crawl.

The report is a testimony to failure, and it should get nationwide exposure. Consider the catastrophe on the most basic level, the number of schools reported as predominantly black prior to desegregation and now. Sixty-five schools were so considered before 1974; and now? Now there are 119 schools predominantly black. That's "desegregation."

Throw in tens of millions of dollars, "magnet" schools, "experts" by the bushelful; run half of Boston's kids around in circles from one school to another, in fruitless search for a place that would remain stable enough to be "desegregated"; and wind up with white flight on a grand scale, intra-

Bonded Larceny

Your next door neighbors are nice people, no doubt; but how long would you think so if the government decreed that, henceforth, a certain amount would be deducted from your family's monthly income and added to that of your neighbors?

Absurd? Well maybe. But before you discount the possibility entirely give a thought to a situation created by federal intervention in the New York City bond market. Here are the sordid details as reported in a recent edition of the Wall Street Journal:

Back in 1950, New York City built eight housing projects funded with $67 million worth of its Housing Authority bonds. The bonds, backed by the city's taxing power, were snapped up by buyers all across the country. Being tax exempt and with that kind of a guarantee, they were considered excellent buys.

Then, along came the Big Apple's recently disclosed financial difficulties. Having spent in excess of its income for years, New York City was exposed to the world as tottering on the brink of bankruptcy. And that, pointed out the Wall Street Journal, caused the New York City Housing Authority bonds, "to trade at a very depressed price of about 30 cents on the dollar."

In other words, potential buyers, doubting the city's ability to stand behind its guarantee of the bonds, were no longer so eagerly buying. And holders of the bonds, caught with investments steadily falling in trading value, couldn't unload them except at a loss.

Or so nearly everyone surmised.

The exceptions being Stoeve, Glass and Company, a New York bond firm, and Mudge, Rose Guthrie and Alexander, a Wall Street law firm prominent in bond matters. The staffs of these two firms thought they recalled that the eight housing projects concerned had been made a part of a federal subsidy program several years ago. And, as it turned out, they were right.

The projects were converted to a federally subsidized status between 1968 and 1972. And, in a letter Joseph Burstein, HUD assistant general counsel, confirmed that the Federal government was, indeed, "obligated to pay to the New York City Housing Authority annual contributions in amounts sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the bonds when due."

In other words, the bonds were not only backed by the now near defunct New York City government, but by the taxing power of the Federal government, as well.

Which, of course, put a different face on the bond matter and their value to potential buyers. Just how different was pointed up by the Journal when it concluded: "Obviously, U.S. backing would result in an immediate price jump on the city's bonds that would create millions of dollars in paper profit to their holders."

So, if your neighbor happens to be holding any of those New York City bonds, and you are a federal taxpayer (who isn't?), your neighbor does, indeed, have his hand in your pocket. His gain, your loss — by courtesy of the Federal government.

India's Atomic Plan

The government of the United States and India are heading toward a showdown over disposal of spent fuel from nuclear power plants. This could be a test of whether proliferation in nuclear weapons technology can be curbed.

The U.S. is refusing to supply more enriched uranium for an Indian power reactor unless the Indians return all of the spent fuel from uranium we have supplied previously. In reprocessing its own fuel elements to obtain plutonium for an explosive device tested in 1974, India went back on a commitment not to use imported nuclear materials for weapons purposes.

The United States has guarded its own nuclear reprocessing technology to avoid the kind of proliferation in weapons which the case of India represents. However, until recently we have failed to play a role in discouraging other countries from developing their own technology or acquiring it from other sources. Pressure from the United States may keep France and West Germany from exporting reprocessing facilities.

India is complaining that failure of the United States to deliver enriched uranium could mean a heavy financial loss on a nuclear power plant waiting to use it. Perhaps that's a consequence the Indians should have considered when they first decided on a secret program to develop atomic explosives.

Illiterate Graduates

As a veteran of 13 years in schools, about to make my move out into the world of jobs and responsibilities, I personally think I can handle it, but then, I can read.

One of the requirements for graduation is a reading level of 8th grade or a class in remedial reading. I find this totally ridiculous. A reading level of 8th grade isn't going to get you anywhere in school or in the job market.

For example, taking a pre-employment exam at one of the larger department stores, I was asked a question by a fellow test-taker, not an answer to a test question: she didn't understand the wording of the question! This person was a 19-year-old high school graduate. I also find that I am constantly asked questions in my school classes, not about the work, but by people who don't understand what is written in the books. They don't understand all those big words.

As for remedial reading classes, I have worked in one as a student aide for almost three years and a person could go through one and come out the same level he went in. Instead of an 18-year-old reading like a 14-year-old, why don't they read at their age level? Instead of using a system of under-achievement, why not bring students up to par?

It's time schools stopped letting students get by with a minimum and started expecting a maximum. You get what you deserve and I think the school system is going to start getting theirs — a generation of under-educated people. It's time for the school boards to open their eyes and see the truth which faces them everyday in the form of hundreds of illiterate and incomplete job applications. If this letter doesn't get printed, that's okay. Most of my contemporaries probably couldn't read it anyway and the people who should read it, the school boards, probably won't.

When the attack did not subside after a few minutes, I called the Laguna Hills Fire and Rescue Department for assistance. Within minutes a unit arrived and within seconds they diagnosed her condition, started treatment, linked communications with Mission Community Hospital and arranged for ambulance transportation.

I was awed by the professionalism of the entire unit. They were obviously well trained, confident, dedicated men. Thanks, in large part to their efforts, my wife's attack was stopped shortly after arriving at Mission Community, where another very professional team took over.

Although I do not have the names of the men that assisted, I hope that you will relay my sincere appreciation for their efforts and my heartfelt congratulations for an obviously proficient and dedicated department.

We, the citizens of Saddleback Valley, should be proud and grateful to be served by such a group of fine men.

Last Chance

The British Empire has followed the Roman Empire into self-destruction from within, and in pretty much the same way.

Exchequer Denis Healey has announced the final series of restraints, controls and sacrifice in order to qualify for a $4 billion loan from the International Monetary Fund. Inability to make repayment will be England's last chance for survival.

This glaring example of the failure of socialism and the welfare state should be adequate warning to the United States and others that state control of business and industry will not work under a democratic form of government.

Uncle Sam must change his course before it is too late. We are already following England's bad example and are well down the road to bankruptcy through inflation, deficit spending, no win wars, bad management, poor estimates and disastrous decisions. Who will make a loan to Uncle Sam when he goes broke?

Black Hat Boys

A condemnation procedure is going on against a woman, 81, in Costa Mesa. Costa Mesa apparently wants to make a super complex out of the area her property is on.

Progress is a necessary thing, of which Costa Mesa has done much in the last 20 years, to the point it has lost its beauty and charm!

Mrs. Ruth Swope and her deceased husband were among the first citizens of Costa Mesa. Why, at 81 years of age, and 61 years in Costa Mesa should she be deprived of her property?

Not only is she 81 years old, she is also raising a 12 year-old child who is her great, great, great niece. Much of what the child needs in support and care comes from the income Mrs. Swope receives from her property. Although Costa Mesa will pay her for this property, why must she and the child have to lose the only home they've known for most of their lives?

The Mayor of Costa Mesa and others on the city council owe her some loyalty. They were able to depend on her support to obtain their ambitions and positions, specifically, Mr. Racite and Mr. Pinkley.

No Statehood For P R

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Former President Ford's surprise Puerto Rico statehood proposal is as dead as the proverbial dodo.

In fact, it died aborning. Neither the Carter administration nor congressional leaders intend to do anything about pressing the matter. Their attitude is succinctly summed up by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Interior Committee which handles statehood legislation:

"If Puerto Ricans want statehood, they'll ask for it. Until then, there is no occasion to do anything."

The likelihood of their doing anything in the foreseeable future is nil.

That is — other than seeking more large-scale grants which currently total some $200 million a year for welfare, education, housing and pensions.

Sixty per cent of Puerto Rican families now get food stamps.

Real significance of this massive aid is underscored by the fact that Puerto Rico, a self-governing commonwealth, is exempt from the U.S. income tax.

Puerto Ricans pay local taxes determined by their own legislature, but no U.S. taxes — although benefiting extensively from U.S. relief funds without contributing a cent to them.

Still Unsatisfied
But despite that, to hear Baltazar Corrado, new Resident Commissioner, indignantly tell it, Puerto Rico is being "discriminated against."

He's demanding inclusion in the supplemental security income (SSI) program.

Established in 1972 as part of the Social Security system, SSI replaced the old-age assistance program and aid to the blind and totally disabled. Puerto Rico was excluded from this legislation; instead, its aged, blind and disabled continued under the welfare provisions with an additional $24 million in income maintenance on a 50-50 matching basis.

Corrado vehemently wants that exception repealed on the intriguing ground that it is "discriminatory."

Just why he doesn't explain, unless the following is a justification:

"Puerto Rico faces a 20 per cent unemployment rate, and has been subjected to an unprecedented hike in the cost of living. It is just and appropriate that past injustices be rectified."

The first thing the insular politico did on taking his nonvoting seat in the House was to introduce a bill to include Puerto Rico in the SSI program. Co-sponsors of the measure are Reps. Philip Burton, San Francisco radical who came a cropper in his ambitious blitz for Democratic Floor Leader; Herman Badillo, born and educated in Puerto Rico and an all-but-announced candidate for mayor of New York; "Pete" Stark, Oakland, Calif., leftist who passes up few chances to promote himself personally and politically.

Needless to say that in Corrado's thunderous statement accompanying his bill there was no mention that Puerto Ricans pay no U.S. taxes, while U.S. taxpayers are providing them with around $200 million a year in welfare and other benefits.

Yes...But
However, Corrado did expound on statehood.

He's for it — but! Says the new Resident Commissioner:

"I am a statehooder with conditions, and a Puerto Rican without conditions. I will not give up Spanish for statehood. I am flatly against any attempt to impose statehood from outside. Any initiative for statehood should originate in Puerto Rico."

That's the whole story why former President Ford's sudden statehood proposal is as dead as a dodo.

Also why Corrado's haughty demand for SSI benefits is virtually certain to get nowhere. He himself seems to be doing his utmost to make sure of that by arguing that "while federal benefits have been increasing over the years, those in Puerto Rico have remained more or less the same."

Even Corrado concedes there is no likelihood of another plebiscite on statehood until at least 1980.

The last one, in 1967, went overwhelmingly against statehood — with 60 per cent opposed, 39 per cent for, and less than 1 per cent for independence.

The New Progressive Party, which carried the island last November, is nominally for statehood, but carefully doing nothing about it — least of all a plebiscite. Vaguely, 1980 is mentioned as a possible date, and left at that.

Getting Set

There will be far-reaching farm legislation this year, and the stage is already being set for that.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., chairman of the Subcommittee on Agriculture Legislation, is calling hearings on a measure to increase appreciably federal support payments. He contends that's necessary because of a $3.2 billion decline in such aid between 1972 and 1976.

"In 1972, support payments amounted to $3.7 billion," says the tall, forceful Alabamian. "Last year they sank to $514 million. This drastic drop demonstrates that the Department of Agriculture has done a pretty good job of achieving its goal of taking government out of farming. The economy of our country is dependent upon the success of our farmers, and Congress must do every thing necessary to assure that."

It's a safe bet it will if Allen has his way.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1977. There are 341 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1848, a gold nugget was found in California at a sawmill being built for John Sutter near Coloma in the Sierras. The discovery touched off the California gold rush.

On this date —
In 1830, the city of Venice was declared a free port.

In 1915, the British defeated the Germans in a World War I sea battle off Dogger Bank in the North Sea.

In 1924, Petrograd was renamed Leningrad in honor of the founder of the Soviet Union.

In 1945, in World War II, Soviet soldiers crossed the Oder River, reaching German soil for the first time.

In 1949, the U.S. Air Force organized Operation Haylift to try to save millions of cattle and sheep isolated by heavy snow on the Great Plains.

In 1965, Sir Winston Churchill died at his home in London at the age of 90.

Ten years ago: Premier Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam ran into a wild anti-war demonstration on a visit to New Zealand.

Five years ago: Israeli planes strafed inside Syria as students rioted in Cairo demanding immediate war with Israel.

One year ago: The United States and Spain signed a five-year Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation, increasing Spain's status in the Western defense community.

Today's birthday: U.S. Ambassador to West Germany Walter Stoessel Jr. is 57.

Thought for today: "We shape our buildings; thereafter they shape us." — Sir Winston Churchill.

By DAVID BRUDNOY

Nine hundred pages and untold hours of preparation by what passes for a School Department in Boston, and we learn conclusively what many have said all along: court-ordered "desegregation" has failed to improve the quality of education in the Boston public schools. And since every problem is soluble with ever larger infusions of money, the report's authors, educationalists all, insist that extra funds are required to cope with the problems brought about by Federal Judge W. Arthur Garrity's endless series of orders.

The report makes for gory reading: we have students carrying "portfolios of fear and racial prejudice." Students who "do not talk across racial lines in the classroom, nearly half of Boston's school kids testing below national average in reading, two-thirds of the Negro children thus deficient and one-third of the white kids in the same boat. Add to the reading deficiencies similar, if not worse, deficiencies in math skills, throw in the 20,000 or so white pupils who have fled from the Boston public school system during the nearly three years of the Garrity reign of terror, add in millions upon millions of new tax dollars needed to pay for police guards and other accessories to the nonsense, all making up a bloated school budget for a greatly decreased school population, and you have:

Failure. Abysmal, manifest, certifiable failure.

Why did Judge Garrity undertake, in 1974, his massive campaign of social engineering? Because, the gentleman found, there had been a deliberate pattern of segregation in the schools fostered by School Committee policy over the last several years.

Let us grant part of that: wiser heads, or at least wiser ideas from those same elected heads, could have acted more cleverly to help ease Boston into integration. Let us acknowledge this one truth in the judge's decision: the "leaders" led poorly. But not necessarily evilly. Ignorance and resistance to change typify politicians, as they do everyone else now and again.

But from that initial finding has come years of additional misery, sponsored, however unintentionally, by Mr. Garrity as well as by those who have resolved never to succumb to his rulings, as well as by those who gloat because of those rulings and have determined to make white Boston crawl.

The report is a testimony to failure, and it should get nationwide exposure. Consider the catastrophe on the most basic level, the number of schools reported as predominantly black prior to desegregation and now. Sixty-five schools were so considered before 1974; and now? Now there are 119 schools predominantly black. That's "desegregation"?

Throw in tens of millions of dollars, "magnet" schools, "experts" by the bushel-ful; run half of Boston's kids around in circles from one school to another, in fruitless search for a place that would remain stable enough to be "desegregated"; and wind up with white flight on a grand scale, intra-

BRUDNOY'S COMPLAINT

'Desegregate' Now, Fail Later

school hatred along racial lines, and the goddamn bottom line: demonstrable decreases in pupil abilities in the essential skills schools are dreamily thought to teach.

Now comes the rejoinders. From the Wonderland lady who superintends the Boston school system, Marion J. Fahey, we get this: the report is a "needs assessment," meaning a wonderful guideline for what yet remains to be done, what areas will require what amount of millions upon millions of bucks. Miss Fahey puts a brave face on to confront her critics, and demonstrates gargantuan capacity for dissembling to say that "I believe children are getting a much better education now" (than before "desegregation"). She sticks out her hand and demands more money. So what else is new?

NAACP head Thomas Atkins, whose own children are sent to predominantly white schools in the suburbs, races to the TV stations to say that the report doesn't mean that "desegregation" is a flop, only that Boston's "racism" has hurt black kids so badly that it'll take years to catch up. Might there be something genetic (scare word!) in all this? No one in Boston would so much as dare breathe the word. Might there be something counterproductive about forced busing? You won't hear the notion from Miss Fahey or from Mr. Atkins or from Judge Garrity.

But hear it from the people of Boston: they do not want forced busing, they know it's a bust, they said "never!" and they meant it. It's your move, Garrity.

BUDDING NOLAN RYAN - A jubilant Tom Watson celebrated his win Sunday in the Bing Crosby Pro-Am tourney by flipping a golf ball into nearby Pacific Ocean. Watson managed to avoid that hazard and most of the others as he shot a four-day total of 273 to finish one shot ahead of Britisher Tony Jacklin.

(AP Wirephoto)

Jubilant Watson Wins Crosby Despite Bogey

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Jubilant Tom Watson hurled the golf ball into the pounding surf of the Pacific Ocean, gave his wife Linda a resounding kiss, threw back his head and yelled: "Hot damn, I've won the Crosby."

He had indeed. It was shaky down the stretch and finished with a meaningless bogey, but, as Watson noted, "I did it well enough to win."

Blessed with what he called "absolutely perfect weather" for four days, Watson had to break the tournament scoring record by four strokes to turn back the challenge of England's Tony Jacklin and win the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am by a single stroke.

"The Crosby always has been something special to me," said Watson, who recalled he'd drive down from Stanford in the pre-dawn darkness, play the course before anyone else would be out, then wait around and play again when the paying customers had finished.

"This means so much to me," he said. "I haven't even thought about the money. It gets me back in the Tournament of Champions. It helps with Ryder Cup points. And I've won the Crosby. That's really something."

Watson, 28, a leading figure in the cadre of young men rapidly claiming the rich pro golf tour for their own, acquired the fifth title of his career with a final round 71 over the cliffs and crags of the Pebble Beach Golf Links.

He nailed it down with a scrambling par on the 16th hole and a gorgeous shot that almost found the cup on the dangerous par-three 17th that is surrounded on three sides by the pounding surf and caving seals of Carmel Bay.

He bogeyed the tough 18th, hooking his second shot into a bunker by a seawall. It really didn't matter. Jacklin, playing in front of him, had three-putted for a bogey on the same hole moments earlier.

The freckle-faced reedhead, who hadn't won in this country since taking the 1975 World Series of Golf, claimed this prestigious title and a $40,000 first prize with a 273 total, 14 under par and four strokes better than the tournament record Billy Casper shot in 1958.

The tournament, which had former President Ford playing as Arnold Palmer's amateur partner for two days, was blessed with unusually beautiful weather—brilliant sunshine, gentle breezes and mild temperatures, a sharp departure from the howling winds, freezing cold and pounding rains that have made "Crosby weather" a part of golf's lexicon.

Jacklin, a former British and U.S. Open champion, missed putts on each of the last two holes that would have forced a playoff. He had a 10-footer for birdie on the 17th, and missed. He had a threefooter to save par on the 18th, and missed.

The failure to win may have been a disappointment for the handsome young Englishman, but his second-place finish and $22,800 check had to be a major consolation. It marked his best finish and biggest payday in America in five years and solidified his comeback from frustrating mediocrity.

Jacklin also had a closing 71, never had the lead alone, and finished one stroke back at 274.

Lee Elder, who gained international fame as the first black to play in the Masters, occasionally challenged for the lead and finished with a 71-275, only two strokes back. He, too, bogeyed the par 5 18th, like Watson hitting his second into the bunker that perches just on the edge of a cliff that plunges down to golf's largest hazard—the Pacific Ocean.

Young Bill "Buck" Rogers, who had to survive the rigors of the Monday morning qualifying round to gain his spot in the tournament, closed with a 71 and was fourth alone at 277, matching the old tournament scoring record.

Grouped at 278 were Australian veteran Bruce Devlin, Leonard Regalado, Mexican Victor Thomas, Hubert Green and rookie Craig Stadler. Stadler and Green had five-under-par 67s, Green 69, Devlin 70 and Regalado 73.

First Nicklaus, making his first start of the season, never really got in the title chase. He opened the day's play six shots back, could do no better than a 73 and finished at 281, eight behind.

Watson, a graduate of nearby Stanford who said this was "like playing in my back yard," played steadily over the first 13 holes. He reached the par 5 second in two and two putted for birdie. He birdied the sixth after coming out of the sand to two feet. And he holed a 10-footer on the 10th.

"Knowing Tony already had made bogey there kind of gave me some breathing room," he said.

White Returns To Spark USC

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - The University of Southern California, led by forwards Paul Henderson with 24 and Greg White, returning from an injury, with 22, took a 106-65 victory over Denver University Sunday in a nonconference clash which ended a losing streak.

It was one of the most lopsided defeats in Denver history, and one of the biggest margins of victory ever for Southern Cal, which ended its losing streak at five games.

In all, four Trojans scored in double figures at the game in the Forum. Henderson also led both teams with 18 rebounds.

"It was an absolute must win for us," said Boyd. "It was a good starting point for this Friday's UCLA game."

"This was a good return for Greg White," he added. "He got some playing time and had a good effect on the game." White had missed the six previous games with a stress fracture of the left foot.

The Pioneers, coached by Al Hardin, are now 8-10 on the season, while Boyd's team improved its record to 4-12.

Southern Cal still has a 19-game losing trend in the Pacific-8 over three seasons.

Denver (65): Mitchell 1 0-2, Harris 1 0-0, Manley 1 0-0, Cribari 2 2-2, Hunt 2 0-0, Siles 1 0-0, Ranson 5 3-3, Swilley 5 1-1, Hovey 4 1-2, Heaton 4 6-7, Totals 26 13-15 65.

USC (106): Henderson 24 6-12, Brigham 1 6-0, Hornington 1 0-0, Carling 3 2-3, Jones 3 3-5, Arnold 1 0-0, Safford 9 0-1, McCloskey 2 8-12, Greer 0 1-1, White 10 2-2, Wadleigh 3 0-6, Totals 42 22-29 106.

Halftime USC 43, Denver 32. Fouled out: Harris, Heaton. Technicals: none.

...But 'Wulfe' Quits Team

Sophomore Mark Wulfmeyer, a high school sensation but a reserve guard for the University of Southern California, is quitting the Trojan basketball team to pursue his professional baseball career with the California Angels, the school said Sunday.

points in 97 games and four varsity seasons at Troy High School in Fullerton, with a career average of 27.5 points.

In his senior year, he was named California Interscholastic Federation 4-A player of the Year and was selected to every prep All American team.

Trojan Coach Bob Boyd said Wulfmeyer told him that he felt frustrated about not playing enough.

Wulfmeyer signed a baseball contract as a pitcher with the Angels in 1974 and has been playing every summer with the Angels' Salinas farm team.

Lakers Take Over First

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Kareem Abdul-Jabbar rarely becomes excited. Especially after games. He speaks with calm reserve most times, so his enthusiasm after Sunday night's game was all the more surprising.

"I'm excited," said the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar, still calm. "This is the first time I've been in first place since April 1974, when I was with Milwaukee."

Jabbar was one of only a handful of key factors that gave the Los Angeles Lakers a 121-104 National Basketball Association victory over Indiana's Pacers, a triumph which put the Lakers into the Pacific Division lead.

SPORTS

Tatum, a guard, scored 20 points and Kupec, a center, added 13 as the Lakers went by Portland by mere percentage points into the division lead. It was enough, however, to thrill almost all the Lakers.

"It feels great to be in first place," said Coach Jerry West. "The second team picked us up again tonight, with players coming off the bench. That doesn't really surprise me because they play together in practice every day."

Abdul-Jabbar pumped in 25 points and grabbed 14 rebounds as the Lakers raised their record to 29-15. Portland, 12-23, lost 104-121.

Indiana was led by Billy Knight, who scored 29 points, and Wil Jones and Mike Flynn, who scored 16 each. Knight hit his first eight shots and finished the first half with 19 points.

Abdul-Jabbar did not play at all in the second period after picking up three quick fouls. But Kupec, a second-year man from Michigan, replaced him and filled in with his best game of the season.

Abdul-Jabbar played 16 minutes in the second half and scored 17 points.

Indiana (104): Hillman 4 4-12, Jones 8 0-0, Robisch 6 1-2, Buse 3 1-1, Knight 12 5-29, Elmore 2 2-2, Green 1 0-0, Bennett 1 1-2, Flynn 4 4-6, Totals 43 18-24 104.

Palomino Just Starting

By ART PARRA

"I feel my career actually began right here tonight, and I am sorry it could be the end of Mando's. One thing for sure, we are still going to be good friends...maybe even better."

They were the words of Carlos Palomino as he headed for the showers Saturday night after knocking out Armando Muniz in the 15th round of their WBC welterweight championship fight at the Olympic Auditorium.

And they were unusual words, because Palomino was not the hopeful challenger going up against the champion. On the contrary, it was Palomino, the champ, against a man trying for the third time to gain the welterweight crown.

Still, it was not difficult to decipher what Palomino meant when he alluded to a "beginning" of a career.

Although he has held the title since defeating England's John Stracey last June, in the minds of many fight fans, Palomino had yet to prove himself.

Many aficionados of the sport felt that Palomino, who resides in Westminster, snuck into the ring with help from Muniz.

Their argument revolved around the contention that Palomino had defeated Stracey after Stracey had taken the title from a Jose Napoles who had in turn been badly battered by Muniz in a previous fight.

By administering a "Hollywood script" type beating to Muniz, Palomino erased any lingering doubts as to his ring ability.

Referee John Thomas and judges Dick Young and Frank Raustich all breathed a sigh of relief in the 15th when Palomino applied the "coup de grace" on his longtime friend by knocking him out.

The bout had been so close, an apparent riot was in the making regardless of which of the two fighters would be declared winner. Olympic owner and promoter Alleen Eaton was also relieved as she could envision the old auditorium being taken apart by irate fans.

The fight, billed since last September when the original date had been set as the "Battle of Friends", was a classic. Suspense began mounting almost immediately in the first round.

There wasn't any visible appearance of a friendship between the two as they glared at each other from across the ring. Muniz looked fiercely at his opponent. Palomino returned the stare but his personality wouldn't allow a look of hatred. His eyes seemed to be searching for a kindly smile from the adversary.

Here they were after two postponements, the September date and one in November, ready to prove friends can do battle in the prize ring.

Muniz charged across the canvas at the bell, setting up the first round pace by leaning against the champion and fighting out of the situation with a flurry.

The fight was 2:45 old with Palomino moving to his left, issuing a left hook himself at Muniz. His movement allowed the guard to drop and Muniz caught him with a solid left hook to the chin and Palomino went down on both knees.

The champion looked surprised, getting up and waving off the referee at the count of five. It was a clean knockdown and Palomino found himself in a deep hole if planning on retaining his title.

In the post-fight interview, Palomino said, "The left hook I took in the first round came as a surprise. It really didn't hurt me as much as it might have appeared. I was off balance moving to the left and slipped but it was a solid jolt and I was down legally. Mando hit me several times later in the fight with shots that hurt more but the conditions were different."

During the first five rounds it appeared Muniz was going to make his third bid for the title successful. The fifth round saw Muniz stunning the champion with another flurry of blows. Except for a strong 11th round, it was the last "hoorah" for Muniz.

"Until the sixth round, I was trying to score with single punches," continued Palomino. "Jackie McCoy, his manager, told me I wasn't using my double combination attack and now it was time to get it going. Mando seemed to cooperate with me as much. He didn't come at me as much and I could stand

If someone doesn't do something fast, Santa Ana College, Cypress, Santa Barbara, Palomar and Bakersfield just may be runaway winners in their respective conference basketball races.

All of them are sole owners of first place in their community college conferences and the odds look good that they will remain entrenched at the top unless they fall victim to the upset bug.

Another week of heated action is assured as all conferences launch campaigns to unseat the leaders.

South Coast Conference leading Santa Ana faces two solid tests as the Dons host Grossmont Wednesday night, then travel to Cerritos on Saturday night. Cerritos stung Santa Ana 93-91 in December tournament action, so figures to be doubly tough on the Falcon court.

Southern Cal Conference leader Cypress gets a brief break in the schedule, hosting the Fullerton State JV team

Friday night to fill a bye date. The Chargers completed the first round of conference play with a 6-0 sweep and remain a strong favorite to sweep to the championship.

Palomar, leader of the Mission Conference, gets its stiffest test Wednesday night when the Comets host defending champion Riverside at San Marcos while Saddleback, tied with Riverside for second, entertains Chaffey on the Gaucho court.

Metropolitan Conference leader Bakersfield hosts Los Angeles Valley in a crucial game Tuesday night, and Western State Conference frontrunner Santa Barbara visits Moorpark on Thursday night.

Prep Cage Title Tilts Slated

Had they been given the opportunity to gaze into the future, it is doubtful schedulers of four county prep basketball leagues could have come up with better matchups than those which are on tap Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

The Century, Garden Grove, Orange and South Coast leagues will all close out their first rounds with games matching teams either tied for the top spot or one-two in the standings.

Clubhouse Confidential

Great Enos Slaughter controversy rages. How could he not be elected to Hall of Fame? He batted .300 lifetime to Ernie Banks' .274. Answer: They are of different decades. A man's superiority is measured by how he competes with his contemporaries.

In Country Slaughter's time, there were many great ballplayers. He was good, very good, but he was not stickout. Writers who voted were busily writing down names like Ted Williams, Yogi Berra, George Kell, Jackie Robinson, Warren Spahn, Roy Campanella, Whitey Ford, Joe DiMaggio, Stan Musial, Ted Kluszewski, Early Wynn, Vern Stephens, on their ballots. They would run out of allotted 10 spaces before getting to Enos Slaughter. Enos Banks was a stickout in his era. When it came time to vote on him, baseball writers had no such problems.

One other thing: Slaughter built reputation as hustling player: Pete Rose, belly-whopping baserunner type of time. Some teammates and rivals put rap on it, called it false hustle. Enos probably lost votes that way. Any questions.

1,800 Devaluations - Pick

The stock market continues its erratic behavior - but economists and stock market forecasters remain bullish.

The question of where to deposit excess dollars still remains a problem. Interest rates on savings accounts do not keep step with inflation when the income tax bite is factored in.

The stock market is still a graveyard for some investors. The bond market has been a bright picture for some investors the past year.

Pick's World Currency Report points out that since the end of World War II there have been some 1,800 full and partial devaluations. "By the end of 1976, the American mini-dollar has fallen to an unofficial buying value of slightly less than 10 cents of its one-once-upon-a-time 100-cent purchasing power of 1940," the report stated.

The January 1977 issue of Pick's World Currency Report is based on the results of leading auction markets in the United States, London, Paris, Zurich, Geneva, Monte Carlo, Dusseldorf and Hamburg.

In the field of art, the French Impressionists which had been on top of the 1975 list with an advance of 230 per cent against their 1974 valuation were neglected in favor of the Surrealists, etchings and prints, and drawings and pastels, according to the Pick report.

Leading the list (stock markets or bourses) at the end of 1976 was Tokyo, whose stock exchange average registered a 19 per cent jump despite a sinking economy. Wall Street's famous Dow Jones Industrial Average increased 18 per cent, as Washington strove to make money cheap.

Swiss stock exchanges, dominated by the strong Swiss franc, listed an 11 per cent rise, while Montreal's stock market registered a four per cent gain.

"All other major exchanges were on the downside. Madrid's Bolsa tumbled 32 per cent, as the flight from the peseta intensified. Milan's Borsa skidded 22 per cent, a victim of the decrepit lira. The bourse of Paris, fearful of a socialist takeover, slipped 25 per cent, while Brussels' Marche des Valeurs was off 15 per cent.

"The Amsterdam exchange declined nine per cent. Despite the debacle of the pound sterling, London's stock market was down only seven per cent for the year. The Borse in Dusseldorf eased just six per cent," the report stated.

For graphic representations of these figures and other vehicles considered by some of investments, consult the graph on this page.

Orange County No. 1

Not too many years ago, economists considering California and issuing reports about its economy would lump Orange County into the "greater Los Angeles area."

But this is no longer true. In fact Orange County is selected as the "premier" growth area for California. The latest report eulogizing our state was issued last week by Bank of America.

Its "Economic Outlook-1977" states: "As in previous years, Orange county has one of the most favorable economic prospects of any California County. In 1976, taxable sales, employment, population and residential construction increased solidly.

"The county issued 85 per cent more building permits than it did in 1975; the permits represented 14 to 15 per cent of the state total.

Peso Still Causing Problems

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) - A drop in the value of the Mexican peso last week disrupted commerce all along the Mexican side of the border with the United States.

Mexican bankers and businessmen here expressed hope Friday that the government would soon peg the peso at 20 per dollar.

The government floated the peso last Aug. 31 and it plunged from the pegged rate of 12.5 pesos per dollar to a low of 26.50 late last year. It has recovered some ground since.

In Tijuana, which has suffered badly along with other border towns since the devaluation, the peso dropped from 19.90 to 24.50 per dollar Thursday but slowly came back to 21 at the close of operations Friday.

Many banks stopped selling foreign currency at midday to cover themselves against possible fluctuations because of a two-hour time difference with the rest of Mexico.

In Mexico City, the rate was 20 pesos per dollar.

Francisco Gomez, a branch manager of the Banco Nacional de Mexico, said, "I believe the sudden drop is temporary. As I see it, it was caused probably by heavy purchases by big companies in Mexico City to pay debts or for imports."

He and other Tijuana bankers said they expect the peso to firm at around 20 or 21 to the dollar.

Border business owners have been protecting themselves since the peso was floated by quoting prices in U.S. currency. Even shoeshines, haircuts, hotel rooms and newspapers are priced in American money or its equivalent, according to the day's exchange rate.

Pesos are still used to pay for government services and bus fares.

Hardest hit are wage earners who are paid in pesos. Jorge Batiz Vidrio, vice president of an electronics plant that assembles goods for companies in the United States, said, "These constant changes in the exchange rate are not good for business."

"Take a look at the long faces of my people in the assembly plant," he said. "They are paid in pesos. I get paid in pesos, too. But we all have to pay for our vegetables, meat and bread and tortillas in dollars or dollar equivalents."

His firm is one of the so-called in-bound border plants that receive parts from the United States, assemble them, and then ship the items back across the border.

Benjamin Diaz, local branch manager of the Banco Minero Mercantil, said that for the last two months border firms had set their own rate at 20 pesos per dollar.

"The sudden drop in the peso jars everyone," he said, "but we are sort of used to it by now. What else can we do?"

Buyers Market Has Returned Says PW Mag.

BARRINGTON, Ill. - The buyer's market has returned, says Purchasing World Magazine in its January issue. Not only are prices again open for negotiation, but lead-times and delivery performances continue to improve.

Perhaps the most dramatic change has been in deliveries, the magazine reports. Back in August, some 64 per cent of the nation's purchasing executives were reporting slower deliveries. Today, the figure is under 50 per cent. Purchasing World says.

Some 20 per cent of purchasing managers queried actually were experiencing faster deliveries - more than twice as many as those noting further slowdowns.

Not surprising, forward commitments also are being cut back. Specifically, only 31 per cent of the nation's purchasing managers are ordering 90 days or more ahead - some 2 per cent under the previous month, and considerably below the 38 per cent high of last summer.

Inventory levels also seem to be heading down again, as buyers rely on shorter lead-times to fill in holes. The number of purchasing managers paring inventories, for example, now outnumber those adding to their inhouse stocks of materials and components by almost 3-1.

Purchasing executives responding to Purchasing World's monthly procurement survey cite several factors (excess capacity, sluggish demand, and vendor eagerness to nail down an order) for the new buying climate.

And the majority of respondents see it continuing - at least through early spring.

Bank Clearings Set Record

NEW YORK - Climbing for the third straight week, bank clearings in twenty-six leading centers mounted 11.9 per cent to a new record of $423,209,577,000, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

Up from $378,172,715,000 a week ago, check transactions exceeded their previous peak of $391.8 million set in December and soared 26.2 per cent above their level of $335,298,451,000 in the comparable week of 1976.

New York banks cleared an unprecedented $79,167,788,000 this week, 131 per cent more than last week's $335,123,222,000. Too, check turnover in New York outpaced by 29.1 per cent the year-earlier rate of $293,786,907,000 in the like week.

In the twenty-five centers outside New York, bank clearings edged up 2.3 per cent to $44,041,789,000 from $43,049,493,000 in the previous week and 6.1 per cent from $41,511,634,000 in the previous year.

California's Natural Gas Supply Dropping

By STEPHEN FOX

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It is a grim picture that California's utilities paint. The state's supply of natural gas is dwindling and unless new sources are in place by 1981, homes and small businesses may have their gas shut off. Some industrial users already have been curtailed.

To avert the crisis, California's two largest utilities, Pacific Lighting, parent firm of Southern California Gas Company, and Pacific Gas & Electric in the north, have proposed a number of projects to get more natural gas to the state.

One plan, the Arctic Gas Project, would mean building a pipeline to transport gas from Alaska's North Slope to the lower 48 states. California would get about 30 per cent of the gas, but the pipeline couldn't be built before 1983.

Another project, in northern New Mexico, involves construction of the nation's first coal gasification facility but it too cannot be completed before 1983.

The third and most controversial project seeks to bring large quantities of Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) to California by tanker ship. The proposal means construction of one or more LNG terminals to take the liquid gas out of specially built tankers, store it and re-evaporize it for use by utility customers. Most likely to win first approval is a site at Oxnard which would receive natural gas from Indonesia.

Natural gas is liquefied by chilling it to minus 260 degrees, a point at which 600 cubic feet of gas will condense into one cubic foot of liquid.

When it is re-evaporized, the cold gas at first hangs close to the ground, forming a potentially explosive cloud. The disastrous possibilities of a spill are illustrated by a 1944 tank rupture at the nation's first LNG facility in Cleveland which resulted in a fire that killed 133 persons and injured another 300.

Utilities say that today's LNG tanks are far stronger than the ones in use during the Cleveland holocaust and point out that the terminals planned for California will have high concrete dikes around the tanks. The safety issue is far from settled, however, with a California assemblyman charging that construction standards for LNG facilities are dangerously below those mandated for nuclear power plants, an assertion the utilities deny.

Three sites are being considered for LNG terminals - Oxnard, Pt. Conception and Los Angeles Harbor. Utilities say one must receive final approval this year if it is to be built in time to receive LNG in the winter of 1980-81, when a serious shortage is expected.

Weyerhaeuser To Acquire MLC

TACOMA, Wash. - (BW) - Weyerhaeuser Co. announced it has agreed in principle to acquire Murfreesboro Lumber Co. and Murfreesboro Land & Timber Co., of Murfreesboro, Ark.

The Murfreesboro companies own a lumber mill in Murfreesboro and 35,750 acres of timberland in Southwestern Arkansas.

BRIAN READING

British Economy Improves

By ALVIN NAGELBERG
Chicago Tribune

It appears, at least for the moment, that the British economy has turned around.

Investment money is flooding into the country, stores are swarming with buyers, and the North Sea oil revenues soon will be pouring into the United Kingdom.

Brian Reading is one of those formerly gloomy pessimists who believes that barring an unexpected disaster or a government blunder, the economy will keep improving through 1978. He won't make any predictions beyond then.

Reading reached that conclusion late in 1976, and in the last week there has been ample evidence to prove him right. The Bank of England Friday was finally forced to cut its lending rate from 14 per cent to 13 1/4 per cent to slow down the huge influx of money from investors who apparently have confidence in Britain.

Reading, economics editor for the Economist, a prestigious British news magazine and a former adviser to government officials, estimates the oil wealth will add between $5 billion to $6.8 billion to U.K. balance of payments next year.

That estimate was developed with the government's own forecasting model. Last year, the British government gave the public access to the formulas used in making economic predictions. In cooperation with Scicon Computer Services, Ltd., the Economist plugged in its own guesses about the future.

Reading couldn't believe the first computer readings - they seemed too optimistic. So the Economist plugged in additional pessimistic assumptions. The reading continued to turn out optimistic.

The findings: The inflation rate in 1978 would be about 5 per cent and the economic growth rate would be 4 per cent.

"The sentiment about the economy has swung around from vastly too pessimistic in August to something now approaching euphoric," Reading said.

"The dilemma has shifted from how to cope with money running out of the country to what to do with money running into the country."

Britain now wants to avoid building up huge liquidity similar to the situation when the Arabs put their oil money into the country and then pulled the floor out from under the pound Sterling when they withdrew their funds.

Last week, London bankers said more than $1 billion had poured into Britain's official reserves in the previous four weeks from overseas investors.

The treasury, which in October was desperately trying to keep the pound from plunging below a record low of $1.55, is now trying to keep it from moving too far above $1.71. Anything higher could shave the competitive advantage now enjoyed by Britain in the export markets.

Bankers said factors producing the optimism include the International Monetary Fund (IMF) approval of a $3.9 billion loan, and the slower rate of monetary expansion in Britain. Last week, Britain reported a surplus in its balance of trade - the first since last March.

There was another encouraging sign Friday when the government index for retail prices showed the inflation rate had climbed to an annual rate of 15.1 per cent, from 15 per cent the previous month. It was the lowest monthly increase since last September.

One of the attractions for foreign funds was the high interest rates - 14 per cent for short-term funds and 15 to 15 1/2 per cent for long-term funds.

Four months ago, the Bank of England lending rate was a record 15 per cent.

On Thursday, nearly half the record $2.125 billion 16-year government bond issue was sold out in the first day of the offering. The interest rate was 14.38 per cent.

Until last September, the government had encountered difficulty in funding its estimated $17 billion budget. However, in recent months the issues have been successful. Investors have been encouraged because the government has raised interest rates on long-term debt offerings and has adopted conservative fiscal policies as a condition for obtaining the IMF loan.

One bond dealer estimated that about half of the amount of bonds sold the first day went to overseas accounts.

The theory in the marketplace is that foreign investors are being attracted to government securities, hoping that bond prices will rise as interest rates come down. Thus investors will have locked in a high yield and will obtain a profit as bond prices rise.

The growing awareness of the North Sea oil potential may be responsible for a current "wouldn't-it-be-lovely" rumor. It seems, Reading said, there is interest in the upcoming bidding for oil drilling leases of tracts in the English Channel, 5 to 15 miles offshore.

Although no test wells have been drilled, the rumor holds that geological surveys may indicate the presence of oil in shallow waters.

Reading observed the oil would be easier to obtain than the North Sea operation and would be only 40 to 50 miles from a refinery. "It wouldn't compare to the North Sea oil, but would be a plus," he said.

W-C Lawsuits Date Feb. 2

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Suits against each other by the law firm in which Richard Nixon was a partner and Westgate California Corp. will be tried Feb. 2 in bankruptcy court.

The suits stem from the tangled affairs of businessman C. Arnholt Smith, whose United States National Bank was declared insolvent by the government in 1973.

Smith also was the power behind the Westgate conglomerate, which was forced into bankruptcy by the failure of the bank, its principal source of capital.

Mudge, Rose, Guthrie & Alexander, the New York law firm in which both former President Nixon and former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell were partners, seeks $338,000 in fees from trustees of the bankrupt operation.

The trustees, in turn, have filed a suit seeking $73 million from the law firm, alleging malpractice, negligence, breach of duties and conflict of interest.

The trustees say the law firm simultaneously represented Westgate, United States National Bank, Smith as chief executive of the bank and Philip A. Toft, the then president of Westgate who is charged with Smith with grand larceny and other counts.

The trustees, who have been laboring to keep the Westgate empire afloat, allege the law firm gave priority to interests of the bank to the detriment of Westgate.

BankAmerica Earnings Up

SAN FRANCISCO - (BW) - BankAmerica Corp. reported continued steady growth in earnings for 1976.

Consolidated income before securities transactions for the year amounted to $335.9 million, up 11.4 per cent from $301.7 million for 1975. On a per share basis, earnings were $2.40, up 10.1 per cent from $2.18 for the prior year. (Per share figures have been restated to reflect the two-for-one stock split on Aug. 17, 1976.)

The effect on earnings per share of the October 1976 stock issue of 7 million shares was only slight for the full year of 1976.

Net income including securities transactions for 1976 totaled $336 million, up 11.2 per cent from $302.8 million earned in 1975. This amounted to $2.41 per share, up 10 per cent from $2.19 per share in the prior year.

For the fourth quarter, consolidated income before securities transactions was $93.6 million, representing an increase of 13.1 per cent from $82.8 million in the fourth quarter of 1975.

By SAM CAMPBELL
Register Associate Editor
Quoting a recent survey, Joyce Roberts said only one out of four widows had a thorough knowledge of her husband's life insurance, prior to his death.

According to the same survey, only one of five widows had ever discussed the use of life-insurance proceeds with her husband.

Mrs. Roberts and her associate Marvie Facone, both of the Newport Beach office of Metropolitan Life, are out to change all that. They are conducting classes for women's groups. The subject is "Widowhood."

"When a husband dies, the woman is thrown into a new world of responsibility," Mrs. Roberts said. "More often than not, her responsibilities are unfamiliar. They fall on her when she is likely to be emotionally distraught. The best circumstances possible are none too good."

Before a recent gathering of the Mothers of Twins Club in Fullerton, she and Miss Facone discussed what the insurance agent is suppose to do, what the settlement options are on a typical policy, what Social Security provides, and a little bit on taxes.

"The matter of wills inevitably arises," Mrs. Roberts said. "Our advice there is to see a good lawyer."

Miss Facone added, "The important thing is to keep the will up-to-date. For instance the birth of another child could change the whole picture. The prudent course is to make an annual review."

They point out that many men prefer to buy insurance at their office. The effect is to leave his spouse in the dark.

"We advise women to be involved in all discussions," they said.

They showed a short film depicting how to make funeral arrangements, how to contact the insurance agent, how the death claim is processed, how to obtain copies of death, marriage and birth certificates, how to contact the Social Security office, how to find out about the husband's employee insurance and other probable plans, how to contact creditors and to find out which debts are covered with insurance.

They warned that a safety deposit box is the wrong place to keep papers that have a bearing on death.

The reason is that the state tax agent is quick to lock up safety deposit boxes before the bereaved can retrieve the necessary papers.

Items such as birth certificates, the marriage license and insurance policies are best kept in a fireproof box at home, they cautioned.

The tax agent comes into the picture because death is taxable according to the rules laid down by California Assemblymen and Senators. In general, these rules provide that the estate is divided in half. Twenty per cent of the deceased's half is taxed immediately. The wrinkle is, for tax purposes, the estate includes insurance proceeds as well as bank accounts, the survivor's dwelling place, bank accounts, and personal property such as the family auto, the engagement diamond and other jewelry.

The "Widowhood" lecture mostly is limited to the actual trauma period so the tax angle is mentioned only to let the survivor know what's ahead.

An unbroken line of excellence. Since 1886, Mercedes-Benz has produced one classic automobile after another. Each one a car engineered like no other car in the world.

The automobiles of Mercedes-Benz. The legend continues.

Mercedes-Benz invented the automobile in 1886—and in 1895 produced the first car ever built on a production line.

Over the generations, Mercedes-Benz has perfected one engineering advance after another.

Add to that an auto racing record of over 4,400 individual victories and you have an automotive heritage that's unmatched by any other car in the world.

Now Mercedes-Benz offers seven separate and distinct models for sale in the United States. Each one is unique.

Each one continues, in its own way, the Mercedes-Benz legend.

Above, you see almost 50 years in the life of a legend. Look closely. See how nobly time touches these Mercedes-Benz cars. Their appeal is enduring. A characteristic that marks the truly legendary and distinguishes it from the merely passing fancy.

A blend of future and past

Here is disciplined grace, the product of thoughtful evolution in design. When Mercedes-Benz engineers create a new car, their vision is wide. They look backwards to retain and improve on their worthiest earlier ideas. And forwards as well, to blend in their latest innovative technology.

Thoughtful evolution in design: a mark of Mercedes-Benz.

To the eye, the changes may be subtle. Invariably, though, they are quietly beautiful—which shows how unerringly their "form follows function."

More importantly, the cars of Mercedes-Benz are designed to appeal strongly to your intelligence. They are honest cars. The promises they make relate directly to their primary function: well-engineered, safe transportation.

One of the seven Mercedes-Benz models

currently available in the United States is in the front rank above: the 450SEL Sedan. Our full offering is described in the table, below. Each one is a blending of patient craftsmanship with sophisticated technology.

Enduring value... and enduring pleasure

Many models of the Special Roadster 500K shown here (no. 4, circa 1935) are appraised at over $50,000. The rare 540K Cabriolet B (no. 3, circa 1936) is considered a genuine value at over $75,000. And based on average official used car prices over the past five years, the contemporary Mercedes-Benz automobiles have held their value better than any other make of luxury car made in America.

The high retained value of Mercedes-Benz cars is a rational attraction. But they have an emotional raison d'être, too. To experience it, arrange, through your Mercedes-Benz Dealer, to drive one. You'll experience an unrivaled automotive pleasure. One that happens only behind the wheel of this charismatic car.

Truly, the legend continues.

Medical-Insurance Caution Advised

SACRAMENTO - (BW) - Caution should be exercised in imposing changes on either the financing or delivery of health care insurance, said Cotton M. Lindsay, associate professor of economics, UC-LA, at a seminar examining national health insurance here.

Lindsay was one of three panelists at the event titled "Health Care 2001 - New Directions in Public Health Care." It was co-sponsored by the Institute for Contemporary Studies and the University of California - Davis Extension, and was held at the Mansion Inn.

According to Lindsay, current health insurance plans serve our rapidly changing society well, and do not need a "major overhaul" as advocated by politicians. Although he acknowledges there are flaws in the system, he feels they can be remedied with minor rather than major changes.

Other panelists were Keith B. Leffler, assistant professor of business administration, Graduate School of Management, University of Rochester, and Charles E. Phelps, senior research economist, The Rand Corp.

They agreed national health insurance would increase the demand for medical care without increasing available services, and would make prices skyrocket.

"If national health insurance is adopted, said Leffler, major price escalation for physician services can be expected."

Under the proposals, he said, unlimited payments will be available for physician services, with no co-payments or deductibles required. Demand for services will increase, stimulating significant price increases.

According to Phelps, public intervention in medicine has risen steadily over past years, primarily aimed at services for the poor and elderly, until it now approaches 50 per cent of total health care expenditures in this country.

"National health insurance would further escalate involvement by the public sector in health care, and would require long-term expansion of the medical care sector to keep per-unit prices from rising," he said.

Bean Futures Rise 15 Cents On Chicago Bd.

CHICAGO (AP) - Soybean futures advanced 15 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade today and influenced a demand for most other commodities on the exchange.

The strength in soybeans was attributed almost entirely early in the session to an Agriculture Department report listing the number of acres farmers intend to plant to the main crops this year. The report, issued after Friday's close, was considered bullish on soybeans and mildly bearish on corn and wheat.

Soybeans, meal and oil were actively bought on the opening and the new crop beans advanced 8 cents within minutes. The demand for meal fell off, but all prices rose nearly 1/2 cent. There was very little activity selling thereafter and before midsession thereafter prices in the complex hit early highs.

Oats, wheat and corn were down about 1 to 3 cents early, largely because of the report and a lack of sustained buyer interest. Before the midway point, however, another rally in the complex expanded to a fairly good demand for oats, corn and wheat. Shorts were very scarce.

Some trade sources thought the new developing demand might have been linked to some trade talk that the government's stocks of grain report to be issued Tuesday might be bullish. As grain prices rose and another government report had fewer cattle on feed than the trade had expected a demand rose for iced broilers. These prices advanced 3/4 cent a pound at one time then fell back to 1/2 cent.

After the midway point, soybeans were 8 to 15 cents a bushel higher. March 7.30; wheat was 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 higher, March 2.80 1/2; corn was 1/4 to 1 1/2 higher, March 2.60 1/4 and oats were 1/4 to 1 1/2 higher, March 1.79 1/4.

Hewlett Packard Raises Dividend

PALO ALTO - (BW) - Hewlett-Packard Co. directors increased the semiannual cash dividend on the company's stock from 15 cents a share to 20 cents a share. The increase will apply to HP's next regular dividend, which is payable April 15 to stockholders of record March 23.

"Should the government be making these expenditures when higher priority programs are going begging? Or should the funding come from the private sector if the need is considered great enough to warrant this type of review?" asks Lambrone.

By DONALD C. BAUDER
Copley News Service

Since so many Wall Street seers are bullish these days, anybody who is nonbullish becomes known as a raging bear.

Take, for instance, Francis H.M. Kelly, research director for Blyth Eastman Dillon. The other day, I heard him described as "Super Bear."

Kelly simply indicates that two major categories of common stocks - basic industry (steels, chemicals, papers, etc.) and growth (multinationals, et al) - have seen their big runs.

The other categories, however, are still in ascendancy, said Kelly in an interview: the interest-sensitive stocks (utilities, telecommunications, savings and loans) and secondary and tertiary issues (long-neglected, smaller- and medium-sized companies).

Moreover, bonds and other

INSTITUTIONS OWN 70% OF NYSE SWAPS

NEW YORK (AP) - Institutional investors accounted for 57 per cent of the volume and 70 per cent of the value of New York Stock Exchange trading in the first quarter of last year, the NYSE said.

Trading in the period averaged 28 million shares a day, worth $1.3 billion.

The proportions virtually the same as those reported by the exchange in 1971 and 1974, contrast with October 1966, when 55 per cent of the volume and 48 per cent of the value came from institutional trading.

Peril Cited To Auditor's Independence

CHICAGO - Government intrusion and unwarranted sniping at the accounting profession's standards-setting process could result in increased federal regulation for the entire U.S. business community, an executive of an international accounting firm told business leaders here today.

Speaking to the Executives' Club of Chicago, William S. Kanaga, managing partner of Arthur Young & Company, said, "A raging floodtide of change is occurring and the truly important issue is whether that current of change can be directed into constructive channels and who will perform that engineering feat. The contest is well-illustrated by the effort to establish accounting rules to meet evolving needs of the public, the business community and the accounting profession."

Kanaga supported the Financial Accounting Standards Board - and independent, private sector, rule-making body organized in 1973 to establish standards for financial reporting. He noted that assault on the FASB from government, business and the accounting profession "could well cripple and possibly destroy this crucial endeavor to achieve needed improvements in financial reporting."

Citing recent congressional activities focusing on the accounting profession, Kanaga also said, "These developments suggest a general movement toward more - not less - governmental intrusion into the private sector."

"Now there appears to be an inclination in some quarters in Washington to redefine the auditor's mission by requiring him to be a gumshoe who must ferret out any and all departures by management from a set of value standards of behavior and report them in unspecified detail to an ill-defined audience," he said.

Baja Highway Finish Slated

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) - The federal director of public works for Baja California says the highway linking Ensenada on the Pacific and San Felipe on the Gulf of California should be completed before the end of 1977.

Jesus Vizecarras Castro said funding of $125 million is nearly finalized for construction of the paving of the last 35 miles of the 125-mile route.

Vizecarras predicted completion of the highway, which runs at a southeast angle across the Baja peninsula, will benefit California residents who are visiting the fishing village of San Felipe in growing numbers each year.

France moderate," said Kelly, a native of Scotland who got his master's degree from Edinburgh University.

He says that Japan's real (after inflation) GNP (gross national product) growth may fall off to 4 per cent this year, while West Germany may only register 3.5 per cent. "This is significantly lower than other forecasts," he said.

"I see a sharp decline in our trade balance - in fact, a $5 billion swing in constant dollars. That's one-third of the administration's planned stimulus going out the window to foreign countries," he said. "It will also pull down industrial production and hurt employment."

Those phenomena, in turn, touch on one of Kelly's main

AMC Offers Cash Rebates On Hornets

DETROIT - American Motors said it is expanding its cash rebate program to include new 1976 and 1977 Hornet wagons in addition to the rebates currently offered on Pacer sedans and wagons.

Eugene V. Amoroso, vice president-marketing group, said that response to the price reduction on the Gremlin to $2,995 in early November, and the continuing Pacer rebate program has demonstrated the strong appeal of cost savings to small car buyers.

"Sales of the Gremlin and Pacer have increased as a direct result of the lower-priced Gremlin and the Pacer rebates, and we believe cash bonuses on the Hornet wagon - our most popular compact - will generate additional sales activity," Amoroso said.

Cash rebates of $253 are being offered on all retail orders for AMC Hornet wagons placed through Feb. 10. Hornet wagons purchased from dealer inventories will be rebated through March 10, 1977. Suggested retail price on the wagon is $3,699.

ITT Contract

NEW YORK - International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. announced its Argentine subsidiary, Compania Standard Electric Argentina, S.A., recently signed an $87 million contract with the Argentine Telecommunications Administration.

The contract calls for the supply and installation of 117,800 lines of Pentaconta switching equipment and approximately 213,000 telephone subsets, and other material and services.

Triple Oil Merger Clears Court Hurdle

LOS ANGELES - (BW) - Motions for a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction seeking to enjoin the merger of Mission Corp. and Skelly Oil Co. into the Getty Oil Co. have been denied by Judge Malcolm M. Lucas of the U.S. District Court for the central district of California.

The suit was brought by Evmar Oil Corp. for itself, persons similarly situated and on behalf of Skelly Oil Co. on Dec. 29. Lucas scheduled a status hearing for March 21 to determine a trial date.

CBT Raises Margin For GNMA Futures

CHICAGO - (BW) - Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade have approved increases in both regular margin requirements and variable-limit margin requirements for GNMA mortgage interest rate futures contracts, effective immediately.

New regular minimum initial margin for speculative trades will be $1,250 per contract and new regular minimum margin for hedging trades will be $1,000 per contract. Both kinds of accounts will be required to be maintained to a minimum $1,000 per contract under usual conditions.

When three or more delivery months of a commodity, or all the delivery months in a "crop year" if there are less than three open, close up or down limit for three days in a row, CBT regulations allow for price limits to be increased 50 per cent from their previous levels.

theses: that truculent industrial prices will prove to be a drag on profit margins. "I think profits in the aggregate will be up 10 per cent - but profit margins (profits as a per cent of sales) will be declining."

Overall, he looks for real growth of 4.5 per cent this year, with inflation of 4.8 per cent - a forecast which actually falls within the consensus of economists.

This relative softness will lead to a continuing declines of long-term interest rates. He sees AAA-rated industrials dropping from an average 7.9 per cent rate in fourth-quarter 1976 to 7.5 at year-end 1977.

"There still are ample opportunities for making money (bonds, interest-sensitive and secondary stocks)" he said. "It's just that this is the kind of year in which you can't pitch darts at the tables and pick any 10

COCA-COLA LEGALIZED IN PORTUGAL

ATLANTA (AP) - After keeping America's most famous soft drink on ice for many years, Portugal will allow a Coca-Cola bottling plant to be built there, the soft drink firm said Thursday.

The Portuguese government has authorized the introduction of Coca-Cola and the Atlanta-based company has granted a contract for a local firm to produce and distribute the beverage, Coca-Cola Co. said.

Coke has never been bottled in Portugal in the beverage's 91-year history.

It was opposed by the long-time dictatorship overthrown in 1974 because, the government claimed, the drink's caffeine content was a threat to the nation's health.

The Portuguese got around the edict by smuggling Coke from neighboring Spain. A large bottle that sold for the equivalent of $1 in Spain cost twice that much in Portuguese towns near the border.

8,000 Sq. Ft. Restaurant Is Opened

The $1 million 8,000 square foot Houlihan's Old Place restaurant has been completed and opened in Newport Beach.

The restaurant is owned and operated by Gilbert-Robinson Inc., based in Kansas City, Mo. The 50-year-old firm operates 24 unit restaurants at the Kansas City International Airport as well as specialty restaurants across the nation.

They include: Annie's Santa Fe, Sam Wilson's Meat Market, Plaza Three, Fred P. Ott's and Capt'n Jeremiah Tuttle's and are to be found in St. Louis, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, Houston and San Diego.

Newport Beach architects, Robert Altevorts and Company designed the "Victorian" building which uses stained-glass windows, brick, rough-sawn cedar siding and a shingle roof.

Many of the restaurant's appointments came from collections found in Europe and the United States. They include heavily carved bannisters, pub mirrors, and a massive bar.

R.H. Wade and Associates, Van Nuys was the general contractor.

Price Of Bonds Suffer Decline In Light Trade

NEW YORK (AP) - Bond prices moved lower today in very light trading.

The weak retail demand more than offset any beneficial market response to the decrease of $700 million in the nation's basic money supply reported late last Friday, dealers said.

"We're less interested in background economic developments right now than we are in uncovering some buyers for the heavy market supplies," one dealer said.

Government issues fell between 2-32 point and 16-32 point. The 7 1/2 per cent bonds of 1995-2000 were about 12-32 point lower at 102 12-32 bid, 102 28-32 asked, to yield about 7.58 per cent. The fresh 5 1/2 per cent notes of Jan. 31, 1979, moved down 4-32 point to 99 17-32 bid, 99 19-32 asked, to return 6.09 percent.

Seasoned corporate bonds were an average of 1/4 point lower. Sizable amounts of older tax-exempt bonds were being advertised for sale, including about a $3.5 million block of Oregon obligations. Total unsold inventories were estimated at a substantial $1 billion.

DJIA Has Slight Gain

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market posted a small gain today, repeating the pattern of last Friday's erratic advance.

Trading was moderately active.

At the close the Dow Jones Industrial Average was up 1.17 at 963.60. Volume on the Big Board was 22.89 million shares.

At 1 p.m. the Dow Jones Industrial Average was down 1.49 points to 960.94 on a volume of 12.72 million shares compared to 12.49 million at the same hour on Friday. The NYSE index stood at 56.08, off 0.07, and the Amex index was at 111.96, up 0.24.

The Dow up 1 at the opening, was down 1.58 at 960.85 by noon on Wall Street.

Gainers held a slight edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said a decline in the money supply reported late Friday by the Federal Reserve had eased concern that the Fed might move to tighten credit.

But many investors still seemed to be awaiting further developments from the new administration of President Carter before making any large commitments.

Tropicana Products led the active list, up 1/4 at 27. A 108,400-share block of the stock traded at that price.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .05 to 56.10. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .12 at 111.84.

Bolivia Tin Faces Crunch — Too Costly For Market

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) - Officials here are far from elated over rising world tin prices, even though the metal is this country's main source of foreign revenue.

And Bolivian dissatisfaction with tin prices has erupted into disputes with the United States and other consumer countries in the International Tin Council (ITC).

In the first weeks of January, the price of tin soared over $4 a pound on the London metals market. A year earlier, the price hovered between $2.80 and $2.90.

A couple of pennies a pound makes a million-dollar difference in Bolivia's annual export income. The impoverished South American country sells about 30,000 tons of tin abroad yearly as the world's No. 2 exporter, after Malaysia.

But President Hugo Banzer, an army general, told The Associated Press in an interview: "We do not consider the current price high, because the extraction of tin in Bolivia is very expensive, very costly. The production price is not the same as in other countries."

Tin extraction in Malaysia is accomplished mostly by relatively cheap dredging processes, while in Bolivia it is by hard-rock mining.

And "the deeper you dig the more costly it gets," said an economist here.

Bolivia's main tin lodes are in "the same old mines which have been working for the past 50 years," the economist said, adding he believes Comibol, the government company that has operated Bolivia's biggest mines since 1952, is not a model of efficiency.

Comibol says its average cost of producing tin is about $3.50 a pound, including export levies. Some smaller, privately run mines have lower costs.

Tin brings in more than half of Bolivia's mineral revenues, and mineral sales account for 60 per cent of all the country's exports. The United States bought 40 per cent of Bolivia's mineral exports in 1975 for $125 million.

Last year, the United States became a member of the Tin Council, an organization of seven producing countries and more than 20 consuming countries. It is the first international mineral market group that the U.S. government has joined.

With U.S. support, a fifth world tin agreement was drawn up. Its goal is to regulate supplies and prices of the shiny metal that forms the thin veneer on steel cans and blends with copper in bronze.

The tin agreement went into effect provisionally last July, but Bolivia, because of disagreements on pricing and other policies, has refused to ratify it. If the ratification does not come by next June, the agreement will be voided.

The dispute essentially is a duel between the United States and Bolivia because the Bolivians are the most militant proponents of higher prices and the United States is the consuming country with the largest bloc of votes.

Hugo Uriona, president of the Bolivian government mining bank, said a breakdown of the tin agreement might lead to the formation of a price-setting cartel by tin-producing countries.

"That is what the consuming countries don't want," Uriona said. "This period is decisive."

Current tin prices are up mainly because demand has outstripped supply, according to Uriona and other experts. They predict that the prices will hold until the U.S. General Services Administration receives authorization from Congress to sell from its strategic tin stockpiles. Such sales are not expected before March.

"It is certain that the price will go down the moment the GSA makes the decision to sell reserves," Uriona said.

A diplomat predicted privately, "At that time there will be a lot of screaming and shouting, saying the United States is trying to hurt small countries."

A key element in the fifth tin agreement is the ITC's buffer stock. When prices are low, the council buys up tin for the stock, with the goal of reducing supply and pushing prices up.

When prices are high, sales are made from the buffer stock. But the stock currently is empty and unable to influence prices.

The ITC decides on minimum prices, below which it will buy tin, and maximum prices, above which it will sell. Since 1972, these minimum and maximum prices have been expressed in ringgits per pikul.

A pikul is a Malaysian measure of weight equal to 133.3 pounds. A ringgit, the Malaysian dollar - is worth about $2.50.

Bolivia's ultimate objective is the creation of a minimum-maximum range that would be set automatically according to an index of inflation, costs and other variables.

Bolivia also wants to change the ITC voting rules to eliminate what it calls veto power by the big consuming countries. A two-thirds majority is required to carry most decisions.

Of the 1,000 exporting country votes, Malaysia has 426.

SDG&E Shows Upturn From Low '75 Profit

SAN DIEGO (BW) - San Diego Gas & Electric Co. (SDG&E) Friday reported annual earnings that show a recovery from 1975, the worst year in the company's history.

Net income for 1976 hit $50.4 million, which left $38.5 million, or $2.14 a common share, after meeting preferred dividend requirements. In 1975, net income was $25.7 million, with $15.9 million, or 97 cents a share for common.

Robert E. Morris, president said the company was not able to recover rising fuel costs in 1975, and that broke the normal pattern of earnings growth. In 1974, SDG&E earned $2.09 a common share.

Common stock earnings for the final three months of 1976 were lower than the like period a year earlier, reflecting the greater number of shares outstanding and flat energy sales due to mild weather. The company earned 36 cents per share in the 1976 fourth quarter on common stock earnings of $6.9 million. Comparable 1975 results were 57 cents a share on earnings of $9.7 million.

Electric sales for the entire year rose 4 per cent, while gas sales were off 12 per cent. Weather 44 per cent warmer than the year before and customer conservation restricted the year-to-year gain in energy sales.

Chief Named For Mattel Circus Park

HAWTHORNE - (BW) - Mattel Inc. announced the appointment of William E. Ketchum as president and chief operating officer of the company's family entertainment subsidiary, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus World Inc. near Orlando, Fla.

Ketchum has been general manager of the Circus World theme park since May 1976. Previously he was with Economic Research Associates, a Los Angeles-based market research and management consulting firm specializing in recreation and real estate.

DETROIT (AP) - American Motors Corp. reported first-quarter earnings today of $1.2 million, up substantially from the record losses in the final quarter of the fiscal year which ended Sept. 30.

AMC lost $51.1 million in the July-September period to finish in the red for the second consecutive fiscal year.

The October-December earnings, equal to four cents a share, is down from first quarter earnings of $7.5 million, or 25 cents a share, in the 1976 fiscal year.

AMC reported sales for the first quarter of 1977 were $559 million, compared with $615 million in 1976.

AMC has lost $73.8 million dollars in the past two fiscal years.

Company Chairman Roy Chapin Jr. and President William Luneburg said the $1.2 million profit was the result of continued cost reduction programs to lower the automotive break-even point and continued profitability of various subsidiaries.

Chapin and Luneburg cited profits from AM General Corp., which produces trucks, postal service vehicles and buses, and from lawn and garden tractor and plastics industries. They also reported $600,000 of net gains from the company's foreign operations as a result of currency fluctuations.

AMC reported wholesale sales of passenger cars totaled 48,788 units in the first quarter of fiscal 1977, while retail sales were 62,819, resulting in adjustments of dealer inventory levels. Jeep vehicle sales were a record 26,689 units.

Wholesale Food Prices Steady

NEW YORK - The Wholesale Food Price Index, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., held steady on January 18 at $15.02, the same as a week ago. However, the index topped by 20.9 per cent the $12.42 of the like 1976 date.

Eight increases counterbalanced nine declines to keep the index at a steady level. Cocoa, egg and potato prices rose substantially, followed by less weighty advances in flour, rye, hams, lard and sugar.

Decreasing sharply, on the other hand, were the wholesale costs of beef, bellies, coffee, steers and hogs, along with slight price dips in wheat, corn, oat and cottonseed oil quotations.

GETTING INVOLVED - Membership Day For Orange County Women between the ages of 18 and 35 interested in serving their communities will be held at 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 31, in the Ebell Clubhouse, 515 W. Balboa Blvd., Newport Beach. The "Getting to Know You" affair is being sponsored by Orange District, Junior Membership-California Federation of Women's Club and will be hosted by Junior Ebell Club of Newport Beach. Philanthropic projects supported by the 22 district clubs include the Providence Speech and Hearing Center in Orange that offers programs for children and adults with communication disorders. The district also supports such state-wide projects as the Hospital Materno-Infantil in Tijuana, Mexico. Individual junior club endeavors include child abuse, rape prevention, foster parent programs, youth employment, etc. Further information may be obtained through Mrs. Patrick Giacomini, 5821 Crestview Circle, LaPalma. Mrs. Giacomini, left, district vice president, and Mrs. Judy Dougal, president, examine one of the audio-visual machines that the juniors are purchasing for the Providence center.

Scleroderma: A Mysterious Disease That Is Turning A Woman To Stone

By DON WILSON
Knight News Wire

WATSONVILLE, Calif. - A 32-year-old housewife is "slowly turning to stone" from a disease for which there is no known cure.

She has formed a foundation aimed both at finding a cause and cure and helping its victims get over the depressing emotional reaction which sets in after the disease is diagnosed.

"I really was hit hard," says Diane Williams, "when I found out what was wrong with me. I couldn't move. I couldn't even get off the couch without help."

What had affected Williams, she says, is "scleroderma," which means "hard skin."

It is a disease related to rheumatic fever and involves a substance called collagen, the material which makes up the basis of cartilage, bone, skin and connective tissue. A person with the disease finds his or her hands, feet or mouth developing a rigidity that pulls fingers or lips back so tightly that the fingers are curled into the palms of the hands, and a person's mouth can't open far enough for a dentist to fix a tooth, for instance.

DIAGNOSIS DIFFICULT

Because the symptoms are often seen in arthritic or cancer victims, Williams said, the affliction often isn't diagnosed as scleroderma.

But there are some doctors, notably Dr. Denny Tuffanelli in San Francisco, she said, who are doing research and have acquired considerable skill in diagnosis of the disease.

But so far, she said, nobody knows how it is caused or how to cure it.

So, with the aid of friends and Dr. Vernon Atkinson of Santa Cruz, Williams formed a Monterey Bay Scleroderma Foundation. Atkinson is president of the board of directors.

"We already have raised $6,100," Atkinson said, "for use in research."

The wife of a city fire inspector and mother of three children, Williams apparently has conquered her own emotions. She goes about her housework almost normally.

HANDS DON'T WORK

"There are some things," she said, "that I simply can't do anymore, now that my hands don't work."

But she's able to do most things around the house, still goes shopping, and is getting increasingly involved in the work of the foundation.

"About all I can do," she said, "is show that a person with scleroderma can still function, physically and emotionally."

"And hope that some way is found soon to ward off the disease, so other people won't get it."

Communications Breakdowns Cause Marriage Problems

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

When was the last time you were talking away on the phone and suddenly realized the line had gone dead?

Such communications hang-ups happen in marriage, too. Dr. Joe Venema, Ph.D., clinical psychologist and clinical adjunct professor, School of Psychology, Fuller Theological Seminary, considers this one of the major barriers to a good marriage.

If your spouse thinks you aren't listening, Venema said in an interview, this can carry a powerful message: "You don't care about me. I couldn't be important to you if my feelings and concerns aren't."

Lack of caring may not be the major problem, however. Often a couple can improve such "bad connections" by developing better listening techniques. Dr. Venema shared a few suggestions which may help unjam the lines of communication:

1. There's more to listening than meets the ear. It involves paying attention to the whole person. How your spouse sits, the set of his jaw and what he does with his hands may tell you even more about how he feels than the words he says. "Body language" is very important.

2. Anything important enough to distract your eyes or attention needs to be temporarily laid aside. You need to really "attend" to the other person.

3. Listening also requires putting aside your own agenda for a while. How can you give someone else your full attention when you're planning a rebuttal?

4. Listen for feelings as well as content, Dr. Venema urges. Feelings are very central in a marriage. Can you help each other verbally identify or "label" how you feel?

5. An active, involved listener does a lot of talking. He uses words to "mirror back" what he thinks the other is communicating. This permits correction of errors: "Is what I heard really what my partner meant?"

It also sends a message back to the speaker: "This person is really trying to hear what I'm saying." Further sharing is encouraged.

"Listening to somebody means getting inside of their experiences," Dr. Venema added. "It means checking out how they feel about an issue, instead of projecting your experience onto them. The goal of empathy is to understand and value the other person's feelings and opinions as well as you know your own."

Such communication builds trust between people, Dr. Venema says. "I trust you to care as much about how I feel as about how you feel."

Dr. Venema believes listening alone is not enough to close the communications gap. "We also need to send clear messages."

"When we get married, we discover there's a lot of ourselves we've long ago learned to hide," he continued. "Some of us hide our feelings of sadness. When we're hurting, we withdraw. Our partner wonders, 'What did I do?'"

Dr. Venema hastens to add that sometimes secrets in marriage are OK. "In marriage we work toward deeper sharing. We also don't try to argue each other out of our feelings. We respect and accept them... and work from there."

Pre-Operative Study Of Sex-Change Candidates Evaluate Motives, Future

BY DARRELL SIFFORD
Knight News Wire

Since 1970, surgeons have performed 27 sex-change operations at Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia. 26 of which turned men into women.

Surgery on a man takes about 4 1/2 hours and costs $2,500. More than 20 men are now on the waiting list.

For every person who has surgery, 20 have asked about the sex-change operation. Many drop out when told they will have to be evaluated by a psychiatrist who will determine if they are suitable candidates.

What does the psychiatrist look for? Dr. James H. Gilfoil is one of the psychiatrists who make these evaluations. He is 30, married, the father of two children.

He talks about his evaluation of sex-change candidates:

"Our philosophy is to be very cautious. Obviously this is not the kind of surgery you can redo. It's irrevocable. What I'm looking for is the ideal candidate, a man who's been extremely feminine for as long as he can remember."

"These people are transsexuals. They have the bodies of men but psychologically they want to be women. Many of them come for the interview dressed as women. They've probably undergone electrolysis - their facial body hair is gone - and they've perhaps been taking estrogen, a female hormone that has a castrating effect on men."

"I'm interested in how feminine they are in appearance, manner and dress. How do I feel about them? Do I call them 'Miss' or what? What feelings are stirred up in me? Do I feel I'm in the room with a woman?"

"From the patient I want to know how much he enjoys feminine things and feminine interests."

"The red flags are if he has some masculine aspects about him - his way of walking, crossing his legs, lighting his cigarette. Is his makeup garish, kind of out of whack?"

"Some of them come in with real psychological problems. But others are just anxious or upset. In that respect they're no different from other patients, some of whom are fairly together while others are crazy as bedbugs."

"I see in many of them a real sense of hope, that they're finally on the right track, that they have a real chance to feel better about themselves."

"Most of them don't feel good about themselves. The problems they've had in life are incredible. A lot of the people who want the surgery are on welfare. That says something about how tough it is to be a transsexual."

QUESTION: Dr. Gilfoil, is there a common pattern you find in the backgrounds of male transsexuals?

ANSWER: In general we find that this is the youngest boy in the family. He has great physical beauty. He seems to have a close and special relationship with his mother very early in life. During his first two or three years he's with her literally day and night.

The relationship is nonconflictual. Mother never manifests any aggression toward the boy.

The father is distant or absent. He could be overseas in the military or perhaps working two jobs. The boy identifies closely with the mother and by 18 or 24 months feels feminine. He knows he's a boy but he feels feminine.

He has no model to learn masculinity from. If he has brothers, they're usually distant like the father. If he has sisters, they're often influential. They may have a lot to do with dressing him in girls' clothing. He's normally fairly slight of build - like a girl.

So the boy goes to school and comes in contact with other boys for the first time. And the problems he has are incredible. He's taunted by the other boys because he wants to play with girls. He's more comfortable with girls. This is the core of his identity - being female.

Q. How does he try to cope at school?

A. He's apt to adopt a fake masculinity, a facade that will help him get along in school with less hassling. How he dresses will depend on his mother, but usually he'll try to appear as much like a boy as he can. But in fantasy he'll go back to the feminine world to find relief from his torment.

He's likely to suffer from anxiety, loneliness, depression. He's a miserable kid.

Q. Is there psychological scarring that remains after the sex-change operation?

A. Surprisingly, there's little scarring from the taunting and disapproval. After surgery these people feel less anxious and depressed, their relationships are improved and they do better work at their jobs.

But they do seem doomed to certain other problems later in life.

There seems to be some defect in the sense of identification. Even though they feel better about themselves, there's a feeling that something's missing. Many of them seem to have difficulty in forming deep, meaningful relationships. I'm talking about marriage.

Q. Does the transsexual, while a man,

engage in homosexual relationships with other men?

A. He doesn't consider it homosexual. These transsexuals are homosexual as we would define it legally, but they don't think so. To them their interest in a man is heterosexual - because they consider themselves women.

This is what sets them apart from transvestites and homosexuals. The transvestite enjoys dressing as a woman and is sexually excited by it. The homosexual may dress as a woman - as a way to make fun of women. But both know they're men. Occasionally they'll go through periods when they feel as if they want to be women. And some of them come in to inquire about sex-change surgery. You have to be careful because they aren't good candidates - since basically they think of themselves as men.

Q. What would you say to a mother who's worried that her relationship with her infant son is too close, that it could turn him into a transsexual?

A. Well, if she's concerned about it, then she probably has nothing to worry about. But basically she should show appreciation of her son's masculinity. My boy is only six months old, but my wife already calls him "Big Boy." That is what I'm talking about.

If the father is frequently absent, a mother should encourage her son to play with his brothers. Or she should take him to a playground so he can be with other boys. He should be dressed like a boy. His haircut should be a boy's. It's important that he have a clean-cut sense of sex.

SLIM GOURMET

Recipe Contest Winners Give Low-Cal Fish Ideas

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Cash and calorie-saving versions of the French scallop dish, "Coquilles St. Jacques," brought prizes to two Slim Gourmet readers. Winners of this month's "Reader Recipe Contest" are Mrs. Frederick Wilson of Wakefield, R.I. for her "Thin Man's Coquilles" and Lee Nelke of West Acton, Mass. for her "Poor Man's Mock Coquilles." Both have won copies of my new "Slim Gourmet Cookbook" for their inventive ideas.

Mrs. Wilson adapted her recipe from one learned years ago in a gourmet cooking class in New York City. Only 5 feet 2, Mrs. Wilson writes that three years ago, she weighed 140 pounds and wore a size 16. Then she began to cut down on fattening ingredients. Today she weighs 107 pounds and wears a size 10 or 12.

In its original form, her prize-winning recipe calls for butter, heavy cream and mushrooms sauteed in lots more butter.

COQUILLES ST. JACQUES

1 pound small scallops, fresh or defrosted
2 cups dry white wine
1 tablespoon dry onion flakes
2 tablespoons diet margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 jumbo or 2 small egg yolks
one-half cup skim milk
3-ounce can drained mushroom pieces
one-half cup grated Gruyere cheese (2 ounces)
salt, white pepper, nutmeg
Combine scallops, wine and onion in a heavy non-stick skillet over medium heat. Poach gently in the wine five minutes.

Remove scallops with a slotted spoon and place in four baking shells or a shallow ovenproof dish.
Boil wine in the skillet until reduced to about one cup. Pour into a saucepan and set aside over very low heat.

Melt the margarine in the same skillet over low heat. Gradually blend in the flour. Add the warm wine slowly. Cook and stir until thickened.

In a small bowl, beat egg yolks with milk. Gradually beat in some of the hot wine sauce. Return the hot wine and egg sauce to the skillet over very, very low heat. Add the mushrooms. Cook and stir over very low heat until thickened, but do not boil. Season to taste with salt, pepper, nutmeg.

Spoon the sauce over the scallops and top with grated cheese.

Bake in a preheated 450 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes until top is lightly browned and bubbly.

Serves four, 205 calories each.

LEE'S "PAUVRE COQUILLES"

"Have you tried to buy scallops lately," writes co-winner Lee Nelke, who teaches gourmet cooking classes at the Acton-Boxborough Adult School. "I use firm white fish. So for a mere pittance, you can prepare Coquilles St. Jacques for a fraction of the cost."

To make mock scallops, substitute one pound fresh, firm white fish fillets, preferably cusk, haddock or turbot. Rinse under cold water. Then gently cut the fish into 1-inch scallop-size cubes.

Use in the foregoing recipe.

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

Will Abutilon Grow Happily Inside Home?

By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Dear Mother Earth: I recently received a lovely plant as a gift. There were no instructions and no identification. I was completely stumped as to how to care for it. After many inquiries, I learned it is a flowering maple. What does it need to live indoors? Please pass on to your readers that when they give a plant as a gift they should identify it and give some simple instructions for its care. Otherwise, it's like Russian roulette. Thanks for all the help. - J.V. Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear J.V.: When houseplants are purchased there ought to be a "name tag" for identification, so that when we seek information on their care we will have some place intelligent to come from, rather than, "Well, I have this plant, and it's green, and it has leaves..." It's up to the buyer to ask: What is this? Where will it do best? What about food, water, and so forth?

Your plant, flowering maple or Abutilon, is a beautiful indoor plant that will flower - in the brightest indoor sunlight. It likes to be slightly pot-bound and needs frequent pinching back for shaping. The leaves are reminiscent of a sugar maple, but they are not related to the maple tree. Their relative is the hollyhock. The blooms can be white, yellow, pink or red, shaped like bells. Enjoy and happy growing!

Polly's Pointers

Try these time-savers to tackle cleaning

By Polly Cramer

Cleaning and everyday jobs are not easy by anyone's standards but with different and perhaps unusual ways to do them, such jobs can be almost fun. Our readers have always come up with many such pointers.

DEAR POLLY — When taking ashes out of the fireplace, dampen a folded newspaper on one side and turn face down over the bucket or scuttle. Simply lift a corner of the paper as you put in each shovelful of ashes. The damp paper catches any flying dust. Also, the cardboard that comes in a shirt from the laundry makes a more satisfactory "picker upper" than any shovel or dustpan.

DEAR POLLY — When you want to rearrange the furniture, lift one end of a piece at a time and put a child's roller skate under each end. If moving over a bare floor, it is worthwhile to glue a bit of felt on the skate wheels.

One big housekeeping worry for mothers is the black marks that children's shoes often make on the floor. Usually a pencil eraser will remove them without hurting the wax job or scrubbing so hard.

DEAR POLLY — If paper is stuck to a varnished table top, do not try to scrape it off with a knife. Pour on olive oil, a few drops at a time, and rub with a soft cloth. Repeat until all the paper comes off.

DEAR POLLY — When covering chairs with plastic material, I tie a man's folded handkerchief over my dry iron with the temperature set at "wool". I use this to warm the plastic just enough so it stretches easily around the corners. This is a bit harder than making pleats at the corners but looks so much better it is well worth the trouble.

DEAR POLLY — If you have trouble reaching those cobwebs in a high stair well, tie an old towel on one end of a broomstick. With no trouble at all clean the whole wall free of webs. No stretching at all.

DEAR POLLY — This is for those who scrub floors on their hands and knees. My husband took a scrap of lumber about twelve inches square and put four rollers on the bottom. I glued a piece of foam rubber on the top and then covered that with a scrap of cloth to finish my "scooter". My knees are really saved as I scoot over the floor while cleaning it.

DEAR POLLY — The shampoo we use comes in a plastic tube and it was always difficult getting the last bit out. I had the happy thought of filling a seemingly empty tube with water to then squirt on my hair. I was surprised that this makes enough for about three more shampoos. We used to toss away such a tube but now keep them until there are no more suds. — MRS. J.P.

DEAR POLLY — I have found the best way to dust wrought iron furniture is to spray a clean paint brush with furniture polish and then dust. The brush gets into all the grooves. — MRS. S.J.V.

DEAR POLLY — I painted a metal lunch box a favorite color, added a decal and have a great container for sewing notions, hobby equipment or small handy tools. — M.B.S.

DEAR POLLY — If you want to paint stairs and must use them meanwhile paint every other step and let them dry thoroughly and then paint the remaining steps.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards. Ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of The Register, P.O. Box 11626, Santa Ana 92711.

English Queens Inspire Capucci's New Collection

By DANIELA PETROFF
AP Fashion Writer

ROME (AP) — Capucci in his new collection of spring and summer fashions goes back through the centuries to two English queens who gave their names to fashion, Elizabeth I and Victoria.

The magician of the surprise effect unveiled his latest collection at Rome's three-day fashion last week. Milla Schon and Lancetti shared the spotlight.

Capucci transported Elizabethan collars into boleros with a stiff wide collar in the back, tapering down to the bottom curve.

He turned the 19th-century sidesaddle outfit into an elegant evening ensemble in black crepe, worn with a delicate white georgette blouse and a high lace Victorian collar.

Then he hurled his audience into a futuristic era where geometric layers of stiff, brightly colored fabric were used as collars and sleeves, on boleros and dresses alike.

Capucci also played with the apron, using it for a double face effect in both daytime and evening wear. A skirt was untied in the front and tied again at the back to reveal a new pattern underneath.

Milla Schon's raincoat in bottle green is cut like a trench coat but with a wider belt and looser bottom to make it special. And her T-shirt is a striped silk knit to make it just a little more special.

But it was in her blouse look that she really excelled in practical femininity. Mantled in white silk for daytime, worn with a wide brown leather belt with skirts and pants, she changed it into fine georgette and lace for evening, with either a loose tie neck or a high grandmother collar.

Using the same fabric and design, she extended it into a floor-length evening dress.

Pino Lancetti's collection was a canvas of color ranging from the steppes of the Hungarian plains to the shores of Spanish Marbella.

Peasant blouses with heart and floral embroidery were worn over black skirts reaching just below the knee, and the gaudy red, yellow and green called to mind a warm night around the gypsy campfire.

Members of three women's GOP organizations have announced program plans and speakers for upcoming meeting.

Orange

"The Problems of Implementing Current Legislation" will be the topic of the Orange Republican Women Federated meeting at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in Lee's Village Chinese Restaurant, 2940 E. Chapman Ave., Orange.

Michael Capizzi, Orange County assistant district attorney, will be guest speaker. Mrs. Harry St. George is program chairman.

Newport Harbor

Newport Harbor Republican

Wide-tiered ruffled skirts in red and black polkadots on a white background and their shoulderless black blouses with ample three-quarter sleeves, were a call to castanets and flamenco.

Lancetti also paid tribute to 19th-century French Romanticism in a series of floral prints, loosely draped so the body would not interfere with the beauty of the fabric.

The body was exalted in seethrough peasant blouses in white and black chiffon and in his hot pants jump suit. Peeking through a femininely flounced skirt open at the front, the suit is made of black frilled lace with a spaghetti-strapped bodice and short bloomer pants.

GOP Women Slate Meets

Women will hold a community meeting and installation of officers at 10 a.m. Thursday in the Corona del Mar home of Mrs. Edwin F. Steen Jr. Coffee will be served before the meeting begins.

Thomas F. Riley, chairman of the Orange County Board of Supervisors, will speak to members and guests of the club. The meeting is open to the public and further information may be obtained from Mrs. Steen.

Huntington Beach

Harriett Wieder, mayor of Huntington Beach, will speak on "The Women's Crusade for a Sensible Economy" at the 11:30 a.m. Wednesday meeting of Huntington Beach Republican Women's Club Federated in Murdy Park Center, Huntington Beach. Mrs. Lawrence Lundring, Huntington Beach, may be contacted for additional information.

Ivy Baker Priest

Installation of officers for 1977 will be held by the Ivy Baker Priest Forum, Republican Women Federated, at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Carl H. Lykke of Santa Ana.

The new slate includes Mmes. Lykke, president; Douglas Moran, Gerald Schultz and Ronald Russell, vice presidents; John DeYulia, secretary and Donald Manahan, treasurer.

Organization chairmen are Mmes. Charles Health, chaplain; George Daws, historian; Gilbert Moore, parliamentarian; A.A. Famaloro, Americanism; James Roy, citizens-by-choice; Hamilton Dutcher, campaign; Peter Vogel, conventions; Billy Waldron, hospitality; Joseph Scherer, legislation and Leo Miceli, telephone. Mrs. Lykke may be contacted for reservations.

Costa Mesa

The Costa Mesa Federated Republican Women's installation luncheon will be held Saturday in the Rodeway Inn, 1400 S. Bristol St., Costa Mesa. Social hour will be from 11:30 a.m. to noon, followed by lunch. Mary Smallwood, Costa Mesa city councilwoman, will be the speaker.

Officers to be installed are Marguerite Beeny, president; Juanita Cordeiro, Mina Avis, Marty Wilson, vice presidents; Mary Benton, recording secretary; and Suzanne Bodenhofer, treasurer.

The luncheon is open to members, guests and all interested Republican women. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Ray John of Newport Beach.

SICK CHILDREN

Comfort May Be Best Medicine

By SUSAN KIRVIN
Copley News Service
LOS ANGELES — When your child is sick you're apt to feel just as miserable as he or she.

Parents often feel helpless watching their little ones suffer with a fever, runny nose, stuffy head cold, flu bug, virus or one of several childhood diseases.

But you can relieve some of your child's misery by administering a little tender loving care. Comforting your youngster while he's ill may be the best medicine you can prescribe.

Dr. Barbara Adler, a pediatrician, offers parents some tips to follow when caring for a sick youngster.

If your child has a fever, watch him closely. Often a fever indicates a virus or infection is present in the body. If the fever persists more than 24 hours or the child is unusually listless, difficult to arouse, has uncontrollable diarrhea, vomiting or respiratory difficulties, consult a physician.

Take your child's temperature. A rectal rather than oral temperature reading is prescribed.

Never give your child medicine unless it's prescribed by a doctor. Children's aspirin and other medications should be used sparingly and according to directions on the bottle.

It's perfectly safe for a sick child to take a bath provided he stays out of drafts.

Loss of appetite often accompanies illness and even the biggest eater sometimes prefers to skip meals when he's not feeling his best.

Usually an ill child will tell you what he feels up to eating. Liquids generally are preferred over solid food the first few days.

Clear liquids like soup, tea, soft drinks, gelatin and juices are wholeheartedly recommended. Hold off serving milk and other dairy products to youngsters with fevers, the flu or colds.

They can cause diarrhea or nausea.

If you suspect your child has measles or any other contagious childhood diseases, try to separate him from his siblings.

This may be difficult since the infectious period may already have begun before any obvious signs of a disease are apparent.

Keep an ill child's dishes and eating utensils separate from the rest of the family's.

You can protect your child against infectious childhood diseases by having him immunized. Except for chicken pox, vaccines today can guard your child against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, polio, German measles, regular measles and mumps.

The 10-day measles peak during the winter and spring months.

Dr. Adler suggests parents whose children were immunized prior to 1970 should check with their doctor to make sure their child's vaccination is up-to-date.

'Disco Lady' Opens Friday In Santa Ana

The "Disco Lady" club, sponsored by the South Orange County YWCA, will be open from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. beginning Friday in the Y, 1411 N. Broadway, Santa Ana. The club will operate on the last Friday of each month, and is open to men and women of all ages.

Tony Ashe will be featured as the disc jockey. A dance contest and an exhibition of professional dancers will highlight the event each month. Tickets will be sold at the door.

WOMEN'S WORKSHOPS

Dates are now being set for three fashion and personal care workshops to be offered by Broadway department stores for women and girls to help update tired wardrobes and bodies. Connie Rupiper will teach the five-session courses at the Huntington Beach and Laguna Hills stores. Fashion coordinators at either Broadway may be called for reservations and more information.

RETIRED TEACHERS

Vick Knight, director of community relations for Children's Hospital of Orange County, will address the Orange County Central Division of the California Retired Teachers' Association, at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the First Baptist Church, 1010 W. 17th St., Santa Ana.

WEDDINGS

Erven — Hubbard

The Rev. Michael Samsvick heard the nuptial promises of Miss Kimberly Sue Erven and John Stephen Hubbard Friday, Jan. 21, in Calvary Church, of Santa Ana.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Erven of Orange, hosted a reception in the church social hall before the newlyweds left for a honeymoon in Big Bear.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hubbard of Garden Grove are parents of the bridegroom. The former Miss Erven was attired in a gown of nylon chiffon and venise lace with pearl appliques. A lace and pearl crown held her fingertip-length veil, and her flowers were red and pink roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Attendants were Miss Sue Kelso, maid of honor; Ronald Hubbard, best man; Penny Davis, Jennifer Erven, Cindy Hubbard and Lisa Berkley, bridesmaids; Tony Shriver, Vince Lagrange, Dan McCloud and Kirk Hubbard, ushers; and Stacy Worsham and Michelle Murray, flower girls.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard will be residents of Fountain Valley.

Roliver — Kane

Suzanne Ellen Roliver and Patrick Francis Kane were united in marriage by the Rev. Robert Glass in Grace Assembly Church, Syracuse, N.Y.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Garcia of Huntington Beach and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Teresa Kane of Syracuse and the late Francis Kane.

Attending the couple were the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Colapalo.

Immediately following the ceremony a dinner was held for the newlyweds in Sterio's Landmark Restaurant owned by another aunt and uncle of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Van Sterio.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Kane are making their home in Solway, N.Y.

Schoonover — Hilton

The Little Church of the West, Las Vegas, Nev., was setting for the marriage of Janna Maria Schoonover of Tustin and artist John W. Hilton of Twenty-nine Palms.

Mrs. M. Bart of Zoumanstr, Holland, and Mrs. Blanch Hilton of Hemet are mothers of the couple.

Clarke-Smith

Polyester organza and cluny lace were fashioned into the gown worn Saturday, Jan. 22, by Miss Janis M. Clarke for her wedding to Craig E. Smith in Holy Family Cathedral, Orange. The Rev. L.L. Krekulberg heard the nuptial promises of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Clarke of Orange and the son of the Arthur Smiths of Napa, formerly of Orange.

The flounced wedding gown ended in a chapel train and was worn with a floor-length veil edged in matching lace and confined by a headpiece embellished with pink satin ribbon. The bride's bouquet was made of white carnations and pink roses.

Honor attendants were Donna Clarke and Tim Boyd. Also in the wedding party were Catherine Clarke and Wendy DeWitt, bridesmaids; Dennis Smith, Ken Admire and Douglas Clarke, ushers; and Mary-Kate and Sharon Clarke, junior bridesmaids.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in the Fullerton Elks Lodge before the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon in Hawaii. They will make their first home in Orange.

CREATED FOR GARBO

Strip False Lashes Developed In '34

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — One day in 1934, Greta Garbo marched into the makeup department at MGM — she was making "Ninotchka" at the time — and said, "I want no more individual false eyelashes."

Then she left and it was up to Evelyn Marshall, her makeup artist, to deal with the situation.

"I went home hysterical thinking how can I make her wispy lashes look good? In those days we were using individual lashes made of real hair. You'd pick one up with a pair of tweezers and attach it to the real lash with spirit gum. The spirit gum was making Garbo's lashes break."

Well, if she needed hair to start with, Ms. Marshall had a headful, so she pulled three strands of her own, dabbed some spirit gum on them so they formed a "cord," and pinned it to the arm of an overstuffed chair.

"Then I looped other pieces of my own hair around this cord using spirit gum to hold them there. I put wave set on them and curled them overnight in a metal curler. Then I carried them to the studio that way, uncurled them and cut off what I needed for Garbo."

She did that each day, creating new batches of lashes as needed and it was not only satisfactory, she says, "it was the first time anyone had made a strip of lashes you could put on the eyelid like a piece of adhesive tape that could be peeled off."

Garbo was happy, MGM was happy, but when Ms. Marshall's two-year contract expired, "I refused to sign again. When you're doing make-up for a movie company, initially it's interesting but when you have to repeat the same makeup for weeks or months in production . . . It's like one too many peanut butter sandwiches."

So she went into business for herself, first as a free-lance makeup artist in advertising, finally as the head of Evelyn Marshall Cosmetics, which you may not have heard of. "I usually sell one fine specialty store in a city," says the blonde, fit, 61-year-old entrepreneur, "but I don't advertise. If I did, I'd have to charge more than I do. My false eyelashes, which are made of real hair, have been $10 since they went on the market in 1963, even though the cost of making them has increased."

She makes seven styles for upper lashes varying in thickness and length, and available in black, brown and black-brown.

"Liza Minnelli and Cher wear the Spiders," she said, indicating long, wispy lashes.

She used to make them all by hand herself, "but now I have a lot of Oriental women who do this piece work for me at home. I examine all the lashes to make sure they're tied evenly and that there are no 'jumps' in them where hairs have broken off."

CLOSE LOOK — Attract attention to the eyes while detracting from imperfect features, with natural-looking false eyelashes. ("Evening Wisps" by Evelyn Marshall.)

Then they're given a permanent, sterilized and the customer gets a pair of lashes she can color with mascara and clean with soap and water. "And they won't lose their curl."

For most of her natural resources, Ms. Marshall looks to the heads of Europe. "We get our blonde hair from Scandinavia because they have a very high protein diet there and the hair is strong. Also, they don't expose themselves to the sun — you can't use hair that's bleached or dyed."

The brown shades "come from the poorer sections of Spain," a country whose religious customs once enabled her to beat inflation.

"Hair was shooting up, it was about $120 a pound. I had a friend in Spain who wrote and said why don't you buy hair from the Koreans at $20 a pound and send it to me."

So she did and he, armed with the Korean hair, ambled into the small country churches where the people left locks of hair on the altars

He'd go over to the priest and say if you let me switch this hair for the Spanish hair on the altar, I'll give you $60 a pound for the poor box.

"The priest would say yes, the poor got help and I got a trunkful of Spanish hair."

Swedish or not, the false eyelashes you buy, she says, "should match your hair color as closely as possible so they look like you grew them. And don't forget that anything you see sitting in a box will look twice as heavy on."

That's why "we mix hair shades. Our eyelashes are never all one solid shade because normal hair isn't. Even in solid black there are variations."

Listen to the advice of the salesgirl, if she'll talk to you, and be aware, finally, of the service false eyelashes can perform.

"You can attract attention into the eyes without screaming makeup and falseness," she says, "and at the same time, you can detract from not so good features."

Women Find Answer To Babysitting Problem

By CRAIG STOCK
Knight News Wire

For a dollar a year, you can hire a babysitter whenever you need one.

And at nights, the sitter can come to your home, so your child's sleeping pattern won't be disrupted. And you'll be comforted to know that the sitter is a responsible adult, with children of her own.

Take the word of Janice Goudy and Connie Duvall of Wichita, Kan. — it's great. It's a baby-sitting cooperative.

"It really gave me a new lease on life," said Goudy, who founded the babysitting exchange with 13 other women about two years ago. "I've been able to get out and do things that otherwise I just couldn't do. It frees you. Those of us who are in it just wouldn't trade it for anything."

"It's worked extremely well for me," Duvall said. "What could be nicer than having a responsible parent arrive at your house and care for your child?"

Goudy got together with other women at Pine Valley Christian Church and formed the cooperative in 1974. Its organization is based on an Ann Arbor, Mich., co-op and another in Aspen, Colo., where one of the founders had lived.

Members pay $1 a year toward clerical costs of the group, but they pay nothing for the babysitting.

The free babysitting works like this:

A member who needs a sitter telephones the member designated as secretary (each member takes a two-week turn as secretary once a year). The member (called a "gadder," or one who gads about) tells the secretary when the sitter is needed and any special information about the children — illnesses, special diet and so on.

The secretary calls other members of the cooperative until she finds one who agrees to babysit. The sitter then calls the gadder to work out arrangements. After the sitter has finished the job, she calls the secretary to report the number of points she has earned.

The point system works like this:

A sitter earns two points for each hour of sitting. On Friday and Saturday nights, each hour is worth three points. After midnight, a sitter earns four points an hour. If the sitter makes lunch, she gets a point. If she makes dinner, she earns two points.

So, if a sitter worked for you on a Thursday night from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m., she would have earned 13 points. Then, when it came that sitter's time to be a gadder, she would have a "bank" of points to apply toward the "cost" of the sitting.

The number of points isn't multiplied by the number of children in a family, so a one-child family "pays" the same in points for a sitter as a three-child family.

Husbands share in the sitting duties, both women said, and the families involved in the cooperative get to know each other well, easing worries about letting a "stranger" see the unwashed dishes.

Not just anyone can join.

The group's by-laws require that new members be sponsored by an existing member. This has prevented problems with families that use, but don't pay back, sitting points.
